The Profits Expected from a Speedy Rise in Prices.

HEADQUARTERS ARE IN NEW YORK

A little less than a year ago the Herring Safe and Lock company of New York, the Hall Safe and Lock company of Cincinnati, and the Marvin Safe and Lock company of New York formed a trust, with a capital stock of $3,800,000, which has had a serious effect on the many other firms in the same business. For the latter to still do business there remained only one alternative—the trust. Whether to enter the one already formed or organize a combination of their own was a question that demanded considerable shrewd thought and discussion. Negotiations were commenced last July resulting in the organization of a trust under the laws of New Jersey, whose statutes are particularly friendly to and convenient for the octopus, with a capital of $5,000,000. New York was made headquarters. The new combine will be in operation inside of thirty days. The corporation unites and purchases the business of the following companies and firms—manufacturers of fire and burglar proof vaults and safes:

Diebold Safe and Lock company, Canton, O.; Mosler Safe and Lock company, Hamilton, O.; Damon Safe and Iron Works company, Boston, Mass.; National Safe and Lock company, Cleveland, O.; York Safe and Lock company, York, Pa.; Barnes Safe and Lock company, Pittsburg, Pa.; Miller safe and iron works, Baltimore, Md.; Macneale & Urban Safe and Lock company, Cincinnati, O.; Mosler, Bahman & Co., Cincinnati, O.; Cary Safe company (Limited), Buffalo, N. Y.

The new combination will be known as the Diebold-Mosler-Damon company, with officers as follows:

M. Mosler of the Mosler Safe and Lock company, President; W. W. Clark of the Diebold company and Thomas Barnes of the Barnes Safe and Lock company, Vice-Presidents; Herman Urban of Macneale & Urban, Secretary; George L. Damon, Treasurer. Messrs. Mosler, Clark, Damon, and Barnes are directors, with Luke H. Miller of the Miller safe and iron works, George V. Halliday of the Cincinnati Safe and Lock company, H. D. Cary of the Cary Safe company, William Mosler of the Mosler Safe company, George H. Bohrer, cashier of the German National Bank, Cincinnati, O.; E. H. Austerlitz of Mosler, Bahmann & Co., Alexander Gordon, President of the Niles tool works, Hamilton, O.; Henry R. Towne, President of the Yale & Towne company, New York; E. F. C. Young, President of the First National Bank, Jersey City, N. J.

The Auditor's Statement.

The capital stock consists of 28,000 shares of preferred stock and 22,000 shares common stock, the majority of the latter being retained by the venders as part purchase price for the property. The auditors of the new company make the following statement after examining the books of the eleven firms in the trust:

We find that the net earnings of these several companies and firms, after charging all trading expenses, wear and tear of plant and machinery, and bad debts, are as follows: Average annual profit on three years' basis, $390,111; on last two years' basis, $418,204, and for one year (dates of last inventories), $470,424. The last named amount, which includes heavy charges in respect of competition, is sufficient to pay 8 per cent on the preferred and 11-20 per cent upon the common capital of the new company. The following assets will embrace the working capital:

Real estate and buildings	$ 682,462.52
Machinery, tools, and patterns	706,570.27
Stock of finished and unfinished safes, also material raw and in process of manufacturing at cost	1,011,653.64
Bills receivable, bank accounts, and cash balances	626,551.96
Cartage plant	31,490.25
Total	$3,058,728.64

The above assets do not include patent rights or trademarks. The confidential prospectus further says:

The expenses of several years past have been heavy. Competition has been extreme, and the cutting of prices, with rebates and commissions, has been enormous. Through the formation of this company expenses will be greatly reduced by uniting eleven establishments under one management; competition, hitherto so injurious as to be almost destructive, will be brought within reasonable limits, and cuts in prices and excessive rebates will be done away with altogether. So great have been the disadvantages under which the safemaking industry has labored during recent years that, according to the most moderate computations, the saving in expense to be effected through uniting the business now to be combined, as estimated by E. C. Hall of the Herring-Hall-Marvin company, will alone result in adding at least $210,000 per annum to the profits, a result which would yield over 20 per cent per annum to the common stock after paying the preferred stock dividend in full. The intrinsic merit of this business need not be dwelt upon. It is not a protected industry and cannot be unfavorably affected by changes in the tariff. The business of manufacturing fire and burglar proof vaults and safes is one of the most sound and sterling of all branches of commerce. It is free from any speculative or uncertain features and is as steady and reliable as any business in existence. Controlling, with one other company with which it has harmonious relations, substantially the whole safe business in this country the Diebold-Mosler-Damon company will have exceptional advantages.

That the new company is in harmonious relations with the older trust is practically demonstrated by the following letter from the officers of the Herring-Hall-Marvin company:

In response to your inquiry we are pleased to learn that there is a prospect of combining the properties of the Diebold Safe and Lock company, Damon safe works, Macneale & Urban, and others, as in our judgment such a union will greatly tend to promote the stability of the safemaking industry.

Big Saving in Expenses.

William G. Norris of Norris & Co., Chicago representatives of the National Safe and Lock company, which is in the new trust, said to a reporter for The Tribune yesterday: "While the factories are not turned over to the new company yet the deal will go through inside of thirty days. The combination will boost the prices on safes, which competition has lowered to a suffering extent in the last few years. The firms in the combination have now seven representatives and as many stores in Chicago, the majority of which will be abolished after all the trust papers are signed. The reduction in expenses in a combine of this kind is apparent when the instance of Messrs. Herring, Hall, and Marvin is cited in reference to their three New York stores. Hall was paying $1,800 rental on one store yearly and the two other firms were paying almost a like sum. The combination put the three firms in one store, and it was the same case in all large cities and will be a like case with us."

It is said that Norris & Co. will be the Chicago agents of the trust, and that as soon as all the papers are signed the factories of the Cincinnati Safe and Lock company, Mosler, Bohmann & Co., Cincinnati, Cary Safe company, York Safe and Lock company, Barnes Safe and Lock company, and Miller safe and iron works will be closed, leaving the manufacturing in the five remaining plants. When the opening negotiations for the trust were made it was expected that many other firms would be included in it, including the Pittsburg Steel company, which entered the deal, but withdrew before matters neared consummation.

TO ABSORB SMALL PAPER MILLS.

That Is Said to Be the Plan of the Manufacturers' Company.

A meeting which was intended to be secret was held at the Victoria Hotel yesterday by the Manufacturers' Paper company of New York and representatives of the mills not members of this company. The Manufacturers' Paper company is a trust embracing a number of the larger manufacturing concerns, among them being the Ontario Paper company, the Herkimer Paper company, the Montague Paper company, the Watertown Paper Mills, and the Pettibone Paper company. It was organized in New York City about two years ago and is represented here by J. C. Brocklebank, who has an office in the Rookery. Warner Miller, Judge Fullerton, and Mr. Pagenstecher of New York were the originators of the scheme.

The trust controls about two-thirds of the production of print paper and supplies nearly all the large dailies. In fact its sales already exceed its capacity and it is compelled to contract with mills not in the combine to enable it to fill its orders. This fact led the directors of the trust at a regular meeting held in New York two weeks ago to consider measures for the extension of the trust and the absorption of additional mills not already under its control. The capital stock was increased and overtures made to outside mills and a secret meeting called for Feb. 3 in Chicago; the mills which it is desired to bring into the combine being invited to attend. These mills are chiefly located at Rochester, Niagara Falls, Watertown, N. Y.; Lynn, Mass.; Appleton, Neenah, and Kaukauna, Wis. Among the Western paper men invited to attend the meeting were: Messrs. Frambach, Frank Steele, Kimberly, Strangle, Davis, Van Nortwick, MacNaughton, Thilmany, and George Whiting. Print paper is now sold in this country 20 per cent below the price at which it can be manufactured abroad. There is besides this margin a duty of 25 per cent on it. This, it is argued by the trust, is ample protection, and all it needs is perfect organization to double the present price of paper as often as it desires until it becomes as famous as the whisky trust. The present price of print paper is about 3@3½ cents a pound, which is a fair price and leaves a good margin to the producers.

A number of wholesale paper dealers representing the firms of Bradner Smith & Co., George Taylor & Co., the Chicago Paper company, and F. P. Elliott & Co. were seen yesterday afternoon and expressed it as their belief that the object of the trust was ultimately to freeze out the small concerns by offering them inducements to join the trust, and after securing control of their mills use measures which would prove detrimental to the small manufacturers. It was not the opinion of these wholesale men that the trust would be successful in securing a monopoly of the print-paper industry. A call at Mr. Brocklebank's office elicited the information that he was absent for the afternoon.

WAS NOT SO GREEN AS HE LOOKED.

Robert Woods Gets Back at Two Men Who Run a Poker-Room.

Robert Woods, No. 182 Throop street, is not as green as he looks. Robert has a long gray beard, but the hot blood of youth still courses sportively through his veins. One night last week he met two highly amiable young men who invited him to go to a room where he could open a bottle of wine and as many jackpots as he desired. He went with them to Room 60 at No. 126 Washington street, directly across the street from the headquarters of detectives at the City Hall.

When Robert sat into the game and bought $10 worth of chips as a starter his newly-found friends instantly recognized him as a capitalist in disguise. They bought him many bumpers of exhilarating drink, and Robert played the limit till his chips were gone. Then, at the suggestion of his friends, he bought more chips to the amount of $20, paying for them with a check on the First National Bank, where, by the way, he never had a cent to his credit. The new supply of chips followed the first, and Robert went home accompanied only by an ablebodied case of inebriety.

Next day Robert Beeksin and Harry Rogers, proprietors of the poker game, took Mr. Wood's check over to the First National to be cashed, but Lyman J. Gage, after looking over his ledger, declared unfeelingly that Mr. Woods was not a creditor of his financial institution.

Messrs. Beeksin and Rogers grew wrathy with a righteous indignation. They felt that they had been swindled by a gray-haired old confidence man, and, much as they disliked disagreeable publicity, they determined in the interest of justice to let the law take its course. In fact, they went out into the Town of Jefferson and there started suit against Mr. Woods to recover the amount of the check. Mr. Woods heard of the procedure, and making up his mind that the philanthropic gentlemen whose hospitality he had abused were not to be trifled with paid a second visit to their rooms and offered to make good the amount of his check. But Messrs. Beeksin and Rogers sternly refused to accept the money.

"You are a dangerous confidence man," they said. "We cannot interfere. Let justice take its course."

Then, strange to relate, Mr. Woods went over to detective headquarters and told his story to Capt. Shea, and, stranger still, Capt. Shea sent the patrol wagon across the street and gathered in Messrs. Beeksin and Rogers, together with six guests who were enjoying their hospitality. Messrs. Beeksin and Rogers are now more inclined than ever to believe that justice cannot be had in Chicago, not even in a poker game.

FELL FROM A SECOND-STORY WINDOW.

J. W. McCormick, a Janitor of the Veteran's Building, Meets His Death.

J. W. McCormick, son of C. A. McCormick, janitor of the Veteran Protective Association's building, at Thirteenth street and Michigan avenue, accidentally fell from a window in the second story last night, receiving injuries from which he died a few minutes after being taken to St. Luke's Hospital. He was an assistant of his father.

An Old-Fellows' ball was in progress there last night and he was sent to one of the front rooms in the second story of the building to raise a window for ventilation. The window resisted all his efforts to raise it for some time but suddenly flew up, causing him to lose his balance and fall to the stone sidewalk.

An ambulance was called and he was taken to St. Luke's Hospital and died while the doctors were making an examination. His skull was fractured in several places.

He was 18 years old and had been in Chicago but three months.

IRON GIRDER FALLS FROM ALLEY "L."

It Just Misses a Crowded Street Car and Hits a Workman on the Shoulder.

One of the twenty-ton steel girders of the Alley L road fell and missed a crowded street car by the breadth of a man's hand yesterday afternoon. In its fall the girder struck John Scott, one of the workmen, on the shoulder, knocking him senseless and then, striking the ground, broke in two.

The girder was one of those spanning Cottage Grove avenue, and was being hoisted into place when the chain supporting it broke without warning. It is said that the chain was old and weak. Scott is not seriously hurt.

All about Cinderella tomorrow.

ENDS HIS OWN LIFE.

A. REICHENFELD TAKES MORPHINE AND TURNS ON THE GAS.

The Fatal Act Committed at the Palmer House, Where Apparently a Room Was Secured for That Purpose—Left Letters to the Proprietor of the Hotel and Others—Cause Supposed to Be Despondency Over the Loss of His Employer's Money—Sandbagged and Robbed.

A. Reichenfeld of No. 3655 Prairie avenue was found dead in Room 539 at the Palmer House yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock. Mr. Reichenfeld came to the hotel Thursday night and registered under the name of "Joe Morris, Milwaukee." He retired to his room and yesterday the room inspector tried his door at 10 o'clock and again shortly before 3 o'clock in the afternoon. No response was given, and, as an odor of escaping gas came from the room, the house officer was notified. Soon after he entered the room and discovered the dead body of Mr. Reichenfeld lying on the bed partly dressed. The atmosphere was nearly suffocating from gas, which escaped from two burners that were turned on.

An examination of the room disclosed the fact that the cause of death was morphia and asphyxiation. On the washstand were found small boxes labeled "Morphia pills, ⅛ grain," obtained from the Grand Pacific drug store, Hermann Conradi, No. 441 State street, and J. W. Schroeter, No. 425 State street. The boxes were all empty, showing that the suicide had taken the entire contents of each in his efforts to end his life.

Before retiring Thursday night he purchased ink, pens, and stationery, which he used in writing the following letter to Mr. Palmer, which was found on a table among others:

Mr. Palmer: Dear Sir—Please have these letters delivered. Please inform Dr. Alex. Loew, No. 3237 or No. 3247 Michigan avenue, of my death, as I don't wish to have my body sent to an undertaker. Thousand pardons, Mr. Palmer, for the inconvenience and trouble I cause you. God bless you. A. Reichenfeld.

The other letters were addressed to Mrs. Eva Reichenfeld, Mrs. Rosa Politzer, No. 3655 Prairie avenue, and Gen. Thomas Post No. 5, G. A. R. Several uncollected bills of R. B. Arnold, coal dealer, No. 26 West Polk street, and a tax bill to Rosa Politzer for $93 were found in the pockets together with $660 in money.

Beyond All Help.

Dr. Evans, the house physician, was summoned and tried to revive the suicide, though his efforts were unavailing as the man had evidently been dead two or three hours. An hour after the body was discovered it was removed to Klaner's undertaking rooms on Wabash avenue. Dr. Loew was notified of the death of Mr. Reichenfeld by telephone and sent word that he would call. As he did not appear at 6 o'clock the letters addressed to the family of the deceased were sent by messengers to the residence on Prairie avenue. An hour later a reporter for The Tribune called at the house, believing the family had heard of the suicide. Mrs. Politzer, sister of the suicide, came to the door.

"Can you give me any reason for Mr. Reichenfeld committing suicide at the Palmer House this afternoon?" was asked.

Mrs. Politzer gave a slight scream and turning deadly pale sank back on the hall-stairs.

"My God, is it so? This is the first we have heard of it. O, how could he do it? He had no cause for such a deed. And his wife lies in there sick, waiting at this moment for his return. How can we ever tell her? It will kill her. Why, we were expecting him home and had prepared his bed as Mrs. Loew came in a few moments ago and said they had heard from him and that he was sick at the Palmer House. His poor wife, how will she take it? She must not be told tonight. We must have time to think, to think——"

Two woman friends of the family came from a rear room and assisted Mrs. Politzer to the parlor, where later the following facts were gained:

Sandbagged Two Weeks Ago.

Mr. Reichenfeld had been suffering for several days from the effects of being sandbagged and robbed of $700 about two weeks ago. The robbers struck him a blow on the head from which he had not recovered. His mind was affected by the loss of so much money, as it belonged to his employer, R. B. Arnold. Mr. Arnold called at the house, however, and told him not to worry, but to continue with his collecting. Since the robbery Mr. Reichenfeld had been under the care of Dr. Loew, who advised him Thursday not to go out, as his condition was serious. Mr. Reichenfeld left home Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, having in his pocket $25, and stating that he would return at 4 o'clock. With the exception of $6.60 this money was spent Thursday. As he did not return by yesterday morning the police were notified to look for him and the family anxiously waited for news of the missing man.

Late in the afternoon word came that he was sick at the Palmer and his wife was relieved to hear that nothing fatal had happened.

R. B. Arnold said: "M. A. Reichenfeld entered our employ last May. Some years ago he had been in the manufacturing business in Chicago. He failed in that and then devoted his attention to soliciting coal trade. He was first with Peabody, afterward with Boyes, and finally with us. He had a fine trade when he came to us. He was a splendid salesman, had hosts of friends, and was a good business man. He has been soliciting lately on commission, not only for us, but for other firms. He has also been collecting for us."

"When he was sandbagged recently and robbed, he had about $700 of our money; at least, he was about that amount in our debt. I do not know whether all that money belonged to us or not. We are not worrying about that money. Poor fellow! He has worried a great deal ever since he failed in the manufacturing business. During the last few weeks he has been very despondent. After he was sandbagged an afternoon paper intimated that the police took no stock in his story as to the sandbagging. He construed this to mean that the paper meant to intimate that he had not been robbed, but that he merely told that story to protect himself, and that he still had in his possession the cash of which he said he had been robbed. He worried considerably over this thoughtless paragraph in the paper. He held the fullest confidence of his customers and employers."

Coroner McHale Has Trouble.

Coroner McHale went to Klaner's morgue at 10 o'clock last night after the body of Mr. Reichenfeld. He was indignant at the way he had been treated. He had not been notified and did not learn of the suicide until 7 o'clock, and then the information was picked up on the streets. He called upon the officers at Central and Harrison Street Stations, but they refused to assist him in any way. Failing at the police stations he started a deputy to the county morgue for a coffin and force of men.

When they returned he instructed Deputy Tom McNally to call upon Klaner to give up the body. McNally did so. Mr. Morris, acting under instructions from Klaner, refused to give up the body, and handed the deputy an order from Dr. Alex. Loew. McNally refused to recognize the order and sent for Coroner McHale. When he arrived there was a lively scene at the morgue. The Coroner was angry and said to Mr. Morris:

"I understand you have the body of A. S. Reichenfeld. I want you to turn it over to my deputy at once."

"I cannot do so. Here is my authority."

The authority referred to is the following letter from Dr. Loew:

Mr. F. Klaner: Will you kindly take charge of the body of the defunct Mr. A. S. Reichenfeld until after the inquest, and kindly send the body to the residence of his widow, No. 3655 Prairie avenue. Yours respectfully, Dr. Alex. Loew.

After reading the letter Coroner McHale said:

"I do not recognize this doctor in this case. I am talking to you as Coroner of Cook County. Turn the body over at once. It will be at the county morgue tonight or I will know why. Since when have you become greater than the Coroner in these cases?"

"As a favor to me let me go and get an order from these people allowing you to have the body."

"You may go, but when you return we will have the body, order or no order."

At 11:30 o'clock the remains were surrendered to the Coroner, and he at once made preparations to have them removed to the County Morgue.

OFFICER AND MAN EXCHANGE BLOWS

Capt. Shippy Charged with Assault by Patrolman Meehan—Warrant Issued.

Capt. George M. Shippy, in charge of the police station at Grand Crossing, is the defendant in a warrant charging him with assault. The complainant is Thomas Meehan, an officer of Capt. Shippy's station, who says his Captain almost killed him in a hand-to-hand conflict, in which each of the contestants drew his revolver and tried his best to take the other's life. The affair occurred in a saloon on Stony Island avenue, near Seventieth street, kept by Mrs. Rodgers. The place is a road-house.

Capt. Shippy and Lieut. Creighton were sitting at the dinner table yesterday. Meehan was also in the place eating his dinner and a discussion arose about the transfer of police officers by the Captain from one post to another. Meehan found fault with orders the Captain had issued. One word led to another, Meehan all the time growing more angry. Finally he jumped to his feet, and, pointing his finger at his Captain, said: "You are an organizer of deputies. You give all the snaps to your personal friends."

Capt. Shippy, jumping up, struck Meehan, knocking the policeman to the floor. Meehan arose to his feet and drew his revolver from his hip-pocket, but Lieut. Creighton knocked the weapon from his hand and ordered him to surrender his star. Meehan obeyed, and the Captain and Lieutenant walked from the saloon toward the Captain's buggy, which was standing in front of the door, the Lieutenant first picking up the officer's revolver from the floor. As he reached the door he opened his overcoat to put the weapon in his pocket, when Meehan rushed out, and, snatching the pistol from his hand, pointed it at Capt. Shippy. Creighton quickly sprang between the two and endeavored to push them apart. Meehan struggled until he freed himself, while Capt. Shippy drew his revolver and sprang toward the patrolman. Creighton grasped the revolver of each and wrenched the weapons away, while the two men closed with each other and fell struggling to the sidewalk.

Meehan struck at Capt. Shippy, who was, however, quicker and more powerful than he. Meehan was finally knocked senseless by a blow under the ear. Shippy and Lieut. Creighton jumped into the buggy and drove away. Meehan started for Hyde Park to take out a warrant for the arrest of his superior. The document was issued by Justice Porter and placed in the hands of a constable.

The matter was kept a secret by the police as long as possible. One of the inmates of the saloon at the time of the fight says the trouble arose from a charge by Meehan that Capt. Shippy was a member of the United Order of Deputies. Many of his men are Irish Catholics and bitterly opposed to the order.

Capt. Shippy made a report to Inspector Hunt and placed the matter in the latter's hands. He said he had been insulted and threatened by the patrolman and had knocked him down. He declared he had endeavored to avoid trouble, and even when Meehan had drawn his revolver he had attempted to prevent a further personal conflict by leaving the saloon.

STREET OBSTRUCTIONS MUST GO.

City Authorities Take Stringent Measures to Do Away with the Nuisance.

War upon obstructions on the sidewalks and streets in the wholesale district has been declared by the city administration. At the same time a radical change in issuing permits has been worked out and the new order of things will be promulgated today. Its aim is to preserve to public use the sidewalks and streets during building operations. Notices have been served on fifteen of the leading wholesale firms along River street and on Michigan avenue, from Randolph street to the river, to remove the "skids" from the sidewalk.

The crusade against these obstructions was begun some time ago. The wholesale firms of Sprague, Warner & Co., Franklin MacVeagh & Co., Reid, Murdoch & Fisher, Henry W. King & Co., and Kellogg & Co., sent representatives to a conference at the City Hall. Mr. MacVeagh stated that if the wholesale firms were not permitted the free use of the streets in front of their places of business the trade would be driven out of the city. They all pledged themselves to lessen the nuisance as much as possible, but the pledge has amounted to nothing.

The firms which were notified to clear their sidewalks have not yet complied.

"My argument with Commissioner Kuhns," said Street Superintendent Burke last night, "is to go ahead and act. This is exactly his idea. These obstructions should be cleaned out. Above all else Michigan avenue should be cleared out before the Fair."

For the issuing of building permits the city has been divided into districts. The first district is from the river south to Twenty-second street and east to the lake. Before a permit shall be issued in this district the contractor or builder must make a cash deposit of $150 with the city as a guaranty that the sidewalks and streets will be kept in reasonable shape. Storage of material over two days will not be permitted. It the orders of the Superintendent of Streets are not carried out he shall remove the obstructions and charge the cost therefor against the cash deposit. Before the deposit is refunded inspectors must report that the sidewalk and street are unincumbered with building débris. For the districts between Twenty-second and Seventy-first streets and State street and the lake; between the river and Ashland avenue and Chicago avenue and Twelfth street; and on the North Side between the river, the lake, and Chicago avenue, the deposit required will be $100. In all other parts of the city it will be $50.

The new rule will make the contractors and not the city do the running. Under the new rule the city will be reimbursed for all expenditures.

BOTH LODGER AND DIAMONDS GONE.

Mrs. Kelley Lets a Room to Mr. Clark with Sad Results.

Mrs. J. J. Kelley, No. 219 Jackson boulevard, rented a room two weeks ago to a man named Clark and now mourns the loss of diamonds and jewelry valued at $900. Yesterday afternoon she went out and was gone about two hours and a half. When she returned she found the house open and the rooms ransacked. A lot of jewelry left on the dressing case was missing. This consisted of a pair of diamond earrings, valued at $600; a lady's gold watch, $100; three diamond rings, $150; and a gold necklace, $25. The case has been reported to the police, and detectives are now trying to locate Mr. Clark.

All about Cinderella tomorrow.

SUNK BY DRIFT ICE.

TUG LUCILLE GOES TO THE BOTTOM AT LAKE VIEW CRIB.

Fifty Men Narrowly Escape with Their Lives by Climbing from the Sinking Vessel—The Boat Pushed Against a Sharp Corner of the Crib by Drifting Floes and a Great Hole Stove In Its Side—How the Castaways Were Brought to Shore.

A red blanket flying from the flagstaff of the Lake View water-works crib was sighted by Capt. Harmon of the tug Wau Bun of the Chicago Towing company at noon yesterday and recognized by him as a signal of distress. He took his boat through the ice to the crib and there found fifty men who were willing and anxious to reach the shore. Among them were Capt. Napier and the crew of the tug Lucille, which lay at the bottom of the lake not far from the crib. The castaways were brought back to the city on the Wau Bun and told the following story of the sinking of the tug:

The Lucille left the harbor at 2 o'clock Thursday with sand, coal, and groceries for Shailer & Schniglau, contractors for the Lake View crib and tunnel. On board were thirty men, including the crew and extra laborers for the tunnel. The boat reached the crib at 7 p. m. after a rough passage through the ice. After being made fast the Lucille swung around in such a manner that her side bore against a sharp corner of the crib. While in this position a huge ice-floe drifted down upon the vessel from the northwest and drove her against the sharp corner of the crib with such force that a great hole was stove in her side below the water line.

Pumps Were Useless.

Capt. Napier heard the crash, and, rushing below, ordered all force put on the pumps. But the water poured in in such volume that he soon saw the boat was doomed. He then instantly ordered all the workmen to leave the boat, most of them escaping through the porthole. As the Lucille filled she settled away from the crib, and Capt. Napier, who was the last man to leave her, narrowly escaped with his life. A hole was knocked in the upper works of the pier, and through it a rope was thrown to the sinking boat. Capt. Napier seized it and was dragged through the floating ice to safety.

Many of the crew and workmen were drenched in the icy waters and suffered severely from the freezing wind, as all their extra clothing was lost with the boat. The men were crowded in the small crib house until there was hardly room to walk around. There were about fifty in all, and by close crowding the crib held bunks for thirty-five. There was sufficient coal to keep them warm and enough food on hand.

"We slept heads and feet together," said M. J. Healy, mate of the Lucille, yesterday, "but we did not mind that, for we were glad enough to have escaped with our lives. That is as close a call as I have ever had."

Driven Back by the Ice.

Yesterday morning an attempt was made to get to the shore in the yawl kept at the crib manned by five men. After a few minutes' work the attempt was abandoned and the men returned to the crib. The wind, which had been northerly, shifted to the southwest, and the ice was rapidly breaking up, so that walking ashore was not to be thought of. As a final resort the signal of distress was used.

On arriving in the city about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon Capt. Napier at once made his way to the office of Shailer & Schniglau, his employers.

"Yes, the old Lucille has sunk," he said. "We had a bad scare and barely escaped losing all we had on board. Her hulk lies, I should judge, about 100 feet northwest of the crib and in twenty-seven feet of water. I do not think she will be worth raising, as she was rotten and badly broken up by the ice. Her engines, however, might pay for the raising. I had no idea that she was in a dangerous position, as she lay at the crib and did not notice that she drifted so that her side was against the corner. All at once I heard a sound of breaking timbers, and hurrying into the hold I saw the water rushing in in a perfect stream. I told the engineer to pump out with all the power of the engines, but the water gained on us so fast that I ordered the men ashore. I had my crew leave last, in hopes of being able to save the boat, but I soon saw that she was lost, and then looked out for my own safety."

Loss But Trifling.

Mr. Schniglau, when asked about the supplies he had on board, estimated his loss at $200. He said that they consisted of sand, cement, brick, coal, and groceries, all of which went down with the boat. He thought there would be no immediate need for these things, and said supplies would be sent out as soon as another boat could be obtained. Negotiations are in progress for the chartering of a boat to take the place of the Lucille.

W. J. Healy, mate of the Lucille, attributed her loss to insecure fastening at the crib.

"If there had been strong hooks on the crib to fasten a line to," he said, "the Lucille would not have drifted against the sharp corner of the crib and thus given the ice a chance to get at her. It was the sharp corner that did the damage, and not the ice. The hook our line was over was a poor thing, and broke, letting the tug drift. Her strength would have been sufficient to protect her against the ice, and at any rate she could have been turned with her head to the oncoming ice and broken out a place to lie in."

The Lucille is not an old boat, having been built by Miller Bros. in 1884. It had an A2 rating and was valued at $7,000. It is owned by the Shufeldt Distilling company and was used to carry refuse out into the lake from the distillery. Last summer it was chartered by Shailer & Schniglau and has been in their service ever since.

SEVEN POOL-ROOMS STOP BUSINESS.

The Cause Was Maj. McClaughry's Little Note to Inspector Ross.

Inspector Ross got a little note from Chief McClaughry yesterday morning. Two hours later seven of the big down-town pool-rooms stopped business. What is more, Inspector Ross says they will stay closed. He will station an officer at each place if necessary to prevent the selling of pools.

The pool-rooms mentioned in Chief McClaughry's note are as follows:

No. 145 Monroe street.
No. 70 Madison street, kept by Bud White. Jack Spelman's name is on the door and George Meyers and John Condon are behind the game.
No. 264 South Clark street.
No. 88 Washington street.
No. 168 Madison street.
No. 149 Monroe street.
No. 188 Dearborn street.

At the bottom of the page is the following interesting postscript:

The way to stop this business is to watch it closely for evidence to make a case; then back the wagon up to the door; and, when a place is once closed, keep it closed.

"Our men find it hard to get evidence against these pool-roomkeepers," said Inspector Ross. "In most of the places they do not even sell tickets, the gamblers depending solely upon the memory of the cashier. We have lately succeeded, however, in getting Jim McHie and James Hanagan, who ran the room at No. 264 Clark street, and Fred Levi, whose place was at No. 188 Dearborn street, held to the Criminal Court. We sent men out today on receipt of the Chief's letter and notified all these places that they must close. They all agreed to do so and we shall station an officer at each room to see that they keep their word."

PROHIBITION OF THE HOOP-SKIRT.

Minnesota Legislator, Instead of an Anti-Tights Bill, Aims One at Crinoline.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The people of Minnesota today are asking: "Has the awful fate of Senator McHale and his anti-tights bill been forgotten so soon by the statesmen who now hold down the seats in the Lower House of the Legislature, or is George M. Bleecker, the doughty little lawyer who represents a Democratic constituency in Minneapolis, seeking some of the same notoriety for himself and fellow-members as that acquired by his brother Democrat in the Senate two years ago?" Whether Mr. Bleecker is seeking this kind of notoriety or not he is in a fair way to secure it by trying to head off the introduction of hoopskirts in this State and making any woman who wears them as well as the manufacturer and merchant who sold them to her, if they be residents of this State, liable to arrest and fine or imprisonment or both. The introduction of the bill today created something of a sensation in the House, and it was a great question as to what disposition should be made of it. Mr. Fletcher wanted it referred to the Committee on Incorporations Other than Municipal. The Speaker decided that it should go to the Committee on Incorporations Other than Municipal, and there it went, in spite of the most vigorous protests from Chairman Boggs and motions by the score to refer it to the Committee on Temperance, Committee on Agriculture, and a number of others.

The full text of the bill is as follows:

Sec. 1. It shall be unlawful for any person to manufacture or sell, or to offer for sale or to use or to permit the manufacture, sale, or use of any hoop skirt or hoop skirts or anything like them unto within the limits of Minnesota.

Sec. 2. Any person violating this act or in any way assisting the violation of any provision of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 for each offense, and, in default shall be introduced in the county jail for a period not exceeding thirty days.

HAS OFFERED PLACES TO NEW-YORKERS.

Rumors That an Anti-Snapper Will Be New York Port Collector.

New York, Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Accompanied by ex-Postmaster-General Don M. Dickinson, President-elect Cleveland came to town today from Lakewood, and upon arriving at his office in the Mills Building at once entered into consultation with ex-Senator Carlisle, the coming Secretary of the Treasury, Daniel S. Lamont, and Mr. Dickinson. Senator Gorman was also present. It is understood the question of State patronage came up for discussion, as State Senator William L. Brown was sent for at one period and responded. It was rumored that ex-Insurance Superintendent Robert Maxwell had been offered the first Assistant-Postmaster Generalship, and Robert Greer Monroe, the famous anti-snapper, the port collectorship.

A special from Washington says: Senator George Gray of Delaware has declined the Secretaryship of State under President Cleveland. This offer was made to him day before yesterday through Don M. Dickinson, and Mr. Gray's reply was that he had definitely decided not to leave the Senate. Mr. Gray already had declined the post of Attorney-General. He is said to be the third man who has declined to be Secretary of State under Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland now has under consideration for Secretary of State James C. Carter of New York and Frederic R. Coudert, President of the Manhattan club, with the chances largely in favor of Mr. Carter, who is a leading lawyer of New York, one of Mr. Cleveland's intimate friends, and counsel for the United States in the Bering Sea case.

KANSAS POPULISTS WILL NOT GIVE UP.

Their Plan Is to Continue the Fight Until the 1894 Election.

Topeka, Kas., Feb. 3.—All hope of settling the muddle in the House has been abandoned and the two organizations have settled down, quit quarreling, and agreed to divide the time on the floor from now to the close of the session, the Republicans meeting in the forenoon and the Populists in the afternoon. The Populists will follow their regular forms of legislation hereafter, and bills will be passed without regard to the Republicans. Only such bills as cannot be attacked in the Supreme Court will be passed, and at the close of the session appropriations for the expenses of the Legislature and the State government and State institutions will be adopted. Should the Supreme Court declare the laws of the Populists to be void and the Governor call an extra session of the Legislature, the Populist House will come back just the same and go through the form of passing the same laws. A tangle in the affairs of the State will result and it will continue until after the next general election in 1894, when a new House will be chosen. The Populists do not believe that the Republicans will dare to attack the Populist laws and thus tie up the State government. They believe, too, that public policy would compel the Supreme Court to recognize the Populist House as a de facto House and thus sustain its laws.

Chicago Traveling Man Dies Suddenly.

Racine, Wis., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Louis Holmes, a traveling agent for the Consolidated Adjustment company of Chicago, died in his cell at the county jail this morning. Last night he sampled of several bottles of medicines while in a raving condition. He went to the police office and asked to be locked up, as he feared he would commit suicide. It is believed that his death was caused from drinking the medicine in the hotel. An inquest will be held in the morning.

LAST EDITION.

T. F. WITHROW DEAD.

General Counsel of the Rock Island Expires Suddenly.

HE HAD HEART DISEASE.

For Several Months He Had Been in Impaired Health.

APPARENTLY RECOVERING.

Arrangements for the Funeral Not Yet Completed.

POINTS IN A SUCCESSFUL CAREER.

Thomas F. Withrow, general counsel of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, died suddenly yesterday afternoon at his residence, No. 337 Dearborn avenue. Mr. Withrow had not been in robust health since last autumn and at the time of his decease was apparently recovering from an attack of pleurisy. He was to all appearances so far on the road to complete recovery that the news of his sudden death came in the nature of a shock to his friends. Many of them called at the family residence last night to express their sympathy with the widow and family.

Mr. Withrow's death was attributed to a heart affection, signs of the existence of which had been perceived by his physicians. Last October his usually robust health began to show the effects of intense application to work continued for many years. He made an extensive trip through the Pacific coast States and returned home in December apparently improved. Four weeks later he went to Minneapolis to attend a hearing in an important litigation involving the Rock Island road. In that city he caught a violent cold which, first threatening to pass into pneumonia, finally settled into an attack of pleurisy.

The physicians noticed the presence of heart trouble at this time. Last Sunday Mr. Withrow was brought home. He was confined to his room, but spent only part of the time in bed. Yesterday he seemed improved. After lunch he fell asleep. At 3 o'clock he woke up complaining of violent pains in his elbow. These passed away and he dozed off again. Fifteen minutes later he awoke, coughed once or twice, and suddenly fell back dead.

Funeral Arrangements Not Announced.

No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral, nor has the place of interment been fixed upon; but these details will probably be settled today.

Mr. Withrow was a noticeable figure upon the street. He was tall and broad-shouldered, and had a particularly genial face, framed with gray hair and closely-cropped beard. He had lived in Chicago since 1873. He was born in Virginia in March, 1833. When young his parents emigrated to Ohio. The young Thomas attended college in the Western Reserve. After his father's death he taught school and worked as a printer. He rose from the latter position to that of editor of a paper published in Mount Vernon, O.

In 1855 he removed to Janesville, Wis., and became connected with a newspaper, at the same time studying law. He completed his law studies in Iowa and was admitted to the bar of that State in 1857, settling in Des Moines. During the administration of Gov. Lowe and part of that of Gov. Kirkwood he acted as private secretary to the executive department. In 1860 he was appointed by the Iowa Supreme Court official reporter of its decisions, and in this capacity during a term of seven years published thirteen volumes of reports. In 1863 he was Chairman of the Republican State committee of Iowa.

His Connection with the Rock Island.

In 1866 he was appointed local attorney of the Rock Island road, which at that time was pushing its line through Central Iowa. He was prominent in the struggle which ensued in 1868 between the Tracy directory in the company and a syndicate of Wall street men who sought to prevent the extension of the road to Council Bluffs. At the end of this litigation Mr. Withrow's official territory was enlarged, and in 1873 he was made chief law officer of the road, with headquarters at Chicago. He was made general counsel in 1890.

For twenty years before his death the company's heavy legal interests had been guided by him. His duties took him into courts in many States, and numbers of the suits in which he represented the company were of considerable general interest. He was a deep student and an incessant worker, frequently curtailing his hours of sleep and going without his meals when engaged upon the preparation of a case.

In the intervals of his work he traveled extensively in this country. He belonged to the Union and University clubs, but was seen about their rooms but little. He was a member of the Bar Association. He was peculiarly a domestic man.

Mr. Withrow was married in October, 1859, to Miss Jennie F. Goodwin of De Ruyter, N. Y. She and three children survive him. They are Miss Bonnie Withrow, Charles Le B. Withrow, a practicing attorney, and Henry G. Withrow, who is connected with the Rock Island road. He returned within a day or two from a post on the road's extension in Indian Territory. Neither of the sons is married and they and Miss Bonnie Withrow live at the family residence.

WAR RENEWED ON HAWTHORNE.

Warrants Issued for Ed Corrigan and a Number of Bookmakers.

Warrants were sworn out late last evening before Justice Bradwell for the arrest of Edward Corrigan, John Brennock, James C. Burke, and Joseph Ullman, proprietor and bookmakers at the Hawthorne race track. The men are charged with keeping a common gambling house and selling pools on foreign races. The complainant is James Tighe, a printer.

The warrants were given to Attorney Reed of Attorney Lewis' office and later put into the hands of the Sheriff for service. Beyond the fact that Tighe is a printer nothing is known of him. It is understood, however, that he has been playing the Hawthorne races since early in August and that he has lost a large amount of money at the track. It is also understood that the real prosecutor in the case will be Tighe's employer and a number of influential men, who have banded together to close the Hawthorne track. The warrants will probably be served this morning.

SERVED ON GEN. PAVEY

SUMMONS AND SEARCH WARRANT ISSUED AT SPRINGFIELD.

Attorney-General Moloney Begins Suit Against the ex-Auditor and the Sheriff Makes a Formal Search of His House for the Missing Books of the Insurance Department—Acting Gov. Gill and Mr. Moloney Anxious to Bring Action Against ex-Treasurers for Interest.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The prosecution of ex-Auditor of Public Accounts Charles W. Pavey was begun today. A summons was served on Gen. Pavey and the Sheriff of Sangamon County made a formal search of the ex-Auditor's house for the missing books of the Insurance Department. Political circles are much excited, and it is freely asserted that this is only the beginning. Acting Gov. Gill and Attorney-Gen. Moloney now contemplate actions against all the ex-Treasurers and ex-Auditors whose term of office come within the statute of limitations and who are alleged to have wrongfully appropriated interest on public money and fees, to recover the same.

It was about 4 o'clock when Attorney-General Moloney and Assistant Schofield walked into the office of the Circuit Clerk of Sangamon County and filed the following præcipe:

State of Illinois, Sangamon County: In the Circuit Court of Sangamon County, to the March term, A. D. 1893. The People of the State of Illinois vs. Charles W. Pavey, Alvin Gilbert, Stephen T. Stratton, John R. Allen, William C. Pace, Thomas L. Moss. Debt $50,000; damages $50,000. The Clerk of the said Court will issue a summons as above directed to the Sheriff of Sangamon County and returnable to the said term of court.
M. T. MOLONEY, Attorney-General.

"You may issue a summons for Gen. Pavey and hand it to the Sheriff for service," said Gen. Moloney to Deputy Clerk Tobin, "and issue a summons for his bondsmen, who are parties to the suit, and forward it to the Sheriff of Jefferson County for service."

Summons for Gen. Pavey.

The following is a copy of the summons issued to be served on Gen. Pavey by Deputy-Sheriff Brand:

State of Illinois, Sangamon County, ss. The people of the State of Illinois, to the Sheriff of Sangamon County—greeting: We command you to summon Charles W. Pavey, impleaded, etc., if to be found in your county, to appear before the Circuit Court of Sangamon County on the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the court-house in the City of Springfield on the first Monday in the month of March, A. D. 1893, to answer unto the people of the State of Illinois in an action of debt, $50,000 damages, and hereof make due return to our said court as the law directs.

Witness, Edward Cahill, clerk of said court, and the judicial seal thereof, at Springfield, this third day of February, A. D. 1893.
EDWARD CAHILL, Clerk.

Mr. Moloney and Assistant Schofield next appeared before Judge James A. Creighton for the purpose of asking that a search warrant be issued in order to gain access to Gen. Pavey's home and if possible secure the insurance book which has caused the controversy. In support of their petition an affidavit signed by Auditor Gore setting forth in detail the facts in the case as heretofore published was filed. Accompanying it was the following petition:

State of Illinois, Sangamon County, ss.—To the Hon. James A. Creighton, Presiding Judge of the Circuit Court of Sangamon County, Ill.: Your petitioner, David Gore, would respectfully represent unto your Honor that he is the Auditor of Public Accounts of the State of Illinois, duly elected, qualified, and acting as such.

Your petitioner represents unto your Honor that Charles W. Pavey was his predecessor in office; that the term of office of the said Charles W. Pavey expired Jan. 10, A. D. 1893; that the said Charles W. Pavey removed from the office of the Auditor of Public Accounts of said State certain books, records, papers, documents, receipts, and other writings pertaining to such office, and which said books, records, papers documents, receipts, and other writings contained, among other things, the account of the disbursement of the funds earned by the Insurance Department of said office during the four years that the said Charles W. Pavey occupied the position of Auditor as aforesaid; that there are no other books, records, papers, documents, receipts, and other writings pertaining to said office and in said office, which contain an account of the disbursement of the funds so received as aforesaid; that it is the duty of the Auditor of Public Accounts to keep a correct and accurate account of all moneys received and disbursed by him, of all nature and kinds soever, and that the said books, records, papers, documents, receipts, and other writings so removed from said office at the expiration of his term of office by the said Charles W. Pavey are books, records, papers, documents, receipts, and writings pertaining to such office; that your petitioner served a demand upon the said Charles W. Pavey Jan. 2, 1893, requiring of him to return to your petitioner, as his successor in office, such books, records, papers, documents, receipts, and other writings, respectively, and that the said Charles W. Pavey has neglected and refused to deliver over said books, records, papers, documents, receipts, and other writings to your petitioner as his successor and still neglects and refuses to so deliver said books, records, papers, documents, receipts, and other writings or any or either of them.

Your petitioner therefore asks your Honor to issue a warrant, directed to the Sheriff or Coroner of Sangamon County, commanding him to seize all records, books, papers, documents, receipts, and other writings belonging to or pertaining to the said office and deliver the same to the custody of your petitioner as Auditor of Public Accounts of said State.

In support of this petition your petitioner files herewith, attached hereto, and made a part hereof, his affidavit as required by law in such cases and as in duty bound, etc. DAVID GORE.
By M. T. MOLONEY, Attorney-General.

Warrant Is Issued.

On the strength of the affidavit and petition Judge Creighton ordered the issuing of a warrant, which was immediately handed to the Deputy Sheriff for service. Gen. Pavey came to the door as the Sheriff was ushered in.

"Gen. Pavey, I am the Sheriff of Sangamon County," said Mr. Brand. "It becomes my duty to serve these papers on you, General," and he began reading the above summons and the search warrant which was merely a reiteration of the petition, with slight changes. The ex-Auditor listened attentively, interrupting the officer once or twice to catch the full significance.

"Now, General," said the officer at the conclusion, "do you deliver those books, papers, and documents?"

"No, sir," said Gen. Pavey, "I have not any such things. Part of them are in the Auditor's office now. I have nothing to deliver to you."

"I knew it, General, I knew it," said the Sheriff, "but, of course, I have to perform my duty. Will you kindly indicate to me all bookcases, drawers, etc., where I can look for these books?"

The ex-Auditor gave a sweep of the hand around the room. The Sheriff gave a glance through the glass doors of the bookcase and then said: "I am afraid they are not here. I most knew they would not be, but of course I wanted to perform my duty conscientiously."

"I appreciate your zeal," said Gen. Pavey as the officer moved toward the front door, "but there are no such books here. This is a thing that has got to be fought out to the end of the law," said he in parting to the officer.

The Sheriff proceeded to the State-House and reported to the Attorney-General that he had served the summons and search warrant and made a fruitless search for the records and vouchers.

Copies of the summons served on Gen. Pavey were this evening sent to Mount Vernon, Jefferson County, to be served on Alvin Gilbert, Stephen T. Stratton, John R. Allen, Williamson C. Pace, and Thomas L. Moss, the bondsmen of the ex-Auditor, who are made defendants to the suit.

Others Will Be Prosecuted.

It is admitted on every hand that Mr. Pavey is not the only ex-official who will be proceeded against. There are at least a dozen members of the General Assembly who have resolutions for investigation. The temporary shelving of the Campbell resolution in the Senate Wednesday has intensified public feeling in the matter.

Mr. Mounts has had prepared for several days resolutions bearing on the subject which he will introduce in the House at an early day. He insinuates that the Speaker has denied him an opportunity to present them. The truth appears to be that he has not tried hard. He now asserts that he will introduce them next week. He has presented them to the Attorney-General, who has encouraged him to proceed with them, saying that he (the Attorney-General) is quite anxious to proceed against Mr. Wilson if he only gets the word. If the resolutions of Campbell are adopted by the Senate, or if Mounts' resolutions or any similar ones are adopted by the House he will proceed at once.

He has so stated and he has commented rather freely and sharply on the action of certain leading Democrats, including Speaker Crafts, who are averse to hasty action in this and in other matters. But, unless all signs fail, the Attorney-General will have his hands full in a few days. A Democratic Senator informed the correspondent for THE TRIBUNE today that he will Tuesday next introduce resolutions directing the Attorney-General to proceed against all the recent State officers who were the custodians of public funds and who deposited the same in banks and who have not yet accounted for the interest thereon to recover such interest. This will include the trustees of several of the State institutions, the Canal Commissioners, and others.

The loyal supporters of Gov. Altgeld say the action of the Attorney-General was discourteous to their chief. They say there was no occasion for haste. The hasty action is thought to be a reflection on the Governor, an insinuation in effect that he would refuse to do his duty under the law. It is intimated that Moloney was induced to push the matter by the Morrison followers here, who are afraid that Altgeld may be a formidable opponent for the horizontal statesman, when Senator Cullom's place comes to be filled two years hence.

Acting-Gov. Gill is understood to be only awaiting the outcome of the various resolutions of investigation now pending in the House to determine whether the appropriation by State Treasurers of the accretions of interests on the public funds is sufficiently well established to warrant executive action in directing the Attorney-General to bring suit in the name of the State against ex-State Treasurers and their bondsmen for the restitution of the hundreds of thousands of dollars of interest, alleged to belong rightly to the State. He said today:

"If the investigation desired to be made result as is anticipated and I am still Acting Governor it will become my duty, as it will be my pleasure, to direct the Attorney-General to begin vigorous prosecution against all offenders, regardless of party affiliations. If it be true that $100,000 or more has been yearly appropriated as interest on public funds by State Treasurers for fourteen years then there is $1,500,000 which belongs to the people and should be refunded to the State Treasury, either by ex-Treasurers or their bondsmen."

PROCEEDINGS IN SENATE AND HOUSE.

Upper Branch of the General Assembly Establishes a Precedent.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—The Senate today adjourned until 2 p. m. Monday contrary to precedent. After the transaction of a little routine business Senator Johnson moved to adjourn to 5 p. m. Monday. Senator Wall moved to amend by adjourning under the rules, which implies until 10 a. m. Saturday. President Coppinger held that Senator Johnson's motion was in order.

"This adjournment from Friday until Monday is getting somewhat monotonous," said Senator Allen. "The committees are formed and the Senate is in working order, and I believe it is the duty of all to stay here and transact the business which may come up. I believe we ought to have a roll-call and let the people know who it is that is doing this adjourning."

The roll-call on Senator Johnson's motion resulted as follows:

This included all Senators present.

Senator Ford then moved to adjourn until 2 p. m. Monday, and amid the loud cries for the yeas and nays President Coppinger declared the Senate adjourned to that time.

The following bills were introduced:

By Manecke—To harmonize two sections of the law relating to liens which now conflict.

Coon—Two bills changing the time of the terms of court in the Twelfth Circuit, and providing for the holding of four terms of County Court in Lake County.

The House Committee on Contingent Expenses recommended the appointment of M. M. Sharp as Reading Clerk at $4 per day, but the House promptly voted down the resolution. Bills were introduced as follows:

By J. O. Anderson—The Republican Congressional reapportionment bill.

Erickson—Extending the term of office of Mayor of Chicago to four years and making him ineligible to reëlection.

Holtslaw—Making railroad companies responsible for all fires caused by sparks from their engines.

J. J. Anderson—To compel fire insurance companies to pay the assured the full face of the policy.

Chairman Fowler of the committee to investigate the Wann railroad disaster requested leave of absence for three days next week to conduct the investigation. This prompted Wiwi to move to discharge the committee and abandon the investigation, and a long discussion took place. It found few supporters, however, for on the roll-call the motion to discharge the committee was defeated by a vote of 7 yeas to 71 nays. The investigating committee was then given leave of absence for next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and the House adjourned.

Persons to Be Exempt from Jury Duty.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—A bill was introduced by Representative Clark today which provides that:

The following persons shall be exempt from serving as jurors, to wit: The Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor of Public Accounts, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Attorney-General, members of the General Assembly during their term of office, all Judges of courts, all clerks of courts, sheriffs, coroners, postmasters, mail carriers, practicing attorneys, all officers of the United States, officiating ministers of the gospel, school teachers, during their term of school, practicing physicians, registered pharmacists, while engaged in actual practice thereof, constant ferrymen, mayors of cities, policemen and active members of fire department, provided that every fireman who shall have faithfully and actively served as such in any volunteer fire department in any city of this State for the term of seven years may thereafter be exempt from serving on juries in all courts.

To Elect Senators by Popular Vote.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A member of the House proposes to introduce resolutions in that body early next week favoring the election of United States Senators by popular vote and which will hold that Illinois has led the way in that matter. The resolution will also favor Senator Palmer's constitutional amendment bearing on the subject.

WARDEN PATTEN'S DEFENSE BEGUN.

Prison Prosecution Closed Under Protest and Testimony Is Taken for Defendant.

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The investigation of the prison goes on, and today the Warden's side is being heard. The prosecution closed last night, the minority entering a protest against being cut off. Representative Lindemuth said several witnesses were anxious to appear and enter complaints. He stated he was not present when the resolution was adopted compelling the minority to close its testimony. Chairman Bingham said the minority had been granted sufficient time and it was due the other side to have a hearing. Capt. Isaac W. Saunders of Brazil, Ind., was the first witness introduced. He said he had been a convict for fifteen years. Senators Loveland and Boord had talked to him. The witness said that during Warden Patten's terms, extending over six years, cruelties had been few. He had never been punished and had never heard the Warden use violent language when questioning convicts who had been reported for punishment. The Warden had always treated the men kindly, never refusing to give them good advice. When cross-examined by Representative Lindemuth the witness said he had been paroled. His sentence had been for life and Warden Patten assisted him in securing his release. He had seen but one man punished but had probably observed four men handcuffed to cell doors. He did not know that seventeen men had been hung up by the wrists, or that thirteen men had been hung up by the thumbs during Patten's administration. Dr. C. N. Metcalf, Secretary of the State Board of Health, testified that the sanitary condition of the prison was good. Ex-Gov. Chase arrived at noon today. His testimony was favorable to Warden Patten.

Will Test Milwaukee Schools for Sewer Gas.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The Common Council held a special meeting this evening to consider the question of sewer gas which has resulted in closing five of the public schools of the city. A communication from the Board of Public Works recommending an appropriation of $15,000 to make the necessary repairs was referred to the Finance committee. However, before any repairs are authorized an expert commission, consisting of a chemist, a plumber, and a builder, is to examine the schools by order of the Council, the aldermen doubting the declaration of the Health Commissioner and Plumbing Inspector that the schools are infected with sewer gas.

DECIDED IN ADVANCE.

THAT IS WHAT PEOPLE SAY OF THE BISH-VAN PRAAG CONTEST.

Those Who Attend the Meeting of the Subcommittee of the House Committee on Elections Aver That the Proceedings Are Prejudiced—Democratic Members Refer to Van Praag's Case as "Our Side"—Indications That King and Van Praag Will Be Seated.

If the proceedings in the Bish-Van Praag election contest before the subcommittee of the House Committee on Elections at the Palmer House yesterday may be regarded as an indication of the result the full committee will recommend that the vote in the Sixteenth Precinct of the First Ward, the Eighteenth Precinct of the Second, and the First Precinct of the Third be thrown out. This course, it is said by those who have carefully figured it out, will elect William H. King and Solomon Van Praag from the Third Senatorial District.

Van Praag is also contesting the election of King, but it is claimed that this is done simply for appearance so that the House may not be accused of unseating Bish because he is a colored man. By throwing out the three precincts referred to King's plurality will be practically the same as now. The excuse can be made that both King and Bish, who are the Republican members, according to the will of the people, have been treated alike, and that it is not the fault of the House if by pursuing this course King still retains his seat and Bish was thrown out.

"But what becomes of Stephen D. May, the Democratic member from the Third District?" the question is asked.

"O, no contest was made on his seat," will be the reply. "The House cannot take notice of irregularities not brought to its attention."

The subcommittee hearing the evidence began its work in the north dining-room of the Palmer House yesterday. Joseph A. O'Donnell of Chicago is Chairman. The other statesmen are Lawrence B. Stringer of Lincoln, William H. Snyder of Belleville, James H. Watson of Ashley, Edmund O'Connell of Bloomington, and J. L. Hastings of Galesburg. O'Connell and Hastings are Republicans and the other members are Democrats. John H. Hamline and Charles S. Deneen appear as counsel for King and Bish, while Van Praag is represented by Frank H. Jones and John G. Drennen, both of Springfield.

Trying to Fasten Blame on Officials.

Dr. T. N. Jamieson, the Secretary of the Republican State committee, was present during the greater portion of the afternoon. Ed Mitchell, the Assistant Secretary, dropped in, and so did Charles A. Partridge, formerly a member of the House and also former Secretary of the committee. Ex-Ald. Vierling was also there for a while. There is an impression that the Democrats expect to secure evidence that may be used against the Federal election law. The basis of this is the close examination to which the witnesses are subjected regarding the actions of the United States Supervisors and the Deputy United States Marshals. The attorneys seem to be anxious to fasten the blame, if they can find any, upon those officials.

Only witnesses for Van Praag were examined yesterday. The ruling force of the committee, it was observed by those who heard the proceedings, was decidedly prejudiced. The Democratic members referred to Van Praag's case as "our side," which covered the suggestion to be made that they had probably decided what they would do, and O'Connell and Hastings used similar language in referring to the treatment Bish should receive.

Points in the Contest.

The proceedings were opened with the reading of the notices which Mr. Van Praag had served on Mr. King and Mr. Bish that he would contest their election. There are eight points in the contest. Briefly they are as follows: That money was used by King and Bish and others to bribe voters. That they promised to pay money to secure votes, and that persons voted for them on their promises. That they promised persons if elected to secure public office for them. That ballots illegally printed and unlawfully cast were counted for Bish and King. That ballots cast for Van Praag were counted for Bish and King. That the returns made by election officers were illegal. That both are disqualified and ineligible to hold the office. That the conduct of the election officers, Deputy United States Marshals, United States Supervisors, workers for the Republican ticket, and voters in the First Precinct of the Third Ward, the Sixteenth of the First, and the Eighteenth of the Second was so unlawful and corrupt as to render the result of the vote as counted utterly void.

After this had been read Mr. Hamline entered an objection and Mr. Jones made a statement to the committee as to what Mr. Van Praag expected to prove. William Van Buren, who is said to be a brother-in-law of Van Praag, was the first witness. His observations were confined to the Sixteenth Precinct of the First Ward. He recounted the disturbance which Constable Cronin who was acting on behalf of the Democratic County committee created when he came to the polling place about 6 o'clock in the morning with ninety-two warrants for the arrest of people whom it was claimed had no right to vote. About all that was shown by Van Buren's story of Cronin's experience was that people were allowed within 100 feet of the polling place. The polling place was at the engine-house on Taylor street, and the witness said cigars which Bish paid for were passed around.

Says He Saw Money Paid.

A colored lawyer named John G. Jones saw people within 100 feet of the polling place in the First Precinct of the Third Ward. He saw a Deputy United States Marshal direct a man how to vote, and he saw a man whose name he did not know give a man some money just before he went to vote.

Constable Cronin was the first witness after lunch. He testified that there must have been 100 people in the engine house while the polls were open. He said he had ninety-two warrants, and that the complaints were made by John O'Brien. He got his instructions from John P. Hopkins. He told about how he was arrested by a United States Marshal and how Hopkins when he went into the polling place was arrested and told of the whole day's proceedings. He saw a man go into a booth with a voter but did not know the name of either.

The liveliest witness of the day was John Fletcher, whose latest employment was that of a policeman at the Garfield Park race track. His experiences election day were confined to the Sixteenth Precinct of the First Ward.

"Did you see any one in the polling place aside from the election officers?" he was asked.

"Yes, sah. Ed Wright and Gus Hutchings."

"Who is Gus Hutchings?"

"He works for Wulff, sah."

"What was he doing there?"

"'Kurnel' Hutchings said, sah, he was thar as a 'lookout.'"

"What is that?"

"You're as much posted, sah, as I is. You knows what a 'lookout' is."

Explains What a "Lookout" Is.

The attorney professed his ignorance, and the colored witness explained: "As I understand, under the Australian system they have what dey calls 'lookouts.' Dey is watchers."

Mr. Fletcher then explained that Mr. Hutchings went into a booth and showed a voter how to vote. On the cross-examination Fletcher had a lively tilt with Attorney Deneen because the later asked him if he had served a term in the penitentiary. Fletcher is the man who was convicted of killing a man on election day in 1884 at Third avenue and Harrison street. He only received a two-year sentence and was pardoned by Gov. Oglesby after he had been at Joliet eleven months.

Zac Daniels, a colored employé of the Water Office, certified that the South Town Assessor gave Lench Wemley some money and that he and Wemley got a drink. This was at the First Precinct of the Third Ward. James M. Nash referred to the Chairman as "the guy over thar." He was explaining his business as a collector for the Recorder. He said the attorneys did not always pay the fees and it was his duty to collect them and he announced that "the guy over thar" owed $12. He had canvassed a portion of the precinct for the committee. Morris A. Gelder, a clerk in the Sixteenth Precinct, saw a Republican instructor go into a booth with a voter. On the cross-examination he said between forty and fifty suspect notices had been sent out. Cronin had warrants for ninety-two alleged illegal voters. From Eugene Barrow it was learned that people were allowed within 100 feet of the polling place in the First Precinct of the Third.

At the evening session C. L. Brewster, William Kelly, and a colored man named William Smith were examined. Smith testified that a Deputy United States Marshal at the First Precinct of the Third Ward gave him a marked ballot in the alley back of the polling place and then took him across the street and gave him a drink. He afterward voted the ballot given him. He did not know the name of the Marshal, and could not remember whether a ballot was offered him when he went to vote or whether any questions were asked. He did not know whether the ballot given him by the Deputy Marshal was a sample ballot or a regular one. The committee adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

WALL INSISTS ON RETRENCHMENT.

He Tells Wisconsin Legislators They Are Going Too Fast with Appropriations.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The Democratic Legislature received a rebuke from E. C. Wall, the party boss, today for its extravagance in appropriations. Wall appeared last evening unexpectedly and all night he had delegations of Senators and Assemblymen steered to his rooms at the Park Hotel. Mr. Wall said he was alarmed at the reckless manner in which legislation regarding appropriations was being conducted and therefore deemed it highly expedient to come here and call a halt. Bills already introduced make a raid on the treasury for over $1,000,000. The first open evidence of what was going on made its appearance in the Senate this morning in the shape of a resolution introduced by Senator Lees, providing for the appointment of a Joint Committee on Retrenchment. The introduction of such a resolution has raised another wave of trouble. Some of the members of the Committee on Legislative Expenditures are strongly inclined to take the creation of a Retrenchment committee as a reflection on them. It will be seen that the items making up this $1,000,000 and over already asked for do not begin to cover all the needs of the State. The Historical Society wants $400,000, the Agricultural Society $200,000, the normal schools $145,000, State Board of Control $150,000, State University $116,000, with an additional $90,000 as a permanent fund taken at the rate of 6 per cent from the license tax, the World's Fair Commissioners $135,000, and the State Board of Health $50,000. This is said to be nearly double the amount ever before asked for so early in the life of any Legislature. Still a large number of the members show a disposition to ignore Mr. Wall and reject his advice. They say that every dollar thus far asked for is needed; also that the Legislature is qualified to transact its business without directions from an outside boss.

BOIES WILL STAY IN IOWA.

He Refuses the Cabinet Place, but Will Be a Candidate for the Senate.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Gov. Boies has been tendered a position in Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet and has refused it. This fact leaked out today. The letter in which the honor of the portfolio of agriculture is declined was written today after consulting a few friends. The reason is that he considers it is his duty to remain in Iowa, where he can be of service to the party to which he owes all his political honors. He realizes that he is the choice of his party to lead the fight for the United States Senate, and it is his sole remaining ambition to help in that fight. There is another reason, his friends claim, which has influenced the Governor in refusing the honor of a seat in the Cabinet, and that is the health of his daughter, Miss Jessica Boies. Gov. Boies did not state all these facts in his letter to Cleveland, but they are the ones upon which the letter was based. An effort was made by his friends to have him accept, and then resign in time to make the Senatorial fight for which he would then have added prestige, but this he firmly declined to do.

RIOTOUS STRIKERS AT CHATTANOOGA.

They Fiercely Attack and Maltreat Molders Who Have Taken Their Places.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A riot occurred this evening between striking molders and the non-unionists who are filling their places at the Chattanooga Car and Foundry Works. The strikers waylaid the men as they came out of the works. Jack Ryan was the leader of the strikers, who were armed with pistols and knives. One non-unionist was cut so badly that an ambulance had to be called to haul him to his home. Several others were injured, but none seriously. Manager Jesse Evans, who is a nephew of the ex-Congressman, now next in official position to Mr. Wanamaker, was choked and roughly handled by the strikers in trying to stop the trouble.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 3.—The trial of Jack Clifford for the murder of Conners, a Pinkerton detective, was resumed this morning. Capt. John Cooper was placed on the stand and identified Clifford as one of the men he saw on the river bank at Homestead. He also said he recognized Hugh O'Donnell and Hugh Ross among those in the crowd of rioters. During the cross-examination Judge Stowe stopped the attorneys for the defense, who were seeking to show that the Pinkertons were trespassers at Homestead. The Judge said:

I won't allow such questions. These men were going to Homestead on a lawful errand and had a right to go. These rioters had no business there. Even if the Pinkertons had been going there to take that mill by force they were justified in doing so and no one has a right to dispute it in this court, and you may as well understand that just now. Such ideas as you attempt to advance never have been the law, are not the law, and I hope never will be the law. It is anarchistic to advance such sentiments, and I will allow no one to advance such ideas here.

Mr. Brennen, who had asked the objectionable questions, tried several times to reply to the Judge, but was silenced each time.

Pinkerton Capt. W. H. Burt graphically described the battle at Homestead and declared that the men on the barges did no firing until after fifteen shots had come from the crowd on shore. After this the detectives sent two volleys at those on the mill property, scattering them right and left. The witness then described the wounding of Conners. He saw Clifford just before he started to run out the gang plank. The defendant came in through a break in the fence. Several other witnesses reviewed the scenes of the riot and identified Clifford as a participant.

GOV. ALTGELD'S SHORT STOP AT MOBILE.

With Treasurer Ramsey He Views the Prettiest Parts of the City—To Bay St. Louis.

MOBILE, Ala., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Gov. Altgeld and State Treasurer R. N. Ramsey arrived today from Asheville, N. C., on their way to St. Augustine, Fla. The rest of the party went on through. The Governor and Treasurer viewed the city this afternoon, taking a carriage ride down the beautiful Bay Shell road, seven miles in length. They expressed themselves as delighted. The temperature was above 65 degrees and the ride was greatly enjoyed. Gov. Altgeld and Mr. Ramsey left on the 2 p. m. train for Bay St. Louis, Miss. They will remain there a day or so and then proceed on their journey.

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—John P. Altgeld, Governor of Illinois, left Mobile this afternoon and arrived before dark. He has taken comfortable quarters and may remain here several days. There are a large number of Chicagoans wintering at this and neighboring points on the coast, and they will make the Governor as comfortable as possible.

FIFTY MILES OF RIVER ICE GORGE.

Imminent Danger to Ohio Craft from Floating Icebergs.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A big gorge from above reached here tonight and at this hour every effort is being made to save the three wharf boats. The gorge is fifty miles long and in some places thirty feet thick. The grinding is heard above all other sounds and is terrifying. Seventy-five coal barges, many of them loaded, are imbedded in the frozen mass and will not be loosened until far down towards Cairo.

SHAWNEETOWN, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The government gauge marks twenty feet, a rise of over eleven feet within three days. The river is still rising two inches an hour. The heavy ice from Cincinnati gorges began passing here yesterday. All business was suspended but no damage has yet been done to water craft.

BAIT FOR DEMOCRATS.

HARRISON'S SCHEME IN NOMINATING JUDGE JACKSON.

By Promoting Him to the Supreme Bench He Would Secure to Republicans a Prominent Circuit Judgeship—Certain Republican Senators Would Not Support a Straightout Nominee of Their Party—Belknap Secures an Order in His Favor from the Michigan Court.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—There are many inquiries as to the reasons which led President Harrison to appoint a Democrat to succeed the late Justice Lamar on the Supreme bench. The statement comes very direct that he was led to do this because of Republican opposition to his making any nomination, and the responsibility for the failure to nominate a Republican is said to lie upon the twelve Republicans in the Senate who were determined to oppose any confirmation proposed by the President. It was at first his intention to nominate either Judge Emery Speer or Judge Pardee. On making inquiries among the Republican Senators as to which would be the most likely to secure a ready nomination he discovered that there were about twelve Republican Senators who would oppose any confirmation, partly on account of their personal antagonism to the President and partly on account of their desire to bring other matters to the front in the Senate.

At first, on discovering this, Mr. Harrison decided that he would not send in any nomination. He held to this purpose until the afternoon of yesterday, when he became convinced that a Democrat might be confirmed with the aid of Democratic Senators. He then decided to send in the nomination of Judge Jackson, who he believed could be confirmed, and whose confirmation would give a very important Circuit Judgeship to be filled.

The Republican Senators who opposed his making the appointment will probably try to prevent confirmation, and there appears to be a strong probability that they may succeed, unless advantage be taken of the custom of "Senatorial courtesy," which discountenances delay in action on the nomination of an ex-Senator. The matter will be forced to the front with promptness. If confirmation is secured promptly it is expected that the President will nominate Judge W. O. Bradley of Kentucky, who is one of the prominent leaders of the Southern Republicans and was prominently spoken of at Minneapolis for the nomination for the Vice-Presidency, to succeed Judge Jackson on the Circuit bench. The fact that Judge Jackson was favored by Justice Brown of the Supreme bench, and Judge Taft of the Circuit bench, and by President Harrison's brother, if a Republican could not be confirmed, had some influence in inducing the appointment of Judge Jackson under the existing circumstances.

At a meeting of the Senate Judiciary committee today there was some opposition to the nomination of Judge Jackson. As far as can be learned the opposition does not touch Judge Jackson's reputation or fitness, or even his Democracy, but is based on an objection founded on principle, the Democrats having taken the position that it was not proper for an outgoing President to fill life places of such importance. There is no question that Senators on both sides of the chamber are deeply concerned by the probability of the nomination of a Republican Circuit Judge to succeed Jackson, the Democrats being determined in advance to resist the installation of a Republican on a Southern circuit and the Republicans fearing that they will have a hard struggle to confirm such a nomination at this late stage of the session.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 3.—The Times of this morning says:

But can Judge Jackson afford to accept this appointment in the present situation? As advised at this time of writing we say, as Judge Jackson's friend, most emphatically no. That petitions have been circulated for the last few days since Justice Lamar's death asking Judge Jackson's appointment by Republicans cannot be denied. This, with other well-grounded rumors in this connection, justifies the belief freely expressed that Judge Jackson's appointment is not made on its merits. Two reasons are assigned: First, the President wants to make a place for his law partner, Attorney-General Miller, who would be made Judge of a circuit which takes in the field of the President's law practice; second, to get Judge Jackson out of the way, so that partisan use can be made of election machinery and so that Republicans can be placed in all offices within the appointing power of the Circuit Judge.

SUPREME COURT FAVORS BELKNAP.

Michigan Judges Decide an Election Board Exceeded Its Authority.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The Democratic majority on the Board of Canvassers of Ionia County deliberately waited until the recount of the vote cast for Congressman in Kent County at the last election and then threw out enough votes which were cast for Congressman Charles E. Belknap, the Republican, to make it appear that his Democratic opponent, George F. Richardson, had a plurality of ten in the district. On this showing the Democratic State Board of Canvassers issued a certificate of election to Richardson, who promptly filed it with the Clerk of the National House of Representatives. Belknap thereupon asked the Supreme Court for a mandamus to compel the Ionia canvassers to reconvene and canvass the vote as shown by the original returns, which gave him a plurality of ten. The court further orders the State canvassers, upon receiving the new returns from Ionia County, to reconvene and issue a certificate of election to Congressman Belknap.

Notices were given in the Senate today of bills abolishing days of grace, fixing the tax on express companies doing business in Michigan at 3 per cent of their net earnings; providing for the relief of the Supreme Court by increasing the number of Judges from five to ten; prohibiting foreign agents of insurance companies authorized to do business in Michigan from soliciting business in this State; and amending the act creating the Michigan World's Fair Commission. The object of the last named bill is supposed to be the abolishment of the present commission, although this cannot be definitely ascertained, as its author, Senator McGinley, refused to tell just what its provisions are.

The House passed the bumboat bill, and ordered an investigation into the official conduct of Supt. Thomas Hill of the Capitol Building and grounds, who is accused of malfeasance.

Gov. Rich has approved the bill repealing the Miner electoral law.

THURSTON GOT THE PARTY VOTE.

A Republican Prevents More Than One Ballot—Withdrawal of the Populist.

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—It was among the possibilities that a Republican Senator might have been elected today if it had not been for the unreasonable and unaccountable action of Representative Wardlaw of Gage County. It was the Republican plan to have three ballots today, and the supposition was that Thurston would have gained steadily until his election was accomplished. When the first ballot had been announced, which gave Thurston sixty-one votes, lacking only five of an election, Representative Watson moved that the convention take two more ballots and then adjourn. Mr. Sheridan, a Populist, moved to adjourn. On this motion the roll was called and the vote stood 66 to 65, Mr. Wardlaw voting with the Populists. His action was a surprise to everybody. A number of Republican members flocked around him and urged him to change his vote, but this he persistently refused to do, and the joint convention adjourned. The Democrats all voted for Democrats today. The Populists had an open meeting in the corridors of the Lindell Hotel this evening and W. L. Greene, their nominee for Senator, withdrew, and in a severely caustic speech paid his respects to Messrs. Dale, Dysart, Stevens, and Kruse, who refused to vote for him. These in turn roasted him and a general row was imminent, when peace came through the interposition of the Chaplain of the House.

CASEY LEAVES THE RACE.

He Withdraws, but North Dakota Republicans Are Still Unable to Unite.

BISMARCK, N. D., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Late last night the call for a Republican caucus, two-thirds to nominate and Casey to withdraw from the race, was signed by forty-two Republicans and this morning by eight more. Republicans then went into joint session, allowed one ballot, and adjourned to hold the caucus. On this ballot the Republicans scattered the fifty-one votes present among seven candidates, Casey receiving eighteen. For the first time the Populists joined with the Democrats and voted for Roach, the regular Democratic caucus nominee, giving him thirty-nine votes. The scheme was to obtain Republican votes enough from his own county of Grand Forks to elect, and but for the morning conference it is likely the scheme would have been successful. Some Republicans have advocated election of no person, thus leaving the Governor to appoint, which appointment would hold only for two years. They would prefer this rather than have a Democrat elected for six years.

At the caucus this afternoon forty-nine Republicans were present. Senator Casey formally withdrew from the contest. Eight ballots were taken. On the seventh ballot ex-Gov. Ordway received sixteen votes, dropping down to five on ninth ballot. Kingman and Worst came next, the former receiving ten and the latter eight.

Twenty ballots were taken at the night sessions, but the votes were badly split up.

REPUBLICANS SHOW THEIR STRENGTH

They Give J. C. Davis Within Two Votes of Enough to Elect.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The Republicans forced the fighting in the joint session today by casting twenty-two votes for J. C. Davis of Rawlins. This was the entire Republican strength, and could two more votes have been secured Davis would have been United States Senator. This spurt of the Republicans has been the sensation of the session, and has proved to the Democrats that they must close a deal with the Populists. Davis is a popular merchant living at Rawlins. The Republicans held a caucus tonight, at which it was agreed to hereafter ballot for all candidates in order as shown by their strength. Senator Warren received 20 votes, Congressman Clark 19, Surveyor-General Richards 18, J. W. Mondell 19, De Forrest Richards 15, Col. Downey 17. These names were submitted to the Populists and they were told that they could name any man on the list and he would get the united vote of the Republicans providing he could get enough Populists to elect. The Democrats have done the same thing, and have submitted four names to the People's party. No answer has yet come to either party, but both Republicans and Democrats expect to hear from them tomorrow morning. Judge O'Connor, the Chairman of the Populist State Central committee, said tonight that no man yet named by the Democrats or Republicans can get the Populist votes.

TO PREVENT BLINDNESS IN INFANTS.

Minnesota Senator Introduces Such a Measure—To Tax Sleeping-Cars.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A bill was introduced in the Senate by Bell today to prevent blindness in infants. It provides that if the eyes of the babes are inflamed three weeks after birth it shall be the duty of nurse, midwife, or parent to report the same to the Health Commissioner under penalty of a fine of $100. Senator Davis introduced a bill to fix rates to be charged for the use of telephones. Other bills introduced: By Dean, for a new Capitol, limiting the cost to $2,000,000; by S. D. Peterson, to regulate the receipt, storage, and shipment of grain at elevators on the right of way of railroads and providing for the erection of public grain warehouses and elevators and for condemnation proceedings; by Glader, to regulate the carrying of freight and charges thereon; by Keller, fixing the capital of State banks in proportion to population.

In the House Horton introduced a bill for the taxation of sleeping car companies. It provides for a 3 per cent tax on the gross earnings of the companies. Roach introduced a bill limiting the amount of interest pawnbrokers may collect on loans to 10 per cent per annum. Among the other new bills is a measure to authorize the organization of companies to insure firms against bad debts.

WILL NOT CONSOLIDATE SCHOOLS.

Montana Legislators Decide to Keep State Seats of Learning at Various Towns.

HELENA, Mont., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The most important question of State policy that will come before the present session of the Legislature has been practically decided. It was whether or not the State educational institutions should be consolidated in one great university or divided into some half-dozen different schools and located at as many different places. The advocates of the latter policy have triumphed, and it is practically settled now that the university will be located at Missoula, the Agricultural College at Bozeman, the School of Mines at Butte, and the State Normal School at Dillon. Great Falls offered a site of 320 acres and a cash endowment of $100,000 if the consolidated schools should be located at that place. The Federal Government endowed the various schools of Montana with an aggregate of over 600,000 acres of land lying within the State, which in the course of time will be worth several millions of dollars.

RESUBMISSIONISTS LOSE VOTES.

The Anti-Local Option Men in South Dakota Prevent Reconsideration.

PIERRE, S. D., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Immediately after the roll-call in the House today Mr. Hooper, leader of the anti-local option forces, moved that the House adjourn and the motion was carried. The object of the adjournment was to prevent Mr. Fowler from making a motion to reconsider the local option bill which was defeated yesterday. The vote on adjournment showed a loss of two votes to the resubmissionists since yesterday. Another test vote came up in the Senate on radical railroad legislation, when it refused by an emphatic vote to recall from the Committee on Railroads a bill fixing the maximum passenger rates at three cents a mile and placing other restrictions on railroads. A bill was introduced in the Senate making changes in the law requiring publication of insurance statements. Mr. Crill's bill for one Railroad Commissioner, with power to suggest rates, repairs, and other matters, will come up next Monday afternoon under a special order.

For Sunday Opening of Saloons.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 3.—A bill has been introduced in the Assembly providing for the submission at the next fall election of the question of opening saloons Sunday after 1 p. m. in the City of New York to a vote of the people, and if the decision is favorable the Corporation Counsel of New York is to report a bill to the next Legislature which shall permit such opening.

Gen. Keifer for Judge Jackson's Place.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The friends here of Gen. J. Warren Keifer, ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives, started a boom here today for him for the Circuit Judgeship vacated by Judge Jackson. A strong belief prevails that he will be the appointee.

North Carolina Favors the Canal.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Both houses of the Legislature today unanimously adopted resolutions instructing North Carolina's Senators and Representatives in Congress to vote for the Nicaragua canal bill and to work earnestly to secure its passage.

Prof. Baldwin Confirmed as a Judge.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 3.—Prof. Baldwin's nomination for Judge of the Supreme Court has been confirmed by the House in concurrence with the Senate.

Legislative Notes.

The forty-sixth ballot for Senator was taken in the Washington Legislature yesterday without change.

The bill appropriating $30,000 for Idaho's World's Fair exhibit passed the Idaho Senate yesterday.

The Oregon Democratic State Central Committee passed resolutions in which the position of Gov. Pennoyer as respects President Cleveland was freely condemned.

Value of the Corser Assets.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—An affidavit of the value of the property in the assignment of E. S. Corser was filed this afternoon with the Clerk of Courts. The property consists largely of incumbered real estate, which, carried until there is a fair demand at fair prices, would, it is claimed, yield above the mortgage incumbrance $600,000. But the cash value of the estate, based on what property would now bring at an assignee's sale at the present condition of real estate does not, it is set forth, exceed $200,000. This affidavit is filed for the purpose of fixing the assignee's bond, which is for $400,000, and is signed by James A. Byrnes and Samuel Hill for the St. Paul and Minneapolis Trust company.

FIFTEEN TO SEVEN.

DEMOCRATIC PLAN OF CONGRESSIONAL APPORTIONMENT.

The Scheme That Seems to Have the Best Chance of Adoption by the Majority Party of the General Assembly Gives Cook and Lake Seven Districts, Five of Which Are to Be Democratic—Of the Others Only Five Are Republican—Cook and Lake Counties Carefully Guarded.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—According to the latest Democratic Congressional apportionment scheme Illinois is to be divided so as to make fifteen Democratic districts and but seven Republican districts. The plan has been all mapped out by Secretary Nelson at the instance of the Democratic members of the House and Senate Committees on Congressional Apportionment. It has been submitted and has met with the approval of the committeemen. The scheme will probably be presented to the Democratic caucus next Thursday and adopted without material change.

The redistricting of Cook County, with which Lake is to be connected Congressionally, cannot be obtained, and all that is known about it is that it provides for five Democratic and two Republican districts. The redistricting of the State outside of Cook and Lake Counties is as follows:

Eighth District—Du Page, Kendall, Kane, McHenry, DeKalb, Boone, and Winnebago; population, 205,030.

Ninth—Jo Daviess, Stephenson, Ogle, Lee, Carroll, Bureau, Putnam, and Stark; population, 179,412.

Tenth—Will, Grundy, La Salle, and Marshall; population, 177,482.

Eleventh—Whiteside, Henry, Rock Island, Mercer, and Knox; population, 163,405.

Twelfth—Warren, Henderson, McDonough, Hancock, Adams, and Brown; population, 164,370.

Thirteenth—Peoria, Fulton, Schuyler, Cass, and Morgan; population, 178,101.

Fourteenth—Livingston, Woodford, McLean, Tazewell, and Mason; population, 168,543.

Fifteenth—Vermillion, Champaign, Ford, Iroquois, and Kankakee; population, 172,998.

Sixteenth—Menard, Sangamon, Logan, De Witt, Macon, and Piatt; population, 171,963.

Seventeenth—Pike, Scott, Calhoun, Jersey, Greene, Macoupin, and Madison; population, 185,472.

Eighteenth—Edgar, Douglas, Coles, Moultrie, Shelby, Christian, and Montgomery; population, 180,755.

Nineteenth—Clark, Crawford, Lawrence, Richland, Jasper, Cumberland, Effingham, Clay, and Fayette; population, 162,022.

Twentieth—Wabash, Edwards, White, Hamilton, Wayne, Franklin, Jefferson, and Marion; population, 174,156.

Twenty-first—Washington, Clinton, Gallatin, Hardin, Bond, St. Clair, Monroe, and Randolph; population, 173,323.

Twenty-second—Jackson, Marion, Alexander, Pulaski, Massac, Pope, Saline, Johnson, and Williamson; population, 163,186.

The Republican districts are to be the Eighth, Ninth, Eleventh, Fifteenth, and Twenty-second. The other districts, on the basis of the vote last fall, will be safely Democratic. The Eighth is more than 30,000 above the Congressional ratio for the State, and the suggestion has been made that Kane County, which has a population of 64,000, be made part of one of the Cook County districts, and that Lake County, which has a population of only 24,000, be put in the Eighth District in its stead. This would bring the population of the district only 8,000 under the ratio. In order to make the Peoria district Democratic some juggling had to be done. The process had to be repeated in order to make a district for "Andy" Hunter, which would not include Congressman Fithian. The Egyptians have not given up the job of limiting Cook County's representation in the next Congress to be elected to six members.

NO SYMPATHY FOR THE RAILROADS.

Motion to Discharge the Wann Investigating Committee Voted Down.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The short debate in the House this morning growing out of the motion of Representative Wiwi to discharge the committee appointed to investigate the Wann disaster proved quite plainly that that body has little sympathy with railroad corporations and that it is prepared to pass measures to guard the lives of the people against recklessness and niggardliness. The members, as a rule, have little confidence in investigating committees and when Wiwi moved to discharge the Wann committee on the ground that it was not different from other investigating committees, and that they are all suspicious and somewhat of humbugs, there was some sympathy with him, and had not the motion for discharge been promptly put it might have carried.

Judge Callahan, in whom every member has confidence, in a few sentences presented the matter to the House in a different light. He said part of the function of the General Assembly was to pass laws for the protection of human life. The Wann disaster should be investigated so that facts might be ascertained on which protective legislation could be based. The suggestion that the Coroner's jury investigation was sufficient was ridiculed. His experience was that Coroners' juries usually placed the responsibility for disasters such as the Wann affair upon the victims, who could not refute the verdict. He had no partiality for investigating committees, but the Wann committee ought to be continued and given every facility for its work.

Representative Kent, speaking from his experience as a Deputy Coroner, corroborated what Mr. Callahan had said about Coroners' juries. Mr. Johnson, one of the Democratic leaders, supported the motion to discharge the committee after this, but he found only six supporters.

Representative Nohe was jubilant over the division and said: "I think my bill repealing the $5,000 limit for human life taken by railroad companies will be passed by this House by an overwhelming majority."

Judge Callahan is preparing a bill to compel railroads to use some device to prevent accidents arising from persons having their feet caught in switches and between the guard-rails and the switches.

White Swelling and Scrofula Cured.

"I write this simply because I feel it a duty to humanity, so that others affected as my son was MAY KNOW HOW TO BE CURED. When he was 7 years old a white swelling came on his right leg below the knee, drawing his leg up at right angles, and causing him intense suffering. He could not walk and I considered him

A Confirmed Cripple.

The swelling was lanced and discharged freely. At length we decided to take him to Cincinnati for a surgical operation. He was so weak and poor we gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla to build up his strength. To OUR GREAT SURPRISE, not only gave strength but caused the sore, after discharging several pieces of bone, to entirely heal up. His leg straightened out, and he now runs everywhere, as lively as any boy." J. L. McMURRAY, Notary Public, Ravenswood, W. Va.

SHARPERS AT WORK.

CONFIDENCE MEN INFEST THE WORLD'S FAIR APPROACHES.

They Are Said to Be Members of the Same Gang That Was Driven Away Some Time Ago—A Reporter's Experience—A Boat Gets Stuck in the Draw of a Railroad Bridge and Blocks Traffic—First Death from Smallpox Occurs at the Pest House.

Sharks of the confidence, sandbagging variety are once more plying their trade in the neighborhood of the World's Fair grounds. Some time ago they were driven from their haunts, but citizens acquainted with them and their methods claim that the original gang, with several additions, is back again. These people are not allowed inside the World's Fair grounds, so they lay for their victims along Lake avenue and the loop of the cable cars. The favorite method of operation is to meet innocent-looking strangers and offer to sell them admission tickets to the Fair grounds at a reduced price. If the proposed victim "bites" he is taken into a back room of a saloon near by and induced to enter into a quiet little game at which he is "sure to win."

There is another scheme which often succeeds. It was investigated by a reporter for THE TRIBUNE yesterday. Walking down Lake avenue from Fifty-fifth street, gazing at everything in sight, he was not long in finding that several seedy individuals who had passed him were exchanging signs with others some distance down the street. Arriving at Fifty-sixth street the "sucker" was stopped by a man who asked if the "gentleman was going to the Fair grounds." Being informed that he was and that he did not know where the gates were, the man pleasantly remarked that he was also a stranger, and he would like to accompany the reporter to the grounds. Before doing so, however, "would the gentleman be so kind as to accompany him a few doors north, where he wished to deliver a personal letter to Col. Seipp, a leading business-man in those parts."

The man and the "sucker" went to what is called the "ladies' entrance" at the side of the Bakowski saloon on Lake avenue, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth streets. This "entrance" is a large hall with several doors and a stairway. Col. Seipp lived up-stairs. Col. Seipp was found in a fairly comfortable room, and very much pleased to meet his visitors. He was a man about 50 years old, with gray hair and beard and a nose that represents several fortunes in the coloring. He is said to have a national reputation as a confidence operator. He was, apparently, chief of the Lake avenue gang.

After a brief visit with the Colonel the first "roper-in" called the attention of the reporter to a partly open door leading from the room. Through this opening could be seen tables and men playing cards. The next act in the comedy was to entice the "sucker" into a game of draw. The hint in regard to new regions to explore was taken.

Arriving at the door of the den the man was greeted as follows: "Naw ye don't! Youse a chump! Dat's a 'porter for de paper! I driv 'im onct to a fire."

That settled it. Denials were of no use, and the thermometer immediately took a tumble in the chilly atmosphere. The reporter was allowed to find the gate to the World's Fair grounds alone.

While the sharpers do a profitable business they dress as near like farmers as possible. Nearly every day the officials at the Fair grounds are told of farmers caught by these people. At any time of day these "con" men can be seen along Lake avenue. Their haunts are the center saloons in the block on Lake avenue between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth streets. Their old quarters were over the "Denver" saloon, but since that was raided several places have been used. They disappear at nights, when their "game" ceases to travel. There are said to be seven members in the gang, for which "Col. Seipp" does the brain work.

ALL TRAFFIC BLOCKED FOR HOURS.

A Boat Gets Stuck in the Draw of a Bridge and an Engine Jumps the Track.

For eight hours yesterday traffic on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago was blocked by a steamer grounding at the Fort Wayne railroad bridge, and for two hours last evening the Fort Wayne, Chicago and Western Indiana, Wabash, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Erie and Grand Trunk were delayed by a switch engine straddling the rails at Twenty-second and Stewart avenue, and completely blocking three main lines.

About 3:30 p. m. the steamer William F. Sauber, Capt. Peterson, Chicago to Buffalo, grounded just as the bow passed the middle of the open Fort Wayne bridge. The vessel was laden with wheat, and stuck fast. The water in the river is unusually low at this time, and a week ago an attempt to bring the big boat through on the north side of the bridge had failed. At the time the Sauber grounded the Lindsay and Fryer were being taken through the north channel, and they were abandoned temporarily to enable the tug forces to clear the Sauber.

As it grew dark and colder the railroad and river men decided that additional assistance and more substantial material was necessary, and sent out a call for help. All this time the Fort Wayne had been using the Chicago and Western Indiana tracks for its trains. At 7 o'clock in the evening, when all the lines were heavily pressed, a Fort Wayne switch engine pulling a train across at Twenty-second street and Stewart avenue jumped the track, and for two hours all traffic was completely blocked. At 9 o'clock the engine was pulled around to clear two tracks and traffic was resumed.

Down at the bridge things froze up, until at 9:30 the Chicago and Western Indiana wrecking train arrived from Fifty-fifth street, and at 11 o'clock traffic was resumed over the bridge.

DEATH RESULTS FROM SMALLPOX.

First Fatal Case Is That of Nathaniel Graham—Remaining Patients Improving.

Nathaniel Graham, the smallpox patient taken to the pesthouse from the County Hospital Jan. 24, died last night at 8:45 o'clock. The man was conscious up to a short time before his death, but had been unable to speak since the second day after being taken to the pesthouse. There is not the slightest doubt that death was due to smallpox, and further than that the case is considered to have been of the most malignant type. Dr. Hayt was with the patient during the last two days, and said last night Graham's case was the worst he had ever seen.

Dr. Hayt sent a telegram to a sister of the dead man, Miss Maud Graham, who is matron of the Kingston, Ont., jail. He then made arrangements for Graham's burial in Calvary Cemetery at 10 o'clock last night.

Graham's was the first fatal case of smallpox of the present invasion. The man was found lying on the sidewalk in front of No. 134 South Halsted street Jan. 23 and was taken to the County Hospital. Drs. Hessard and Thomas made an examination of the case when admitted to the hospital and thought the symptoms were similar to those of smallpox. The patient was put in an isolated ward until the following day, when Dr. Garrott of the Health Department was called in. The case was pronounced to be smallpox and Graham was sent to the pesthouse.

Dr. Hayt said last night that the other cases at the pesthouse were doing well.

It was not until midnight that the body was finally deposited in the cemetery. It was placed in a zinc-lined coffin and conveyed to the grave in an ambulance accompanied only by Inspector Hayt and Officer Morris. The room in which Graham died, and all the persons connected with the case were subjected to a thorough disinfection.

At the grave the burial service was read by Inspector Hayt.

IT IS TWENTY YEARS OLD TODAY.

The "Northwestern Lumberman" Celebrates with an Anniversary Number.

The twentieth year of the Northwestern Lumberman, the leading lumber trade journal of the United States, will be celebrated today by the issue of an anniversary number, an advance copy of which was received yesterday by THE TRIBUNE. It is an illustrated paper of 128 pages, eighty-eight of which are taken up by advertising. The cover is illustrated with a series of pen and ink sketches showing the paper's growth from its humble beginning in 1873 to its present standing in 1893. The frontispiece is a full page half-tone portrait of the founder—who is also the editor and publisher—W. B. Judson. Several pages, profusely illustrated with half-tone portraits, are devoted to a history of the trials and tribulations and successes of the paper. On page 7 are reproductions of the eight leading lumber trade journals of the country, with portraits in the center of each of their several editors. The remainder of the news pages are devoted to the regular matter of the Lumberman, together with special features appropriate to the occasion, and are profusely illustrated in half-tone.

MEETS FOR THE FIRST TIME.

New Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners Transacts Business.

Messrs. Gahan, Lafe, and Cantrell, the new Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners, held their first meeting in Chicago yesterday forenoon at their headquarters in the Insurance Exchange Building. All the members were present, with Mr. Paddock still acting as Secretary. The meeting was a regular monthly one. Nothing was transacted but routine business. Several bills were examined and passed and accounts were audited. The board will probably meet again this morning at 10 o'clock.

Cross-Examined Its Own Witness.

George Bostwick was the only witness examined in the Dalton case yesterday. He was Dalton's servant and had been subpœnaed by the State, but was not asked to testify. Mr. Prendergast had several motions to make. The first two related to the striking out of certain testimony and were overruled, as was also a motion for the discharge of the prisoner on the ground of the evidence being insufficient. Then a fourth was made requiring the prosecution to place Bostwick on the stand. Judge McConnell called the witness and examined him himself on behalf of the State. Then the unusual spectacle was presented of the State cross-examining its own witness for the purpose of discrediting his testimony. The evidence of Bostwick sustained the theory of the defense and was in direct contradiction of the testimony of the Japanese servant upon the same subject.

Makes an Appeal for Aid.

The Chicago Relief and Aid Society wishes to remind its friends who have heretofore contributed and all citizens who are willing to help care for families in temporary distress that it is in need of money. The need is pressing at this time. The long continued cold weather, preventing outside work and requiring increased supply of bedding, clothing, fuel, and food, compels many respectable and self-supporting people to seek help in this emergency. There is also much sickness among children of the poor, and suffering will ensue unless relief is promptly given. Checks may be sent payable to the order of Ernest A. Hamill, treasurer, or to any of the directors personally known to the giver.

Ejected Them from the House.

Michael J. O'Brien, a saloonkeeper at No. 935 West Madison street, appeared before Justice Scully yesterday to answer to a charge of assault and battery brought by Mrs. Mary Halverson, No. 1205 West Madison street. Mrs. Halverson testified that Dec. 31 she called upon Mrs. Harp, who was the housekeeper at O'Brien's residence. While she was in Mrs. Harp's room she claims that O'Brien came in and forcibly ejected her from the house. O'Brien said that the two women were making so much noise that he was compelled to go up to the room and tell them to keep quiet; they refused to keep quiet, and he stated that he then ejected both of them from the house. Justice Scully fined him $5 and costs.

Weatherwax Probably Not Murdered.

Walter S. Weatherwax, a collector for a morning newspaper, was found dead last Wednesday morning in an area way at the foot of a flight of stairs at Jackson and Canal streets. At the inquest Officer Hennesy of the Desplaines Street Station testified that he found no marks of violence. J. P. Eames, who identified the body, said Weatherwax had been in his employ as a solicitor. The jury rendered a verdict that the man probably fell down the stairs, was stunned by the fall, and then froze to death. This was Mr. Eames' view. Some persons suspected that he was murdered. Dr. Vaughan made an examination of a fracture of the scull and said he thought it was caused by the fall. The case was then dropped.

Charged with Stealing Knives.

Frank Hood and Frank Schroeder went into Treleasen's cutlery store, No. 76 State street, about 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. No one was in the place at the time except the colored porter, and, it is claimed, Hood engaged him in conversation while Schroeder smashed a showcase and stole fifty knives. Detectives Collins and Norton found the men selling the knives at Clark and Van Buren streets yesterday and placed them under arrest. Afterwards the officers located some of the stolen cutlery in a pawn-shop at No. 296 Clark street and they arrested the proprietor, S. Bowasb, charging him with receiving stolen property.

Gave a Reception and Ball.

The Young Women's Shoe Operatives' Union gave a reception and ball last night at Madison Hall, Madison and Union streets, attended by 200 couples. Supper was served at midnight, and dancing continued until daylight. These are the young women who last summer struck at Selz, Schwab & Co.'s factory. The officers are Frances McNamara, President; Mary McCarthy, Vice-President; Rena Doeing and Fanny Jones, Secretaries; Emma Steghagen, Treasurer.

Held for Burglary.

The three men arrested last Monday night by the Desplaines street police for an alleged attempt to open the safe in the coal office of W. P. Rend & Co. at Sangamon and Lake streets were arraigned before Justice Blume yesterday on charges of burglary. Justice Blume held them to the Criminal Court in $500 bonds. Thomas Moriarity, the watchman, who was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct, was released.

For Stealing "Tribunes."

William Gee, a North Side resident, has been losing his TRIBUNE of late so often that he laid in wait for the thief and after several days of watching caught a 17-year-old boy, Charles Brown, with some thirty or forty copies of the paper in his possession. Mr. Gee called Officer Moore and the boy was taken to the station and from there sent to the bridewell on a $10 fine by Justice Lyon.

Under the Station's Eaves.

Burglars last night forced an entrance to the barber-shop of A. Levy on Desplaines street, near Randolph, and carried off $50 worth of tools and $5 in cash. The place is almost opposite and in full view of the Desplaines Street Station. An entrance was obtained by breaking in a large pane of glass in the front window, after which the men lighted the gas and searched the place. They escaped without having been observed.

Recovered $3,000 Damages.

Stephan C. Attkisson, who brought suit against the Fair for $25,000 damages for false imprisonment, was awarded $3,000 by the jury in Judge Bunn's court yesterday. Attkisson had been given into custody by the Fair people on the supposition that he had stolen the lid of a kettle. The Fair discovered that Attkisson had not stolen the lid and withdrew the prosecution. Attkisson brought suit in the United States Circuit Court.

George Howland Club Meeting.

The George Howland club will meet at the Sherman House this afternoon and dinner will be served at 1 o'clock sharp. The question for discussion is: "What the Public Schools Should Teach." The speakers for the occasion are Franklin H. Head and Rabbi E. G. Hirsch.

Fire in Gov. Altgeld's Building.

Fire broke out in the sixteenth floor of the Unity Building in a pile of lumber and rubbish last night. A still alarm brought one engine and an insurance patrol wagon to the building. The fire was put out by chemical extinguishers.

New Englewood Episcopal Church.

The opening service in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church, at the corner of Stewart avenue and North Normal Parkway, Englewood, will be held Sunday afternoon at 3:30 p. m. The new edifice cost over $30,000.

Items.

George C. Gunderson, a retail coal dealer at Nos. 554 and 556 West Lake street, made a voluntary assignment yesterday. The schedules show assets of $2,000 and liabilities of $3,000.

James H. Walker & Co. deny that they have been victimised by Lily Gannon. They say she presented a check for $40 in payment for $30 worth of goods, but that she got neither goods nor money from them. The firm gave the information which led to her arrest.

While standing on the footboard of a Milwaukee avenue grip car yesterday Charles Hennich was knocked off by a wagon at the intersection of Halsted and Indiana streets. When picked up he was unconscious and was removed to his home, No. 809 Milwaukee avenue.

Charles Kenny, a canvasser living at No. 349 Wabash avenue, was knocked down by a Parmelee 'bus at State and Jackson streets yesterday. He was crossing the street, and owing to the slippery condition of the pavement was unable to escape the vehicle. The driver was arrested. Kenny was cut about the face and badly bruised.

E. P. Marsh was appointed receiver yesterday of the Albert Botsford company, a spice concern at No. 96 West Randolph street. Thursday Willis Smith filed a creditor's bill against the company for over $14,000 and alleged that the company had allowed its charter to run out and failed to have it renewed. The receiver was required to give a bond of $10,000.

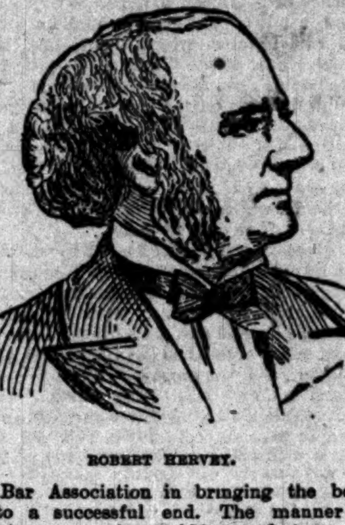
FOR ROBERT HERVEY.

BENEFIT BY THE BAR ASSOCIATION AND SCOTTISH ASSEMBLY.

Three Thousand Persons Gather at the Auditorium to Testify to Their Appreciation of the Lifelong Labors of an Honest Man—D. M. Kirton and A. Gordon Murray Speak of Services of the Beneficiary—His Career as an Attorney in Chicago—His Misfortune.

Three thousand persons attended the complimentary benefit for Robert Hervey at the Auditorium last night and testified their friendship for the old lawyer in their cheering of the encomiums showered upon his name by D. M. Kirton, the Chairman of the joint committee, who spoke in his behalf.

The proposed benefit to Mr. Hervey met with generous responses from members of the Bar Association when it was first suggested, and the Scottish Assembly, of which he was a former President, named a committee to act with a similar committee from the Bar Association in bringing the benefit to a successful end. The manner of carrying out the self-imposed task was shown in last night's performance at the Auditorium. Every seat on the main floor and balcony, every box, and many seats in the second balcony were filled. In the audience were many Judges and jurists who had been beginners in the profession of law when he stood at its head. They had come to honor their old-time friend and to help the movement in his behalf.



ROBERT HERVEY.

"Rob Roy" was presented with the same cast as in its production on the anniversary of Burns' birth, with scenes from the "Pageant of Nations" and dancing in costume. A. Gordon Murray, President of the Scottish Assembly, made a brief introductory address stating the object of the benefit and explaining the performance to follow.

The scenery for the production of "Rob Roy" was excellently arranged, and the cast included some clever amateurs. There were several bits of realism that caught the audience.

Mr. Hervey Too Ill to Attend.

D. M. Kirton made a short address on behalf of Mr. Hervey. He said Mr. Hervey had written him at a late hour to say he was too ill to attend the benefit himself and thanking all his friends for the interest they were taking in his welfare. Passing to a review of Mr. Hervey's life, he said in doing honor to him they did honor to the urbanity, the learning, and the graciousness which he personified. Theirs was homage done to merit. He had been the beau ideal lawyer, combining fluency of diction, force of eloquence, and lucidity of logic. He had gone into the court-room with the power of learned eloquence, and not with the bludgeon of ignorance. Long after he had left this world his memory would be kept green and his many kind acts held in grateful remembrance.

Further along in the program D. R. Goudie delivered an address on Robert Burns, in which he interpolated some of Burns' poetry. The production of "Rob Roy," with the dancing, kept the audience until after 11:30 o'clock.

The scenes from the "Pageant of Nations" were received with particular favor by the audience. These included chorus and tableau march, fisher's hornpipe by twelve small boys in white sailor costumes, Persian dances, the Highland fling, gypsy dances, Irish jigs, and a "Peek-a-boo" dance by twelve girls ranging from 5 to 10 years.

An Old Resident of Chicago.

Born in the old City of Glasgow, Scotland, in 1820, Robert Hervey has always kept green and fresh his love for "Auld Scotia." In fact, although a resident of Chicago for more than forty years, Mr. Hervey did not renounce his allegiance to Queen Victoria until 1892. He was educated at the famous Glasgow University, and at the age of 30, nine years after graduation, he emigrated to Canada and took up the practice of law at Ottawa. There he was married to Miss Mariah Jones, daughter of one of the old United Empire loyalists, who left the States at the outbreak of the Revolution. In 1852 Mr. Hervey came to Chicago with his wife and has since made his permanent residence here. Shortly after his arrival he formed a law partnership with Buckner S. Morris, who two years later was appointed Judge of the Circuit Court. Mr. Hervey and Elliott Anthony then formed a partnership, which continued until 1877, when Mr. Anthony was made Corporation Counsel, afterward going on the Circuit Bench. Mr. Hervey then took Benjamin D. Magruder into his office and the partnership continued until the latter, in turn, was elevated to the bench.

After that and up to about five years ago Mr. Hervey continued in the practice of his profession by himself. When he retired in 1887 he had accumulated a handsome property, which was invested, on the advice of friends, in certain stocks. Shortly after disaster came upon the company whose stocks he held and, in a week, his entire fortune was swallowed up.

Since that blow came upon Mr. Hervey he has never been the same man. His health failed rapidly, and, enfeebled in mind as well, he has had hard work to find for himself and his family the necessaries of life. In spite of it all and through it all, however, he has kept the charming manners and the gracious bearing which have always marked him as a polished gentleman of the old school.

Prominent in the Bar Association.

The life of Robert Hervey is practically coincident with the growth of the legal profession in Chicago. In his early days he was associated with Abraham Lincoln and other giants in the legal arena. He was one of the founders of the Chicago Bar Association and took a prominent part in its councils for years. He was interested on one side or another of many of the most important cases which have been tried in the courts of Illinois for the last quarter of a century. One of his famous victories was the defense of his first partner, Judge Morris, who was implicated in the conspiracy to liberate 300 rebel prisoners confined in Fort Douglas during the war. He also took a leading part in the defense of the nineteen Aldermen indicted for bribery in 1872. Mr. Hervey attained prominence again several years later as one of the counsel for the defense in the trial of the "boodle" County Commissioners. But Mr. Hervey's practice was by no means confined to criminal cases. He was counsel for many large corporations and took part in the trial of many cases involving great moneyed interests.

In 1861 Mr. Hervey was one of the signers of the call for the great Union meeting held at the outbreak of the war. Later he was a member of the committee which took a stand of colors to an Illinois regiment at the front, and in that capacity he became acquainted with Gen. Grant.

With the Scotch-American citizens of Chicago Mr. Hervey has always been especially popular. He served three terms as President of the Illinois St. Andrew's Society—in 1858, '65, and '69. He has also been prominent in the Caledonian Society and in every way has done good work in the interest of his fellow-countrymen.

As an old-time member of the Citizens' League Mr. Hervey has taken an active interest in municipal affairs, though never in any sense of the word a partisan politician. He has also served as a director of the Good Samaritan Society and other philanthropic associations and, during the period of his prosperity, his private charities were widespread, though unostentatious.

In every line of life Mr. Hervey has played a worthy part and this benefit comes to him as a testimonial of appreciation for the life-long labors of an honest man.

Want Sunday and Early Closing.

The West Side clothing clerks held a mass-meeting last night at Bricklayers' Hall in the interest of early and Sunday closing. Addresses were delivered by V. B. Williams, L. T. O'Brien, T. J. Elderkin, Frank Sweeney, T. J. Morgan, and J. W. Rodgers. Steps were taken to unite all the working people in a movement to purchase only from those stores employing union clerks. It was announced that the Trade and Labor Assembly would soon issue 300,000 copies of a directory of West Side clothing houses complying with union regulations, and that these would be placed in the hands of working people. Forty-eight new members were enrolled in the union last night.

Raided a Gambling Place.

Detectives Strum and Junger, armed with a search-warrant, made an investigation of Room 60 at No. 126 Washington street yesterday afternoon in search of gamblers and gamblers' apparatus. They found seven men engaged in gambling and took them to the Central Station. Henry Rogers and Robert Beiksis were charged with being the keepers of a gambling-house. The five inmates were Alexander Wright, Ferd N. Lyons, Frank Raymond, John Deacon, and George Scott. The warrant was sworn out by Robert Woods, No. 108 Throop street, who claims to have lost $25 in the place.

Discharged from Custody.

Franklin Brooks, who was convicted last November by a South Chicago Justice of the Peace for practicing medicine without a license from the State Board, had a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus before Judge Tuthill yesterday afternoon. Though the judgment was rendered last November Brooks was committed to the custody of the Sheriff only a week ago last Friday, since which time he has been in jail. Brooks was discharged from custody by the court on a failure of the Justice to comply with the statute which makes a sentence to imprisonment part of the judgment. A mere fine had been imposed on Brooks.

Insane Woman Recaptured.

While passing from ward A, 2, in which she was confined, to the dining hall at the Dunning Insane Asylum last Thursday Mrs. Annie Giesler made her escape from the building by an open door. As soon as the fact was discovered the police were notified and a careful watch was kept for her. At 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning an officer of the Desplaines Street Station saw a woman wandering in an aimless manner on West Madison street, near Halsted, and took her to the station. Here the matron, Mrs. Newbold, recognized her and the Dunning authorities were notified.

Caught Between Bumpers.

While engaged in cleaning his engine on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad near Western avenue and Kinzie street Charles Steiner, a fireman, received injuries that may result fatally. He was standing in the rear of the tender when several freight cars were backed on the track and he was caught between the bumbers. He was taken to the Bennett Hospital, where the attending physician stated he had received severe internal injuries.

Henry Syndicate Hearing Ended.

The arguments on the World's Fair-Henry syndicate case were concluded before Judge Tuley yesterday. It is probable that the court will not reach a decision before the middle of next week.

THINKS THE DISTINCTION IS TOO FINE.

Refusal of the Chicago Orchestra to Play at the Real Estate Banquet Criticised.

Members of the Chicago Real Estate Board are smarting under the direct slap they received from the Chicago Orchestra on the occasion of the board's tenth annual banquet last week. William L. Pierce, Chairman of the Banquet committee, wishing to provide an exceptionally fine musical program, applied to the Chicago agent of Theodore Thomas and requested that the orchestra play under the direction of Max Bendix. As the board was willing to pay any price, the agent was agreeable, and telegraphed Bendix, who was at Nashville. The reply was short and to the point. The answer read:

I do not play while people eat. MAX BENDIX.

As the Vice-President-elect of the United States and other distinguished guests were to be present, Mr. Pierce, although chagrined, tried to secure the orchestra under another leader. In this he was also disappointed, for Theodore Thomas wired his agent prohibiting his musicians from playing on the night of the banquet. Why this was done no one seems to know. Mr. Pierce said yesterday:

"It is true that the services of the Thomas orchestra were requested and refused. The refusal was discourteous, and no reason for the action of Messrs. Thomas and Bendix can be found. I don't understand it. We were willing to pay any price, and the gathering was one which included the representative men of Chicago. It appears strange to me that Mr. Bendix should refuse to play while the members of the board and their guests were at a banquet, when he seems to be content to play a violin in a beer garden. I have listened to music by these gentlemen in the Thomas Garden in New York and the old Exposition Building in this city, where the qualification for admission was 25 cents and the merry pop of the cork from the beer bottle kept time to the leader's baton. The gentlemen seem to discriminate between a banquet at the Auditorium and sandwiches and beer. The distinction is too fine for me."

GROSSMITH ASSAILS SOCIAL FOLLIES.

His Monologue Entertainment at Central Music Hall a Pleasing Effort.

George Grossmith's long experience in delivering Mr. Gilbert's dialogue has given him a tendency to the satirical, or, rather, has emphasized that inborn tendency until his monologue entertainment resembles a Gilbertian libretto reduced to prose and the Du Maurier sketches translated into words. The actor and entertainer was welcomed by a fairly large audience at Central Music Hall and none who braved the weather were disappointed in the entertainment.

Mr. Grossmith was entirely without assistance, barring a passive and responsive pianoforte. He divided his entertainment into two chats, one dealing with "Society Up to Date," and the second with "Play Acting." The hypocrisies of polite life were daintily touched upon, the ball-room furnishing instances of humor which were particularly relished by the audience. Mr. Grossmith was even more at home in the second sketch, he treating the theatrical conventionalities with a freedom characteristic of Jerome K. Jerome, but with a condensation and pointedness which that clever humorist might despair of.

The third part of the program was devoted to a number of interesting imitations. The entertainer at no time tired his hearers, each chapter giving them a relish for the next, and making the whole entertainment an appetizer for Mr. Grossmith's matinée at the same place this afternoon.

SITE FOR EVANSTON'S Y. M. C. A. BUILDING.

Secretary Fogg Buys One for $22,500—Something About the Proposed Structure.

General Secretary F. D. Fogg for the directors of the Evanston Y. M. C. A. paid $22,500 yesterday for a plot of ground for a site for the proposed new building for the association. The lot has 132 feet frontage on Orrington avenue and lies on the east side of the avenue between Davis street and Church street. It is a fine central location and in fact is the same location chosen for the opera-house when that project was before the Evanston people some months ago. The property was bought from I. R. Hitt of Evanston. Secretary Fogg said: "The plans for the new building are not out yet but it will cost at least $50,000 and more, if we can get the money. It will have the largest auditorium of any Evanston building, seating at least 1,500. We may have it cover the whole 132 feet frontage. The first floor will be given up to stores for renting. The association will have a large gymnasium, bath rooms, natatorium, rooms for class instruction in bookkeeping, penmanship, and the languages, and there will be reading rooms, parlors, offices, room for the boys' branch, and other necessary apartments for our work."

Sixty-five Young Boys at the Bridewell.

The Illinois Woman's Alliance met at the Palmer House yesterday. Among the many matters dealt with was the question of sending boys under 14 to the bridewell. Although the Police Justices had promised that youths of such tender years should not be committed to keep company with hardened criminals, it was said that sixty-five of them are at present undergoing sentences of varying terms. A committee was appointed to act in conjunction with a committee of the Trades and Labor Assembly, for the purpose of having Supt. Crawford instructed not to admit boys under 14. It was decided to start a crusade against stores which do not provide seating accommodations for their women employés during the day.

Every mercantile house should use the Rand, McNally & Co.'s Bankers' Directory and list of bank attorneys just published for making collections or collecting claims.

All about Cinderella tomorrow.

WILL BE COLD TODAY.

BELOW ZERO WEATHER PREDICTED FOR THE NEXT TWELVE HOURS.

Saturday Will Bring a Higher Temperature—More Accidents from Icy Sidewalks Reported to the Police—Trees and Shrubs Coated with Thin Ice Sparkle in the Sunlight—Trains on All Roads Delayed for Hours by the Storm—Cold Snap Prevailing Throughout the Country.

People who got out their ear-muffs and sealskin cloaks yesterday will have use for them today if the Auditorium weather man can be relied upon.

"It's down to zero now," he said, "and before morning it will be 7° or 8° below. By tomorrow night there will be a decided rise and Sunday promises to be fairly comfortable. There are no signs of snow or other disturbance for some time ahead. The cold snap is widely extended over the country, the center of high pressure passing slowly eastward."

The cold rain of Thursday, which froze almost as it fell, had a beautiful effect on the trees and shrubbery at Lincoln Park and elsewhere. Every little twig and filament was wrapped in a thin coating of ice and under the rays of the sun the gaunt, leafless trees glittered as though set with diamonds.

The continued cold also left the sidewalks and streets slippery with ice and several resulting accidents were reported to the police. The list follows:

The Injured.

BROWN, EZRA F.—Customs Inspector at the Erie freight depot. Badly bruised by a fall at Michigan avenue and Twelfth street. Taken to his home at No. 17 Thirty-ninth street.

LAW, ROBERT—Capitalist, No. 1620 Prairie avenue. Right wrist and arm badly sprained and blood vessel ruptured by a fall on Sixty-third street. Taken home.

ROACH, CHARLES, Patrol Sergeant, Desplaines Street Station, slipped on the street crossing at Van Buren and Aberdeen streets, breaking his right leg directly above the ankle. He was removed to his home, No. 775 West Superior street.

REINWANDT, officer of the Stanton Avenue Station, slipped at Michigan avenue and Thirty-third street and sprained his left wrist.

WALSH, PATRICK, a laboring man, living at No. 273 Clybourn avenue, slipped and fell on the sidewalk at Clybourn place, near Elk Grove avenue, dislocating his left hip.

Mr. Law, who is one of the veterans of the coal trade in Chicago, was hurt last Sunday. He slipped and fell on Sixty-third street, near the World's Fair grounds, and bruised and sprained his wrist and arm, also rupturing a blood vessel. It was at first supposed that he was also injured internally, but that fear proved ungrounded. Mr. Law has since been confined to his residence, No. 1620 Prairie avenue. At his office yesterday it was said that he was rapidly mending and would probably be out in a day or two. Mr. Law is upwards of 70 years of age, and has been an active coal dealer in Chicago for more than forty years.

Mail trains were much delayed yesterday and the affairs of many large business houses in the city were seriously interfered with in consequence. Some of the morning trains most delayed were the Chicago and Northwestern, due at 7:45 o'clock, two hours late; Rock Island, due at 8:15 o'clock, two hours late; Baltimore and Ohio, due at 11:15 o'clock, two and one-half hours late; Burlington, due at 6:55 o'clock, three hours and forty minutes late; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, due at 7 o'clock, two and one-half hours late. Mails on the Monon route were delayed about two hours and three-quarters, and on the Grand Trunk over three hours. On the other routes the minimum delay was about an hour. Yesterday evening showed little improvement, and today none of the trains are expected on time.

The temperature yesterday as observed by Manasse, optician, TRIBUNE Building, was as follows: 8 a. m., 11 degrees above zero; 9 a. m., 12; 10 a. m., 11; 11 a. m., 12; 12 m., 12; 1 p. m., 12; 3 p. m., 11; 6 p. m., 9. Barometer, 8 a. m., 29.90; 6 p. m., 30.05.

COLDER WEATHER IS THE RULE.

Rapid and Heavy Drops in the Thermometer All Over the Northwest.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 3.—The weather bureau report tonight gives the temperature in this city at 7 o'clock as 22 below zero, a drop of twenty-eight degrees in twenty-four hours. At the same hour it was 14 below at Duluth, 24 below at Huron, 18 below at Pierre, 30 below at Moorehead, 12 below at Helena, Mont., and 38 below at Winnipeg. It is growing warmer to the West and Northwest. There was today an area of very high barometer over the Dakotas, accelerated by a temperature of from 20 to 40 below zero. The wind velocities prevailing at the most important stations are 26 miles at St. Paul, 32 at Moorhead, 38 at Bismarck, 44 at Winnipeg, 40 at St. Vincent, showing almost a blizzard all over the territory involved, owing to the amount of loose snow on the ground.

FARGO, N. D., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The recent blizzard has stopped railroad traffic on some lines in the interior of the State and has caused a fuel famine. Several towns telegraph that they have no coal. Citizens are tearing down old sheds and fences to burn. It is probable that it will be several days before some of the places can be reached. There may be much suffering. It is 48° below zero at 10 tonight.

BISMARCK, N. D., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The barometer at 7 o'clock was 31.02, the highest since the establishment of the weather bureau here eighteen years ago. At 10 o'clock the barometer was 31, and thermometer 26° below zero.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 3.—Railroad officials say that the present storm is the worst they have had to contend with in many years. Snow lies from four to five feet deep all along the lines between here and Mackinaw City, and is still falling. All trains are running double-headed, and are three to ten hours late. The storm is also severe south along the Lake Shore. No attempt to run freight trains will be made until passenger trains can be run single-headed.

OSHKOSH, Wis., Feb. 3.—The blizzard of Thursday has been followed by a day of intense cold. The thermometer rose but little above zero at any time during the day, and at evening it is descending rapidly. A driving wind greatly augments the discomfort. Some trains from the north have three engines drawing them. All trains are late and a Wisconsin Central passenger is stalled in a cut between this city and the Northern State Hospital. There is much suffering, as the supply of fuel has been exhausted by the long cold period.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A shift of the wind to the northwest raised the ice blockade early this morning. The propeller F. and P. M. No. 3, which was stuck in the ice in the bay, reached the harbor, and the propeller Menominee left for Chicago. The propeller Wisconsin arrived this afternoon, after being thirty-one hours out from Grand Haven, experiencing all of yesterday's blizzard on the lake.

KEWAUNEE, Wis., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The worst storm ever known here has just passed over, leaving all trains snow-bound on the Kewaunee and Green Bay railroad. The train on the Ahnapee and Western is stalled six miles this side of Manitowoc in a huge drift, all efforts to dig it out proving unavailing on account of the gale, which blows the snow right back. There is over four feet of snow on the ground.

MASON CITY, Ia., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The snow and high winds of the last twenty-four hours have effectually blockaded railroad travel in this section. No trains have been run over the Mason City and Fort Dodge line for two days. Since last night no trains have arrived in this city from the East over the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul line. The Chicago-Great Western line is blockaded between Lyle and Oelwein. Travel is cut off on the Iowa Central between Oskaloosa and this city.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 3.—Oregon and Washington are covered with snow from two to four feet deep east of the Cascade Mountains. The weather is cold, and a heavy loss of stock is reported. When a thaw comes it is feared great damage will result, as many buildings are not strong enough to support the great weight of snow.

Lake Steamer Roanoke Abandoned.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The steamer Roanoke is on the bar off the south pier and has been abandoned by its crew. A terrible gale is prevailing. The Roanoke left Milwaukee at 1 o'clock this morning with a cargo of 1,000 tons. As it attempted to make this port tonight it was thrown against the pier, its steampipe was broken, and it was shifted to the outside of the pier by the sea and is now hard aground. The crew landed safely. Ice is surrounding the vessel and it is feared it will be a total wreck if the sea does not go down. The steamer carries no insurance.

SHOULD TAKE THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

Col. Ashford, Ex-Commander of the Hawaiian Forces, Gives His Views.

Col. Volney C. Ashford, ex-Commander of the Hawaiian forces, was in the city yesterday. He thinks the United States must either annex the Sandwich Islands or let them alone. A protectorate, he declares, will be so distasteful to the Hawaiians that they would in all probability prefer an independent republic, or even a return to the government of the deposed queen. "It is either annexation or nothing," he said. "It almost sets me wild to see the United States take this thing so calmly. If she does not annex the Sandwich Islands now, and she must annex them or let them alone, she will never get them unless they come to her as the result of war with the power which may seize them. I have seen it questioned whether the gentlemen who are representing the provisional government at Washington represent the people—that is, a majority of the people—and I can most emphatically say that they do. The Americans are the most numerous and the desire for British rule or annexation to the British Empire amounts comparatively to nothing. I do not believe Great Britain will file any protest against the annexation of the island by the United States. If the United States does not accept the Sandwich Islands she will make the greatest mistake of her history."

The story that Spreckels was behind the revolutionary movement was ridiculed by Col. Ashford. Spreckels, he said, holds so many liens on the sugar plantations that an era of depression which would enable him to foreclose on the planters is the desire of his heart.

All about Cinderella tomorrow.

Until further notice we will not accept freight of any description in carloads or less delivered to us either at our depots or team tracks in this city, to be forwarded to points East on our lines, with the exception of dairy freight (butter, eggs, cheese, and dressed poultry), which will be received and forwarded as usual.

This notice is made necessary in order to enable us to dispose of the accumulation of freight along our lines resulting from the recent cold weather.

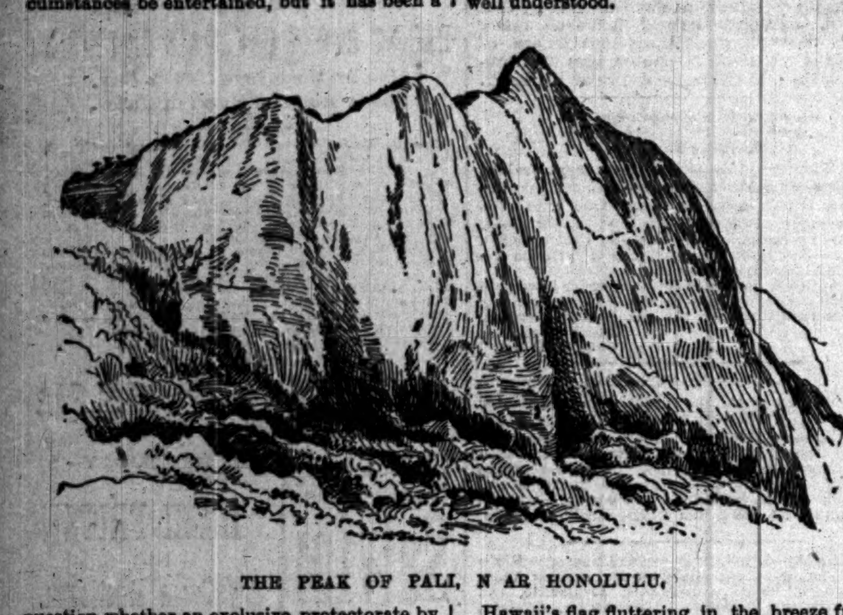
UNCLE SAM MUST RULE

PROTECTORATE OVER HAWAII WILL NOT BE SUFFICIENT.

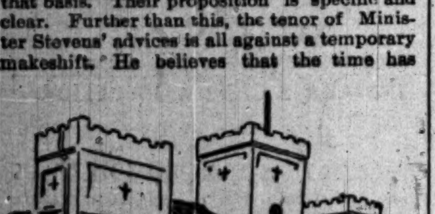
The Islands Should Be Absolutely Under Control of America to Prevent Intrigues by European Powers—Arrival of the Commissioners at the Capital—Much Doubt as to Mr. Cleveland's Intentions Touching the Sandwich Group—How Mr. Bayard Startled the Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Hawaii's future will soon be decided. The annexation Commissioners sent by the provisional government have arrived. The State Department has received the full report of Minister Stevens on recent events, while Commander Wiltse has forwarded to the Navy Department his report of the landing of the marines from the Boston.

The first thing cleared up is that there is no chance for a protectorate. The United States must take control of the islands absolutely or else leave them to the intrigues of other nations. A joint protectorate with Great Britain and Germany would not under any circumstances be entertained, but it has been a question whether an exclusive protectorate by this country would meet the case. The question is answered in the negative. The Hawaiian Commissioners have no authority to treat for anything except admission to the Union, and anything that is done must be on that basis. Their proposition is specific and clear. Further than this, the tenor of Minister Stevens' advices is all against a temporary makeshift. He believes that the time has come when the United States, for its own sake and the sake of the islands, must give heed to the demand for annexation.

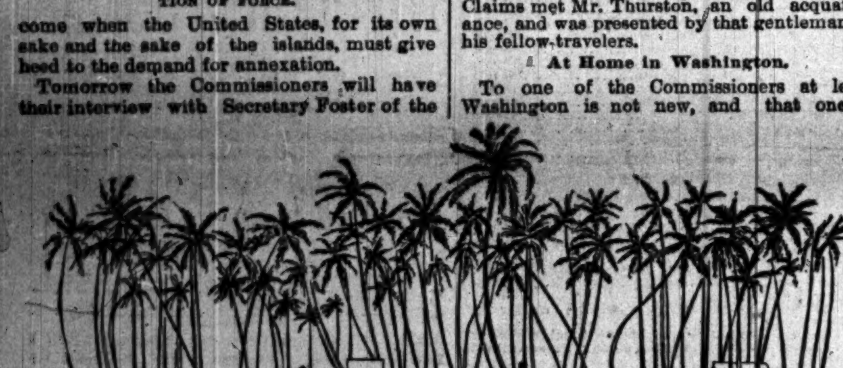


THE PEAK OF PALI, N AR HONOLULU.

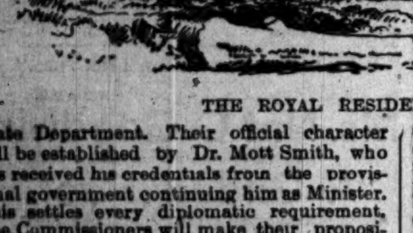


ROYAL HAWAIIAN ARMY MAKING A DEMONSTRATION OF FORCE.

Tomorrow the Commissioners will have their interview with Secretary Foster of the State Department. Their official character will be established by Dr. Mott Smith, who has received his credentials from the provisional government continuing him as Minister. This settles every diplomatic requirement. The Commissioners will make their proposition for annexation, and in answer to the question which will be put to them whether they have any alternative proposition their answer will be that they are authorized to propose nothing but annexation.



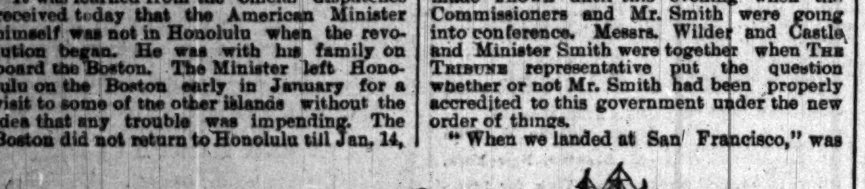
THE ROYAL RESIDENCE AT WAIKIKI.



HAWAIIAN HOTEL, HONOLULU.

The administration now understands pretty thoroughly the exact situation that confronts it.

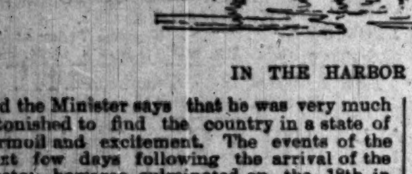
It was learned from the official dispatches received today that the American Minister himself was not in Honolulu when the revolution began. He was with his family on board the Boston. The Minister left Honolulu on the Boston early in January for a visit to some of the other islands without the idea that any trouble was impending. The Boston did not return to Honolulu till Jan. 14, and the Minister says that he was very much astonished to find the country in a state of turmoil and excitement. The events of the next few days following the arrival of the Boston, however, culminated on the 18th in the dethronement of Queen Liliuokalani.



IN THE HARBOR OF HONOLULU.

It Pleases the President.

While the Minister's report is necessarily confidential and all its contents cannot be disclosed to the world at present, it is known that the President and the members of the Cabinet before whom it was laid today are equally satisfied with it. No official protest has yet been received on behalf of the deposed Queen, but it is stated that the Minister in his report has something to say about the protest which was drawn up for her, in which she declared that she submitted to the superior power of the provisional government, which had been backed by the United States, and would accept the conditions until this country disavowed the action of its Minister, etc. The Minister's report discusses this protest incidentally in describing the general situation and in explaining how he himself was absent on the Boston when the revolution actually began.



CRATER OF KILAUEA.

The facts given are sufficient to show that the Queen is trying to save herself by unjustly laying the responsibility for the downfall of her government to the American Minister. There is a mass of official documents showing how completely the Provisional Government is sustained, and its permanency seems to be assured. When the Minister wrote all the Consular representatives had recognized the Provisional Government as the de facto government except the British Consul. It is not necessary to speculate on the reasons for his refusal to do so. English intrigues are too well understood.

HAWAIIANS EATING.

Hawaii's flag fluttering in the breeze from the flagstaff of Wormley's Hotel was the first familiar object which arrested the attention of Sandwich Island Commissioners upon their arrival at the capital of the United States this afternoon. For some reason, usual, however, on railroads, the train bearing the visitors was two and a half hours late, and did not reach Washington until 5 o'clock.

As the party from Honolulu, convoyed by Commissioner Thurston and Robert A. Parke of the Pennsylvania railroad, left the train, their first greeting came from Dr. Mott Smith, the Hawaiian Minister. There was a cordial greeting between the Minister and the members of the commission on the platform of the railroad station, after which they entered carriages and were driven to the hotel which will be their headquarters during their sojourn in Washington. By a coincidence their rooms are in proximity to the sleeping quarters of Prof. Goldwin Smith of Canada, who favors the annexation by the United States of that province of Great Britain, so that tonight two parties of annexationists will sleep under the same roof at the National Capital.

There was no official representative of this country either at the depot or at the hotel to receive the tourists from Honolulu, but Archibald Hopkins of the United States Court of Claims met Mr. Thurston, an old acquaintance, and was presented by that gentleman to his fellow-travelers.

At Home in Washington.

To one of the Commissioners at least Washington is not new, and that one is Charles L. Carter, whose father, A. P. H. Carter, was formerly Minister to the United States from the Sandwich Islands. When the party left the depot for the hotel Mr. Carter became separated from his companions, but Chairman Thurston expressed the opinion that he was not likely to get lost in Washington, owing to his previous residence here and consequent knowledge of his surroundings.

A large mail had accumulated when the party reached their hotel, and after a short chat with Minister Smith the Commissioners retired to their respective apartments to remove the dust and stain of travel, instructions being given that no cards would be honored until after dinner.

There were few callers during the evening, those who did send cards being personal friends of the Commissioners. A conference was deemed necessary between Minister Smith and the new arrivals to make arrangements for tomorrow's presentation to Secretary Foster, and hence the travelers denied themselves to visitors after 8 o'clock this evening.

In the mail which arrived from San Francisco yesterday there came the credentials of Minister Mott Smith as the diplomatic representative to this country from the provisional government at Honolulu. This fact was not made known until this evening when the Commissioners and Mr. Smith were going into conference. Messrs. Wilder and Castle and Minister Smith were together when THE TRIBUNE representative put the question whether or not Mr. Smith had been properly accredited to this government under the new order of things.

"When we landed at San Francisco," was the reply, "we promptly forwarded the credentials to Mr. Smith, these papers having been intrusted to us before leaving Hawaii."

Minister Smith seemed very much pleased at this remark and followed it up with the declaration that his commission had been duly received. It was further stated that the commission would await its reception at the State Department tomorrow morning before attempting to transact any further business. All the details for such a meeting having been arranged between Secretary John W. Foster and Minister Smith, Hawaii's envoys, accompanied by their representative here, will call at the State Department between 10 o'clock in the morning and noon. It is not likely, however, that they will see the President before Monday, as the Secretary of State will want ample time to consider the propositions submitted to him for consideration by this administration.

Questions of Policy Discussed.

There was little discussion at the Cabinet meeting today of the policy to be followed. The President preferred to wait until the Hawaiian Commissioners had been formally presented to the State Department. After they have been given the formal hearing the President will decide on what immediate course is desirous. There will be no undue haste in what he does, and an excess of caution will be shown. Yet there seems no probability of anything short of annexation, and when he transmits the fact to Congress a recommendation looking to the acceptance of the proposition may be anticipated.

The suggestion has been made that he recommend the appointment of a special commission to visit Hawaii with power to treat for annexation. The objection to this is that the Hawaiian commissioners are already here with such powers on behalf of the provisional government, and a commission from the United States would not be able to gather any more information than that which is furnished through the American Minister and through public sources. Any move causing delay may result in giving Great Britain and Germany time to intrigue on the plans.

Speculating on a Contingency.

In view of the possibility of the administration not being able to make terms with the Commissioners on the annexation question because of limited time, there is much speculation as to the course to be pursued by the administration in endeavoring to reach some other form of agreement. The power of the commission being limited to annexation, a failure to make terms with them would necessitate direct communication with the provisional government. In some quarters it is said that whatever policy is adopted the incoming administration will reject it, and that therefore the whole matter had better be left open. People who make this objection do not understand that annexation is as much of a legislative as an executive action. In the case of Hawaii it would be more legislative than executive, because both branches of Congress are likely to be called on to pass on the recommendations of the President. The Senate would ratify a treaty, but it could not provide for a Territorial form of government without the concurrent action of the House.

Conflicting statements have been made about the views of the President-elect. It has been held by some of those close to him that he looked upon annexation as inevitable, while others who are supposed to represent his views have declared that he believes the supremacy of the United States in the Pacific could be maintained without annexation. It is possible that in case of annexation Great Britain or Germany—in any diplomatic remonstrances they might make—would be able to cite the utterance of Mr. Cleveland during his former administration and of his Secretary of State. At that time there was an insane jealously on the part of the Cleveland administration lest somebody should suppose that it was in any way following Mr. Blaine's foreign policy. From this cause probably came the ostentatious declaration in Mr. Cleveland's first message to Congress against acquiring colonial possessions. Mr. Bayard in his diplomatic correspondence with Minister Pendleton had also laid down some documents which might be embarrassing if cited now.

But the American people are not concerned with any wounds that may be inflicted on the self-esteem of Mr. Cleveland or Mr. Bayard. Time has shown that Mr. Blaine's foreign policy was the one which the future of the United States demands, and if the incoming administration should prevent the American solution of the Hawaiian problem which Mr. Blaine foreshadowed it would be held to a strict account.

Bayard's Sensational Statement.

In the closing days of the Arthur administration Mr. Bayard, speaking as the prospective Secretary of State, outlined the incoming President's policy. At the time the Senate was considering three treaties—one with Nicaragua, another with San Domingo, and still another with Spain. These had been prepared by the Arthur administration, and the Senate had undertaken the laborious work of ratifying them. It was under these circumstances that Senator, afterward Secretary, Bayard rose in the executive session of the Senate and announced that it was wholly unnecessary to ratify the pending treaties, as Mr. Cleveland would not carry out any policies bequeathed to him by his predecessors. On this warning from Mr. Bayard the treaties were hung up.

Since the Hawaiian question came up no Democratic Senator has undertaken to speak for the incoming administration. Senator Morgan, who will be Chairman of the Foreign Relations committee, has been the most pronounced advocate of annexation in the Senate. The interests at stake are too great for any of Mr. Cleveland's personal representatives in the Senate to undertake to dictate a policy from a partisan standpoint.

The pacific tone of the comments in the English Parliament is looked upon with some suspicion by officials here. Some of the more belligerent naval officers regard it as a big bluff and say that unless the United States wants to be caught napping we had better send the Monterey with all the other available vessels from San Francisco to Honolulu at once. Otherwise they say that we will find a British fleet there and in possession before an annexation treaty can be ratified. Others fear that England is holding aloof with the idea that this government when it finds that England is not eager for the coveted islands will pursue its usual slow policy in diplomatic matters, and while America is hesitating about accepting the application for annexation Great Britain will step in and do it for us.

Diligent inquiry at the hotels and persistent scrutiny of the registers failed to disclose the whereabouts of John S. Cleghorn, who claims to be the uncle of the Princess of Hawaii. Belief grows hourly that the story that he was coming to Washington partakes of the nature of the genus fake, for no one on or off the commission seems to know anything about him.

WANT SUFFRAGE RESTRICTED.

Important Condition to Be Offered by the Hawaiian Commissioners.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—In speaking tonight, Mr. Castle, one of the Commissioners from Hawaii, said:

> The terms upon which the annexation shall be made we are perfectly willing to leave to the United States Government to determine. There is one condition that we very much desire shall be contained in any agreement that may be reached, and that is, that the right of suffrage shall be restricted. We want no universal suffrage on the islands. If to accomplish this it is necessary to lose our own right to vote we are perfectly willing to abandon that. If we might be allowed to suggest the form of government the District of Columbia seems to afford the most desirable one for the Sandwich Islands. We don't want a territorial government in which there shall be a legislature elected by the votes of all the people.

Speaking of the causes that led to the revolution, Mr. Castle said:

> There was, in my opinion, a conspiracy, to which the Queen was a party, and which included the passage of bills to charter a lottery and providing for the importation of opium. By the former an exclusive franchise for twenty-five years was given to a corporation, which was doubtless the Louisiana Lottery company. The incorporators were Messrs. Davenport of St. Louis and Clark of Chicago, who, we have been assured since our arrival, were connected with that concern. Of course, a lottery could not live upon Hawaiian support alone. It would have to feed upon the United States, and the Queen was given to understand that the passage of such a law would be regarded by the United States as a distinctly unfriendly act, but that made no difference whatever. There is at present a very strict law against the importation of opium into the islands, which is the preservation of the native population. But the Hawaiians passed both these measures.

Mr. Castle was asked how long the commission would remain in Washington, and, turning to Mr. Marsden, he inquired, "How about that?" to which the latter responded: "We are enlisted for the war. We shall remain here until our object is accomplished or our application is rejected."

ENGLISH TORIES WILL OBJECT.

One of Their Mouthpieces Says That America Has No Claim on Hawaii.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—A correspondent has had an interview with Baron Henry de Worms, Conservative member of Parliament for the East Toxteth Division of Liverpool, and Parliamentary Under-Secretary of the Colonial Office in the late administration of Lord Salisbury. He is regarded as being thoroughly in the confidence of the Conservative leaders, especially as to their foreign policy, a subject with which he is widely conversant. In reply to inquiries Baron de Worms said that he had long expected the troubles which had broken out in Honolulu. He did not approve of the proposed annexation of Hawaii by the United States. America, said Baron de Worms, had no right to annex a place thousands of miles distant from its own territory. He considered that the proper remedy for the Hawaiian difficulties would be a joint protectorate similar to the protectorate over Samoa. The British and German population in Hawaii dwarfed the American, and hence they would not allow the scream of the American eagle to silence their claims. England should oppose annexation, and Germany would be sure to speak.

SERIOUS QUESTIONS INVOLVED.

Stephen Phillips Speaks of the Annexation of the Sandwich Islands.

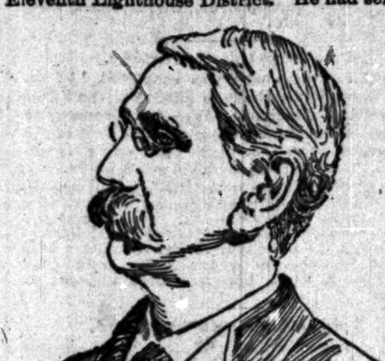
BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 3.—Stephen Phillips of Salem, who was Attorney-General of Hawaii in the Cabinet of Kamehameha V., says:

> I am strongly in favor of annexation. The indications are that the little kingdom will be absorbed into the American Union. I sincerely hope that it will soon. But the change involves important consequences—absolute annihilation of the monarchical principle, abrogation of labor laws, the extension of uniform laws against the importation of contract laborers, complicated questions of race, of education, of religious faith, and the enforcement of Federal authority at a remote point exposed to the jealousies and intrigues of foreign powers and a certain corruptive influence in classical times called pro-consular. One thing is certain—Hawaii ought not at present be admitted as a State. Nor is it consistent with true republicanism to affect a paternal spirit and conceal the wasting relics of a once noble though savage race as wards of the Nation upon wretched reservations, where their tribal character may be respected, yet they soon may become the scorn and contempt of their enemies and the melancholy pity of their friends. Let Hawaii, with her Polynesian citizens, be immediately annexed as a Territory of the United States, with the right to be admitted as a State in due season.

NEEDED FOR SERVICE AT SEA.

Capt. Nicoll Ludlow Sails for Honolulu in Command of the Warship Mohican.

Capt. Nicoll Ludlow, commander of the warship Mohican, now on its way to Honolulu from San Francisco, was stationed in this city up to last December as Inspector of the Eleventh Lighthouse District. He had served here two years and the vessel owners of the lakes petitioned the Naval Department to keep him another year. It proved a futile effort, as Capt. Ludlow was assigned to the Mohican, and is now on his voyage.



CAPT. NICHOLL LUDLOW.

[Capt. Ludlow is about 50 years old. He was born at Oakdale, on Long Island, where his ancestors lived for nearly 200 years. There were three boys in the family. Two went into the navy and one, Col. William Ludlow, was given to the army. Capt. Ludlow graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis during the war, and though still a boy saw some active service. Since that time he has served in the Pacific, South Atlantic, and Mediterranean squadrons. His last previous command was the Quinnebog. He was assigned then to shore duty as Inspector of the Twelfth Lighthouse District at San Francisco. Afterwards he was made ordnance officer at the Mare Island navy-yard. From there he came to Chicago. During the season of navigation Capt. Ludlow lived mostly on the lighthouse steamer Dahlia. When on shore he lived at the Union League and the Grand Pacific. His daughter, Miss Mary Ludlow, is at Colorado Springs while her father is at sea.

Capt. Ludlow is regarded as an able officer. He did good work in improving the lighthouse service on Lake Michigan here, and was loyally supported by the marine interest. His transfer was regarded as unfortunate for the lighthouse service, but the Naval Department held that Capt. Ludlow had had the limit of shore duty.]

Michigan Favors Annexation.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The Senate today adopted a concurrent resolution urging Michigan's representatives in Congress to favor the acceptance of the overtures to be made by the Hawaiian Commissioners and the consequent annexation of the kingdom.

Pattison Is Opposed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 3.—Gov. Pattison while here today expressed himself as opposed to the annexation of Hawaii.

Hawaiian Annexation.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Having spent ten years at Honolulu in a position of great influence and responsibility permit me to thank THE TRIBUNE for the stand it has so promptly taken with reference to the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands. The foreign residents there are mostly Americans. They many times outnumber all other nationalities combined, if those from China and Portugal are left out of the account. The native population is also largely American in its preferences and sympathies. Their instructors almost without exception have been Americans, and a large proportion of them have gained a fair knowledge of the English language and speak and write it correctly. So thorough has been their training under their missionary teachers that it would be difficult, if not impossible, to find 60,000 contiguous residents in either old England or New England who could read and write more correctly or who were more apt at figures within the limits of the simple rules of arithmetic. They are a thoughtful, docile, kind-hearted people, with little tendency to violent outbreaks or to lawlessness of any sort.

As to material for citizenship, they are far superior to any other of the colored races, except those from Japan, and they would average much higher in intelligence and in a sense of the duties and privileges of citizenship than the immigrants from any European countries, except Wales and Scotland.

The responsibilities of citizenship are not new to them. They have discreetly used the ballot for many years, and have held office acceptably in all departments of the government.

The commercial position of the islands and their relation to our entire Pacific trade are such that they naturally gravitate to us. And it will doubtless be found that the non-American foreign residents are heartily in favor of annexation. Under such circumstances to repel our own children after they have assumed the responsibilities of self-government and to miss the grand opportunity simply to hold up our liberty cap and let the ripe pear drop into it is a cruel heartlessness unworthy of a mother of empires. It is stupid statecraft unworthy the diplomatic record of a great Nation.

No party can afford to court the infamy of unpatriotic opposition to the proposed measure. Neither Mr. Harrison nor Mr. Cleveland can afford to reject such an offer through cowardly fear of the bluster of England.

The first offer of these gems of the Pacific seas, these emeralds in a coral setting, is in good faith made to us. If through cowardly fear of England or through regard for the musty traditions of the past we turn a cold shoulder to those who court us we shall deserve to lose our hold upon a prize which would not be offered in vain to England, Germany, or France.

Europe has no interest there comparable with ours and an impotent monarchy, too long a burdensome legacy from the dead past, has no rights there which a current civilization is bound to respect. The door of a grand opportunity swings open for us. What statesmen are left to us will be prompt to announce and to defend a vigorous foreign policy. AMERICAN.

FIVE WIVES IN FIVE WEEKS.

George W. McAdams Flees When a Sixth Wife Tries to Look Him Up.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Five mad women are looking for George W. McAdams, a fresco painter, who claims Chicago as his home. A few months ago McAdams appeared in this city, and in almost as many weeks managed to become engaged to and marry five different women in this and neighboring towns. His victims were all girls who had a little money, which McAdams would borrow, after the marriage had been performed, on pretense of going to Mount Ayr, Colo., to start in business. All his marriages were performed under different names, and he was only found out when the Probate Judge here received a letter from a sixth wife at Kittanning, Pa., asking for information concerning him. McAdams has fled, carrying with him the money he received from his five dupes.

HATCH HAS HIS WAY.

ANTI-OPTION BILL DISPOSED OF AS HE DESIRED.

It Goes to the Agricultural Committee, and When Again Reported to the House the Great Fight Will Be On—Indications Are, However, That It Will Not Pass—On the Silver Question Senator Teller Takes a Straight Shot at Mr. Cleveland—News of the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The anti-option bill came up in the House again this morning, and the measure was referred to the Committee on Agriculture. It will not stay there long, and by Monday at the farthest Mr. Hatch will report it back to the House. Then will come the fight.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Boatner made a point of order against the consideration of the bill because, as he claimed, the Senate had included therein new matter which rendered its consideration necessary by a committee. Mr. Hatch objected to this, and wanted the Senate amendments non-concurred in and a committee of conference appointed without any further delay. The Speaker took the matter under advisement, and this morning laid before the House the anti-option bill with the Senate amendments thereto and proceeded to deliver his decision on the point of order that the amendments must first be considered in Committee of the Whole. He stated that the bill was laid before the House for reference only, unless it be a House bill with Senate amendments, which did not require consideration in Committee of the Whole.

The question was one of fact as to whether the Senate amendments to this bill required such consideration. In the Senate amendments the article of "flour" was mentioned. This was a new and distinct subject-matter of taxation, and it seemed to the Chair that this amendment, at least, must have its first consideration in Committee of the Whole. This bill was before the House for reference to a standing or a select committee and not for present consideration. The judgment of the Chair was that the bill should be referred to a standing or select committee. He therefore sustained the point of order against Mr. Hatch's motion to non-concur in the Senate amendments and to agree to a conference.

Everybody thought Mr. Hatch was going to appeal from the decision of the Chair, but he realized the fact he could not carry his point in this way, so he moved a reference of the bill to the Committee on Agriculture, and on that motion demanded the previous question. Mr. Boatner was on his feet in a second with a point of order that the bill did not properly belong to the Committee on Agriculture at all, but should go to the Committee on Ways and Means, because it was a measure which contemplated the raising of revenue.

The Speaker intimated that the House could refer the bill to any committee it desired.

Mr. Kilgore of Texas contended that Mr. Hatch's motion was out of order, because the bill had been originally reported by the Committee on Agriculture and that was its natural reference at this time. It should go to that committee as a matter of right, and Mr. Hatch's motion was superfluous. Mr. Kilgore wanted to rid the proposition of Hatch's motion of the previous question so as to get the bill on the floor for a debate. The Speaker held, however, that Mr. Hatch's motion was the proper one and that both Kilgore and Boatner were out of order.

The question was then on Hatch's demand for the previous question. On a division the vote stood yeas, 110, to nays, 65. Demand was at once made for the roll-call and the motion to order the previous question prevailed by a vote of yeas, 151, to nays, 84. This sent the bill to the Committee on Agriculture without division.

It will not remain in that committee any great length of time. Mr. Hatch will report it, and claim it is a privileged question, because, as he says, it is a revenue bill. He told THE TRIBUNE correspondent this afternoon he did not intend to be in a hurry about it, but would give the other side a day or two.

The opponents of the bill say they are going to filibuster against it as long as possible, nor will they be deterred therefrom by any fear of precipitating an extra session. Hatch's claim that it is a revenue bill may strengthen the position of its opponents, who, agreeing with him on that proposition, will try to land it in the Committee on Ways and Means.

Messrs. Boatner, Kilgore, McMillin, Fitch, Amos Cummings of New York, Abner Taylor, and others who are opposed to the bill say that they will fight it to the bitter end. A prolonged filibuster will almost be certain to lead to the failure of other legislation and possibly precipitate an extra session. To prevent this a determined effort will be made to get the appropriations out of the way.

One thing can be written to a certainty—the bill will be fought for all there is in it. The vote today showed it did not have the necessary two-thirds to send it through under suspension of the rules. Monday is suspension day and the indications are that Mr. Hatch will try to get some action thereon on that day if he can find enough votes to stay by him.

SILVER DISCUSSED IN THE SENATE.

Mr. Teller Takes a Shot at Cleveland Touching the Sherman Act.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—The question of the repeal of the Sherman act, or at least of the suspension of the silver bullion purchase provision of it, was unexpectedly precipitated on the Senate today by Mr. Teller (Rep., Colo.), who made the presentation of some petitions on the subject the occasion for launching out into a discussion of the whole question. He declared that in his judgment there was a decided majority on both sides of the chamber opposed at this time to the repeal of that act, and also that in his opinion it could not be made a political question at the next session, whatever might be the inclination of the incoming President. He quoted from an article in yesterday's New York Herald, to the effect that the President-elect desired to have the Sherman law repealed at this session, and said that he was unable to determine what the President-elect had to do with the question. He would not assert that the article was authorized, and yet it comported with the general tenor of reports. He had never seen anything more indecent in a publication, if it should be traced anywhere near to the incoming administration. In conclusion Mr. Teller reasserted his confident belief that it was not among the possibilities that the Sherman act would be repealed at this session of Congress.

Mr. Vest (Dem., Mo.) felt compelled as a Democratic Senator to notice what had been said about the President-elect. He had no authority to speak for him, and did not agree with him on the silver question; but he had never suspected any indirection on Mr. Cleveland's part in regard to that or any other public question. The character of no public man was safe if he were held responsible for newspaper utterances.

Mr. Gray (Dem., Del.) inquired what better evidence there could be of the disposition of the Senate than a roll-call.

Mr. Sherman Favors Free Discussion.

Mr. Sherman expressed his confidence that no attempt would be made to prevent full effect being given to the expressed will of the majority. No such attempt had ever been made in the Senate, and, if it were ever made, the rules would be so changed as to frustrate it and to allow the business of the Senate to be fairly transacted. He had taken means to ascertain the sentiments of Senators and he was not satisfied that the bill could be passed at the present session.

Mr. Hill (Dem., N. Y.) said that in his judgment the best way to test the sense of the Senate was by a direct motion, and he therefore gave notice that Monday next, during the morning hour, he should move to take up the bill to which Mr. Sherman referred.

The business of the Senate was then suspended in order that fitting tributes might be made to the memory of Senator Barbour of Virginia. Eulogies were pronounced by Messrs. Daniel, Manderson, Faulkner, Gallinger, Platt, Hill, Hiscock, and Hunton—Mr. Barbour's successor in the Senate. The following allusion to the Barbour funeral ceremonies in the Senate chamber occurred in Mr. Hill's remarks:

> We have not forgotten that peculiarly solemn and impressive funeral of his—the first of its kind, I believe, ever held in this chamber—where the beautiful rites and ceremonies of his mother church were administered in our presence, whereby we were taught another lesson in behalf of religious tolerance and Christian brotherhood on earth. It was peculiarly fitting that such services should be held here over the mortal remains of one of Virginia's foremost sons—Virginia, whose grand Senator he was—the State that had given to the country the great Jefferson, who had done so much for the suppression of bigotry and proscription, and on whose monument is inscribed the noble and imperishable record that he was the author of the statute for religious freedom in Virginia.

The usual resolutions were agreed to, and the Senate (as a further mark of respect to the memory of Mr. Barbour) adjourned.

ANDREW-CATE BANKING BILL.

Petition Being Circulated Among House Members Touching Its Consideration.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—The Democratic advocates for the repeal of the silver bullion purchase act today began the circulation among the Democratic members of the House of a petition to the Committee on Rules urging that committee, before a vote is taken on the special order it has brought in for consideration of the Andrew-Cate bill, to permit a motion to be made in the House to amend the rule so as to provide that a vote must be taken on the bill and all pending amendments at a fixed hour and without any dilatory motions. Several of the petitions are in circulation, but as yet they have been shown to only a comparatively small number of the House.

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON.

Senator Palmer and Gov. Oglesby Have a Merry Time in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Gov. Richard J. Oglesby and Senator John M. Palmer sat side by side today on the floor of the Senate, laughing and telling stories like a couple of schoolboys. These gentlemen have been friends all their lives; there never was a time when they were not inseparable companions. They became acquainted half a century ago; changes in political faith have never interfered with their friendly relations. Oglesby, when Governor of Illinois, invariably called on Palmer for his advice whenever a knotty question was submitted to him. Palmer was always eager to get Oglesby's ideas when he was the Governor of the State. They used to visit each other, and in fact some of the people around Springfield used to say they occupied the same bed. Oglesby has the most profound respect for Palmer and calls him John. Senator Palmer refers to the Governor as the General, and sometimes "Uncle Dick." They were having a lot of fun together on the floor of the Senate today, and the warmth of their meeting attracted the attention of a good many Senators and the men in the press gallery. Gov. Oglesby has been here for two or three days and seems to be in perfect health and wonderfully good spirits.

Bad Financial Wreck.

Controller Hepburn has placed Bank Examiner Galbraith of Missouri in charge of the First National Bank of Little Rock, Ark., which failed Wednesday. He says the bank's affairs are in bad shape, and that it will be placed in the hands of a receiver. As far back as Jan. 19 Bank Examiner Galbraith was sent to examine into the affairs of the bank, and reported then that the books showed $400,000 losses. He recommended an assessment of 60 per cent upon the stockholders to make up for the impaired capital.

Burrows and the Whisky Trust.

The subcommittee of the House Judiciary committee detailed to examine into the whisky trust, as proposed by the resolution of Mr. Burrows, began its inquiry today by hearing Mr. Burrows. His information regarding the trust was limited to newspaper articles. The investigation will be continued tomorrow.

National Capital Notes.

Sir Julian Pauncefote, British Minister, went to the State Department today and in person hand the papers in the British Bering Sea counter case to Secretary Foster.

Two million five hundred thousand dollars in gold has been engaged for shipment from New York tomorrow for Europe. The Treasury officials do not venture a prediction as to when the outflow will stop, but state that they see nothing serious in the situation.

Capt. J. M. Lee, U. S. A., in a communication laid before the Senate today by Senator Voorhees, charges that the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians have been defrauded out of $67,500 by certain attorneys, and that evidence of that fact has been suppressed by the Indian Bureau.

Speaker Crisp today laid before the House the President's message relative to the bond transit over Canadian roads and it was referred. The deficiency appropriation bill was passed and the Indian appropriation bill reported. The House then paid tribute to the memory of Representative Craig of Pennsylvania, and adjourned.

In the Senate today Mr. Mitchell reported from the Judiciary committee a bill to pay the awards of the Court of Claims in French spoliation cases. The House bill to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Kickapoo Indians in Oklahoma Territory, and appropriating $64,650 for that purpose, was passed (with amendments), and a conference asked.

By direction of the President Secretary Foster of the Treasury Department today directed the Collectors of Customs at New York, Philadelphia, and Boston to suspend the refund of duties upon hat material until further advised. The question of continuing the refund of duties will be one of the first that will come up for consideration when Mr. Carlisle assumes charge of the Treasury Department.

All about Cinderella tomorrow.

VERY EASILY CAUGHT.

That Is the Universal Opinion of One of the Most Dangerous Things in the World.

This has been a cold winter, often bitterly cold, and in far too many cases it has produced colds. A cold is easily caught, and is always the beginning of disease, often serious disease. A cold may come in many forms. Sometimes it is with a chill, a shuddering chill; sometimes with a pain in the shoulders and arms; sometimes with a vague aching in the muscles or the limbs. In whatever form it may come it is a cold, and it means disease; often dangerous disease or death, unless taken in hand promptly.

You cannot afford to neglect a cold. It may run along into something that is dangerous. Remember that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. What should you do as a sensible man or woman? Watch the symptoms, guard against the first signs, fortify against everything that can be unpleasant, injurious, or dangerous. There is only one way by which this can be done. It is by the use of some pure, reliable stimulant; something that will quicken the pulse, renew the life, bring into action and aglow all the faculties; something which has been tested and tried; something that is superior to everything else. You do not need to ask what this is. It is sufficient to name it. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been proven to be superior to anything; all things that have been presented to the public for checking a cold, curing pneumonia, and rendering the life at this season of the year happier and better. It has been used by more people and is more popular today than any other known preparation in the world, and it deserves its popularity because it has proven its merits by the cures it has effected, colds it has prevented, and lives it has saved. Care should be exercised that no unscrupulous druggist or grocer tries to substitute anything which he may claim to be "just as good." There is nothing that can take its place.

RECOLLECTIONS.

What a blessed thing is memory! How it brings up the pleasures of the past, and hides its unpleasantness! You recall your childhood days, do you not, and wish they would return? You remember the pleasant associations, while the unpleasant ones are forgotten. Perhaps to your mind comes the face of some friend. It was once a pale, sad face. It showed marks of pain, lines of care. It seemed to be looking into the hereafter, the unknown future. And then you recalled how it brightened, how it recovered its rosy hue, how it became a picture of happiness and joy. Do you remember these things? Many people do, and gladly tell how the health returned, how happiness came back, how the world seemed bright. They tell how they were once weak, nerveless, perhaps in pain, certainly unhappy. They tell of sleepless nights, restless days, untouched food, unstrung nerves. And then they tell how they became happy, healthy, and strong once more. You have heard it often in the past, have you not? You have heard people describe how they were cured and kept in health? You certainly can remember what it is that has so helped people in America. If not, listen to what Mrs. Annie Jenness Miller, who is known universally as the great dress reformer, says: "Six years ago, when suffering from mental care and overwork, I received the most pronounced benefit from the use of that great medicine, Warner's Safe Cure." Ah, now you remember. Now you recall how much you have heard of this great Cure. Now you are ready to admit that memory is usually pleasing, that the highest pleasure comes from perfect health, and that this great remedy has done more to produce and prolong health than any other discovery ever known in the entire history of the whole world.

ONE HUNDRED KILLED

FIVE HUNDRED WOUNDED IN A RIOT AT BOGOTA.

Newspaper Article Alleges Widespread Ignorance Among the Laboring Classes, Which Leads to the Bloodshed—All Troops Sent to Egypt Must Be Landed—Gravity of the Situation—Evacuation Demanded—Three Italian Premiers Said to Be Implicated in the Bank Scandal.

[SPECIAL CABLE.]

PANAMA, Feb. 3.—[Copyright, 1893, by James Gordon Bennett.]—There has been a serious riot at Bogota, which lasted two days. One hundred men were killed and 500 wounded. The riots are in no sense political. The trouble grew out of a publication in La Cristina of an article by J. Ignacio Gutierrez, a professor in a local Jesuit college, alleging widespread ignorance among the laboring classes.

The artisans rose en masse, and a mob of about 400 gathered about the house of Gutierrez, stoned the building, and broke the windows and doors. The police remonstrated with the rioters, but they were driven away. They returned with reinforcements, and a collision occurred in which shots were exchanged. The police were victorious.

Another fight occurred later in the day, but the rioters were dispersed. Everything was quiet the next morning, but at 5 o'clock in the evening the workingmen gathered by thousands in San Victorino square, Las Cruces ward, and in the day public market. They overpowered the police, and for awhile were in full possession of the city. Newspaper offices were sacked and a general assault was commenced on the police barracks. The government called out the military, and after a sharp fight the mob was dispersed.

The capital is still in a state of siege, although it is officially announced that quiet has been restored. A strict local press censorship has been established.

ALL TROOPS ARE NEEDED IN EGYPT.

Egyptian Affairs Serious—Debate in the House of Commons.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—A dispatch was received at the Foreign Office today from Lord Cromer, British Minister to Egypt, stating that the condition of affairs in Egypt may compel the landing of all the British troops that have been ordered to that country. The Ulemas, or theological jurists of Constantinople, have sent an answer to an appeal from the Ulemas of Cairo to the effect that the Sultan sustains the Khedive and that the Turkish Ministers are discussing whether to protest to the signatory powers in general against English interference in Egypt or to address a remonstrance first to Great Britain.

In the House of Commons today the debate on the Queen's address proceeded monotonously until Henry Labouchere proposed an amendment in favor of withdrawing entirely from Uganda. After vindicating the right of the House of Commons to control the government's foreign policy Mr. Labouchere addressed himself to the Egyptian question. He felt that now the sooner the occupation ceased the better it would be for all concerned, as the Khedive and his people were unalterably opposed to the British régime. He hoped that the government would treat with France in a friendly spirit on questions concerning the withdrawal. It would be a disgrace to the great Liberal party if they went out of office without having fulfilled their pledges to leave Egypt.

Referring to the understanding that Lord Salisbury had assured Italy of British support in case of war between Italy and France, Mr. Labouchere requested the Prime Minister to state that his government was in nowise responsible if Italy, in consequence of its membership in the triple alliance, went to war with France. In that case Italy must be left to fight its own battles. [Liberal cheers.] Recurring to the subject of Uganda, Mr. Labouchere ridiculed the pretensions of the East African company to a mission of civilization.

Mr. Gladstone replied that as to the relations of Italy to the triple alliance and France, he was not aware that anything [illegible] since the accession of the present government to power to cause uneasiness about Great Britain's foreign relations. The government had aimed to maintain external security and internal peace in Egypt, and he trusted would be able to restore the desired harmony between the native government and Great Britain. A spirit of conciliation, he believed, animated the French Government, and this spirit would be reciprocated, although he declined to express an opinion affecting England's liberty of action in the matter of remote or immediate withdrawal from Egypt.

Mr. Gladstone also commended warmly the French Government for its temperate and friendly action during the recent Egyptian crisis. He deprecated any discussion of the Uganda matter before Sir Gerald Portal, Government Commissioner to Uganda, returned and reported on the present situation there.

"If it be shown that we have incurred a responsibility in Uganda," he said, "it will be incumbent upon us to discharge the debt of honor."

Mr. Gladstone's final statement that Portal, although having no administrative mission, might be useful in an administrative capacity was received with ironical laughter by the opposition.

Arthur J. Balfour, leader of the opposition, apologized amid cheers and laughter for presuming to intervene in the domestic quarrel between Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Labouchere. He thought it was important to know what the government intended to do in the interval between the conclusion of Portal's mission and the adoption of a definite policy. The late government had intended that the East Africa company should administer affairs in Uganda and construct a railway. The Prime Minister appeared anxious to evade the question and had spoken disparagingly of the railway plan.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 3.—The French Ambassador is trying to move the Porte to summon a European conference for the consideration of the crisis in Egypt.

THREE PREMIERS IMPLICATED.

President of the Bank of Rome Made the Charge—Excitement in the Chamber.

ROME, Feb. 3.—The report was confirmed today that Sig. Tanlongo, the imprisoned governor of the Bank of Rome, had made a statement implicating Premier Giolitti and ex-Premiers di Rudini and Crispi. Immediately after the opening of the Chamber the President had read a letter from ex-Premier Crispi. The letter stated that Crispi had never had a lire from the Bank of Rome, that nobody in office in the days of his premiership, as far as he knew, had had any official or personal relations with the bank, and that he had never seen or heard anything to indicate that his predecessor or his successors had received any money from the bank for political or private purposes. Were he not confined to his bed, Crispi wrote, he would appear before the Chamber to prove the falseness of Tanlongo's statement.

Sig. Colajanni spoke at length concerning the necessity of appointing a parliamentary commission to inquire into the scandal. In conclusion he shouted defiantly: "The national bank has paid annually a large sum of money to the secret service fund. All have suspected this and many of us know it."

"A more utterly false statement could not be made in this house," exclaimed Premier Giolitti. The Premier then addressed himself to the Deputies who, he said, were intent upon forcing a parliamentary inquiry. It was for the chamber to decide whether or not Deputy Zerbi, who is charged with having received large subsidies from the Bank of Rome, should be delivered up to the criminal law at once, but he and his colleagues in the ministry would resist to the last every attempt to authorize an investigation by a commission of Deputies. The courts of justice had ample powers to deal with the matter in question.

Sig. Grimaldi, Minister of Justice, repudiated the infamous accusations current against him and the Department of Justice. He was aware, he said, that a systematic effort was making to discredit him and his office by heaping calumnies on both and he would reserve for himself the privilege to prove in the near future that his conduct in office had been always worthy of a Minister of the crown.

After a stormy debate the Chamber decided to authorize the prosecution of Deputy Zorbi.

A Palermo daily says that the murder of Sig. Notarbartolo on a railway train near Aeta Villa yesterday was part of a plot to suppress evidence concerning the bank scandals. Notarbartolo was long director of the Bank of Sicily and as such got possession of many documents incriminating persons of high influence. The government made an inquiry into the management of the Bank of Sicily several years ago, and a voluminous report, said to incriminate all the directors except Notarbartolo, was filed in the government department of which Sig. Monzillo, now under arrest, had charge. This report was stolen and the thief was never apprehended. After the theft Notarbartolo seldom traveled without having an armed attendant by his side. The documents in his satchel are believed to have been the stolen report.

ARGUMENT IN THE DE STUERS CASE.

Barrister Clunet Says Diplomatic Immunity Is the Father's Plea.

[SPECIAL CABLE.]

PARIS, Feb. 3.—[Copyright, 1893, by James Gordon Bennett.]—Diplomatic immunity is the plea behind which Chevalier de Stuers, Netherland's Minister to Paris, takes refuge to prevent his former wife, now Mrs. Elliott Zborowski, from obtaining possession of his daughter, now in the Convent of Sacre Cœur here. The custody of this child was accorded to Mrs. Stuers by the South Dakota court which granted her divorce, but the Superioress of the convent, prompted by De Stuers, refuses to give up the girl without an injunction from the French courts. The case came up today before the first chamber of the Civil Court. It was rumored that presiding Judge de Bois Lisle was a partisan for Chevalier de Stuers, and the opening gave color to the report. When Clunet, barrister for Mrs. Zborowski, rose the Judge told him to be brief. Clunet rebelled and argued that the case involved a new point and that it was impossible to do justice to his client without laying all the facts before the court. "I never knew such a thing before," said Clunet, and eventually the Judge allowed him to speak on condition that he would be brief. Clunet afterwards said the Judge's attitude was a scandalous, shameful, deliberate attempt to throttle the suit.

However, Clunet once started was not easily stopped in his speech. He made a keen argument and well marshaled his facts. He dwelt on Mrs. Zborowski's rights to the custody of the child and referred with cutting irony to the cowardly action of De Stuers, who is taking advantage of his position as Minister to balk justice and keep the mother from even seeing her child. "I am above law," says De Stuers.

Clunet then drew a striking contrast between this attitude of De Stuers and his energetic defense before the South Dakota Court. Beaten in an open fight, De Stuers had taken refuge behind his diplomatic immunity. Thus a woman who in the first instance had been refused justice in France because of her husband's position, who had sought and found justice in America and returned to France to take possession of her child, was again to be denied justice. Clunet then examined the case from a purely legal point of view, cleverly making the point that De Stuers' diplomatic unity was not in question. The court reserved judgment for a week. Mrs. Zborowski was not in court, but Elliott Zborowski was an attentive listener. He said afterwards that he would, if an adverse decision is given, take the case before the American Legation and fight it to the death.

MAJORITY FOR THE GOVERNMENT.

First Division in Parliament Gives the Figure at Ninety-seven.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The first [illegible] present session of Parliament was taken last night and resulted in an unexpectedly large majority for the government. The division was on motion to adjourn, and was taken after Mr. Morley had finished his speech. Although the motion was supported by Mr. Balfour and other Conservatives the government was given a snap majority of ninety-seven. The announcement of the figures was received with vigorous cheers by the Liberals.

It is stated that Mr. Balfour refrained from dilating upon home rule Tuesday with the expectation that Mr. Chamberlain would propose an amendment raising the question, but the Speaker's action in objecting to such a course before the introduction of the home rule bill deprived Mr. Chamberlain of a chance to propose the amendment.

Dr. Gallagher's Alleged Insanity.

In the House of Commons today William Redmond (Parnellite) called attention to the statement of Thomas Callan, the dynamiter who was recently released from Portland prison, that Dr. Gallagher, who is still confined in the prison, had been made insane through bad treatment. Mr. Redmond asked if Mr. Asquith, the Home Secretary, would sanction such an independent inquiry to be made in Dr. Gallagher's case as the Irish members of the House could rely upon. Mr. Asquith declined to permit an independent inquiry and added that the statement made by Callan was absolutely without foundation.

Canadian Charged with Forgery.

MANY ARE NOW HOPELESSLY CRAZY.

Inhabitants of Zante Think the World Is Coming to an End.

ATHENS, Feb. 3.—The earthquakes at Zante have been the worst on that island in modern times, and no one can tell when the disturbances will cease. The shocks experienced last night did enormous damage, in fact the whole island was devastated. A terrific thunderstorm prevailed at the time of the shocks. The rain fell in torrents and was accompanied by large hailstones. The blinding flashes of lightning, the roaring thunder, and the rumbling beneath the surface of the swaying earth caused many persons to believe that the end of all things had come. The people were panic stricken, and so great was the fear inspired that many persons entirely lost their reason and are now hopelessly crazy. Last night's shocks destroyed the bread ovens in the City of Zante, rendering it impossible for the greater portion of the inhabitants to procure that article of food. The Minister of the Interior has arrived at Zante and will do everything in his power to relieve the distress. King George will start for Zante Sunday. A British warship and three vessels belonging to the Greek navy arrived at the island today with supplies of tents, provisions, and medicines.

TO THE AMERICAN ARCHBISHOPS.

Notice of Mgr. Satolli's Appointment from Cardinal Ledochowski.

ROME, Feb. 3.—The Holy Congregation of the Propaganda has addressed the following declaration to the Roman Catholic Archbishops in the United States:

Most Illustrious and Most Reverend Sirs: The Supreme Pontiff has many reasons of sadness on account of the distresses which the impudent endeavors of wicked men are trying to bring upon Christianity, and especially in Europe. On the other hand it is a great consolation to him to see the increase of Catholicism, with God's aid, elsewhere in the world. This is especially true of the great republic, for where scarcely a century ago there was hardly a vestige of Catholicity, we see now the church flourishing in the great number of its faithful, in its institutions of government, its orders and hierarchy, and its large Senate of Bishops. Encouraged, therefore, the Pontiff not only follows with great interests the things pertaining to the good of religion in these parts, but has tried to show plainly his great solicitude.

When the university at Washington was opened it pleased the Pontiff to send a prelate to congratulate the Bishops on the event and to encourage them to still greater works. Now, in the fourth century, after the shores of America, separated by the ocean from the Old World, were first discovered, and while the memory of the auspicious event is being celebrated in festivals, the Pontiff, who is a great admirer of the republic, delegates the same prelate, a man of the highest dignity, to testify to the Pope's regard for this post.

The care of the most thoughtful Pontiff has not rested here. Since growth has brought the church in America to a stage of maturity in which it ought to be favored with the institutions with which the church has flourished elsewhere, the Pontiff does not desire that there should be any obstacle to supplying these aids of Christianity whereby there may be closer union with the center and whereby Christian unity may the more greatly increase.

His Holiness, therefore, orders the Holy Congregation of the Propaganda to signify to the Bishops of the United States that he has determined to appoint the venerable Francis, Titular Archbishop of Lepanto, Apostolic Delegate to the United States. This, according to the custom of the church, seemed appropriate to the state of dignity which the Catholic religion has attained in America, and especially on account of other peculiar circumstances. Therefore, doubtless, you, illustrious prelates, will receive joyfully what the Pontiff has thought it well to do for the honor and good of the church.

While informing you of the most wise determination of his Holiness, we express a firm hope that you will diligently assist the distinguished man whom the pastor of the whole church has made delegate among you in everything pertaining to your affairs.

Given at Rome by the Sacred Congregation of the Propaganda, January, 1893. Your Grace's obedient servant, LEDOCHOWSKI.

DEVIGIERE PROTEST CONFIRMED.

The Colombian Government Objects to Him—Canal Influences at Work.

[SPECIAL CABLE.]

PANAMA, Feb. 3.—[Copyright, 1893, by James Gordon Bennett.]—The Panama papers today confirm the protest of the Colombian Government to M. Devigiere. The Frenchmen ridicule the idea that the United States will make any proposition to Colombia looking toward the acquirement of the canal. They say that such talk is inspired by the liquidator, who hopes in this way to touch French pride and induce France at the last moment to take official action on behalf of the canal. It is also intimated that the action of the Colombian Government in this matter, giving it a seeming official standing, is due to canal influence. It is said that as a last resort the canal people will plead the invalidity of the Wyse extension on the ground that it was not approved by the Tribunal of the Seine, and will claim an extension under the old contract.

DEMAND THAT FREE COINAGE STOP.

Native and European Merchants Wait on the Viceroy of India.

CALCUTTA, Feb. 3.—A deputation of native and European merchants today waited upon the Viceroy of India and submitted to him resolutions demanding that, in view of the failure of the Brussels monetary conference to arrive at any conclusion in the bimetallic issue, the Government of India should immediately close the mints to free coinage. Lord Lansdowne said that the Indian Currency Association had strengthened the case by leaving the proposals to change the standard for future consideration. The opponents of the change must now show that while a change of the currency standard of value from silver to gold would benefit other nations it would damage India. The whole question must, however, await the issue of the Herschell Currency Commission appointed in England to consider the question.

BUENOS AYRES, Feb. 3.—The Banco de Roma y la Plata has suspended payment in consequence of the losses sustained in gold speculation by the manager of the concern. These losses amount to $1,000,000.

Death of Francois Van Rysselberghe.

[SPECIAL CABLE.]

WHISKY MEN EFFECT AN ORGANIZATION.

They Urge That the Whisky Trust Appoint a Commission for the Rebate Fund.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The whisky men effected permanent organization today, and after electing officers adjourned. [illegible] posed as a place for the next meeting and a viva voce vote Cincinnati was chosen. No final action was taken in the matter, however, the selection of a place of meeting being left to the Board of Control. The name of the association as agreed upon is the American Distillers' and Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association. An initiation fee of $25 and annual dues of $10 was decided upon. After adopting the constitution the election of officers was entered upon with the following result: J. B. Wathen, Louisville, President; J. H. Holmes, Cleveland, First Vice-President; and William H. Lee of St. Louis, Second Vice-President. The Board of Control, which is to consist of seven members appointed by the President, will select the Secretary and Treasurer of the organization. Before adjourning a resolution aimed at the whisky trust was adopted:

Urging and insisting that the Distilling and Cattle Feeding company select three trustees not connected in any official capacity with that company whose specific duty it shall be to safely invest the rebate fund and to see to it that it be properly and legitimately applied to redeem the rebate vouchers at their maturity.

QUARREL OVER PRIMARY JUDGES.

Democrats in Five Wards Contest the Lists Presented to the Commissioners.

In five wards a contest has developed in the Democratic party over the selection of judges and clerks to serve at the primaries and spring election. The factions presented their claims to the Election Commissioners yesterday and were given until Saturday to perfect their charges. In the Seventh Ward Ald. Murphy objected to the list recommended by the Central committeemen.

In the Tenth Ward Ald. Schumacher contested the nominations made by the committeemen of the Sixteenth Precinct. Ex-Ald. Kowalski headed a German-American delegation to protest against the recommendations of one of the committeemen. Lists from the ward committee and Central committeemen were presented in the Seventeenth Ward. The matter will come up again in a week from today, and the contesting factions were advised to settle their differences before that time.

The wards in which the appointments will be made by the Commissioners are as follows:

Republican—Tenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, and Thirtieth.

Democratic—Fifth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-seventh, and Twenty-eighth.

TRAINS COLLIDE IN A HEAVY FOG.

Several Persons Are Injured and One May Die—Missed the Light.

EAST DOUGLAS, Mass., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—There was a railroad accident early this morning which caused the injury of a number of persons, one of whom will probably die. The injured are as follows:

BRESLIN, MAX, Boston; leg broken.
DE BENEDETTA, CAMILLA, Boston; leg broken.
DE BENEDETTA, SALVINI, Boston; leg broken, and will probably die from internal injuries.
DANIELS, ——, engineer express, leg hurt.
WELLMAN, C., Newark, N. J.; leg broken.

The east-bound Norwich, Conn., train was about an hour and ten minutes late when it stopped at the station and a flagman was sent back. Conductor Harry Mindler of the boat train had entered the station to get orders when the New York express came around the short curve west of the station and the rails were in such an icy condition it was impossible to stop the train. The engine entered the rear car, in which were ten or fifteen passengers, but none were injured. This car, No. 172, was driven into the combination car next forward, in which were a number of Italians. The damage to rolling stock is about $5,000.

ALASKANS PLEADING FOR HOME RULE.

They Will Send a Delegate to Ask for Important Legislation.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 3.—Late advices from Alaska are to the effect that the citizens of that Territory are earnestly working for home rule. A convention will meet in Juneau this month to elect a delegate who will carry to Washington a petition asking the following legislation: A delegate to Congress, home rule, modification of the present prohibitory liquor law, and a law by which public lands may be taken up by actual settlers.

ARRANGE FAIR RATES

TRUNK LINES COMMITTEE MAKES AN EXCURSION SCHEDULE.

Fares Are Not Reduced, but There Will Be a 20 Per Cent Discount on Trains, New York to Chicago in More than Thirty-Six Hours—Gotham Artists Will Not Exhibit—James R. Keene Was Not Caught in the Whisky Slump, but Made a Profit—General News of New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The Executive committee of the Trunk Lines Association, with Commissioner Blanchard representing the Central Traffic Association, had a meeting today to perfect arrangements for World's Fair rates. No further reductions were made in the fares. They will be held at the standard rate on all regular trains of less than thirty-six hours between New York and Chicago, with a reduction of 20 per cent on trains taking thirty-six hours or more. It was arranged that on the so-called cheap excursion trains to be run on certain days by all the roads the fares must be established on this basis: Twenty per cent reduction from the regular limited fare on each particular road, but allowing passengers to stop off as often as they please. Another feature of this ticket is that it gives a choice of routes returning from Chicago. These excursion tickets will be as follows:

Pennsylvania and New York Central, $32; Erie and West Shore, $28.40; and Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Ontario and Western, Lehigh Valley, and Baltimore and Ohio, $27.60.

From other points in the territory of the two associations a corresponding reduction will be made on such excursion trains based upon the limited passenger fare.

GOTHAM ARTISTS WON'T EXHIBIT.

H. C. Ives, the Exposition Art Department, and the Jury Criticised.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The Herald prints the following:

There is no painter better known, more popular, or financially more successful than J. G. Brown, N. A., whose street boys have made his fame and whose works shown abroad have attracted much attention. Mr. Brown is President of the American Water-Color Society, and neither he nor T. W. Wood, the President of the National Academy, nor Daniel Huntington, the former President, will be represented in New York's art contribution to the World's Fair. Mr. Brown has written to request the return of two works which the jury on painting included in its list, and Mr. Wood and Mr. Huntington, like some thirty of the other artists of prominence, did not offer any works on account of the dissatisfaction that has been felt among them at the manner of running the Art Department of Columbian display, and what they considered the ruling tendency of the committees, which have been generally understood to be under the Society of American Artists' influence.

The jury on painting chose one of Mr. Brown's pictures, "At the Old Cottage," which appeared at a display of the society several years ago and at its late retrospective exhibition, and accepted one only out of the five he himself submitted. This is the "Stump Speech." The works rejected are "The Village Carpenter," an admirable canvas, "Morning Devotions," which appeared at the last fall exhibition of the National Academy, "The Card Trick," and "Shine." Mr. Brown, who had originally intended not to send, but was persuaded, said yesterday that he asked for the return of his two pictures, because he did not consider that he would be adequately represented by them. He said he was not angry about the affair, but that it was a matter of pride with him.

Artists Who Will Not Be Represented.

Among the artists who did not send in pictures, and whose names and works are known all over the country, are:

Seymour J. Guy, N. A.; James M. Hart, N. A.; J. W. Casilear, N. A.; William Hart, N. A.; E. Wood Perry, N. A.; James H. Beard, N. A.; David Johnson, N. A.; George H. Story, A. N. A.; and Horatio Walker, N. A.

The trouble all along has been due to the small size and the supposed influence governing the Committees on Painting and Sculpture and Art Director H. C. Ives, [illegible] the artists.

Mr. Ives appeared some time ago at a gathering of artists held at the Academy of Design and explained what had been done and what it was intended to do. He did but little, however, to allay the feeling of discontent which the Herald long before had shown to exist, and, though matters quieted down somewhat and a decided effort at liberality was shown in the appointment of the subcommittees, the present situation shows a most marked disaffection.

All artistic experience has proved the advisability of large committees. These have always been the rule at the displays of the Society of American Artists, and of late years the academy has followed suit. What has happened to Mr. Brown, whom some may perhaps blame for his own action, will, however, convince all the painters who did not send that they were wise.

The Jury on Painting.

While the jury on painting, composed of Eastman Johnson, Chairman, William M. Chase, R. Swain Gifford, H. Bolton Jones, and Frederick Dielman of New York, E. C. Tarbell and J. M. Gaugengigl of Boston, Charles E. Dana and J. W. Bentley of Philadelphia, and Mary Cassatt of Paris, is credited with a thorough desire to be just the reasons for both its liberality and illiberality in acceptance and rejection in certain cases are hardly understood. It should have understood that it is not strictly the best show possible that is wanted, but the best and most representative.

A cause for complaint, and a very natural one, among those who had pictures accepted was the publication of the lists in classes of one, two, and three, as voted on, which I am informed that Secretary W. B. Tuthill intended to avoid, but without success, and for which possibly some one of the jury is responsible.

A feature of the committee which excited comment was the appointment at a late hour of the two women artists, Miss Cassatt and Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote, neither of whom appeared, one being in Europe and the other in the West. It is said that Miss Cassatt was expected here about the time of the sitting of the jury on painting, to which she was appointed, but it would have seemed a little more in earnest to have chosen one of the number of excellent women artists in New York. Surely some of the members of the Woman Art club would have been glad to serve.

Eastman Johnson said: "I think there must be a mistake about it. Mr. Burns sent five pictures, of which three were accepted. That any were sent back was not because of lack of merit in the pictures or because they would not do sufficient credit to the State's art contribution. Then Mr. Brown wrote a letter to me as Chairman of the Committee on Paintings, showing clearly he was not altogether pleased. I wrote him an explanatory reply, the answer to which I showed several members of the committee and explained to others, so that nearly all are advised of its contents. Mr. Brown in the first letter made no demand to have his accepted pictures sent back, and in the second seemed to be satisfied with the action of the committee. I know the committee would like, if such a thing were practicable, to place on exhibition every picture by Mr. Brown that could be had."

"Everything is going on as well as could possibly be expected," said Mr. J. Q. Ward. "We are going to have a splendid exhibit. All the artists can bring are given the best possible show."

President T. W. Wood of the Academy of Design said: "I did not send any pictures because I did not think the Chicago management was desirous of having American art in its true sense exhibited."

[The Exposition authorities in Chicago regret that any unpleasantness has arisen over the Art Department exhibit. The Art Building has aroused the admiration of the world, and it is hoped that the exhibition will be in keeping with Mr. Atwood's masterpiece. Mr. Ives was not prepared to make formal statement yesterday, and officials of other departments did not care to talk on the subject. It is believed, however, that an amicable settlement of all differences will be made.]

All about Cinderella tomorrow.

JIM KEENE GOT OUT WITH A PROFIT.

He Was Suspicious of His Associates in the Whisky Pool.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—[Special.]—There will be a final settlement of the affairs of the Wall street whisky pool in a few days. Then it will come out that James R. Keene, who managed the manipulation of the stock, was not so badly worsted by some of his faithless associates in the sacrifice as the speculative fraternity has supposed.

According to the story, which has been current in Wall street since the recent slump in distilling and cattle feeding stock, Mr. Keene was the victim of treachery on the part of some associates in the pool, who secretly unloaded on him and caused him heavy losses by the serious drop in prices. It turns out that it is not true; that Mr. Keene, suspecting treachery, sold the stock short and not only saved himself from loss but made money on the other side.

When the stock had been forced up to about 70 by the purchases of the pool, which had then absorbed 135,000 shares, Mr. Keene had his suspicions aroused that some of the stock which he was buying was coming from some of his wily associates. Mr. Keene is said to have traced the stock directly to President Greenhut and Nelson Morris. He sent for these men and told them of his suspicions. They protested their innocence. Mr. Keene went on buying for the pool and the price went up to 72½. Presently more certificates appeared which had undoubtedly been unloaded by Greenhut and Morris.

Then the break came. The Greenhut-Morris crowd, who had been selling short, thought their sales had caused the decline, and on the break down to 60 they began to cover. They did not know that the stock they were buying was being fed to them from the pool. In other words, Mr. Keene had changed sides on the market. Mr. Keene is said to have sold 50,000 shares of the stock short before the Greenhut crowd found out that he was operating for a decline. He made a nice little sum on the deal and left the Western men loaded up with the stock which they had thought to sell to a confiding public.

MAY PLAY TENNIS AT CHICAGO.

[illegible] Will Be Contested Here.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The United States National Lawn Tennis Association held its annual meeting at the Hoffman House tonight. The Secretary's report showed the association had prospered wonderfully since its meeting last year, consisting now of 107 clubs. The Treasurer showed a balance of $1,457.48. The receipts for the year were $2,759.64, and the expenditures $1,302.16, a net gain of over $500 since last year. These officers were elected:

H. W. Slocum, President; James Dwight, Vice-President; Joseph T. Whittelsey, Secretary; and Valentine J. Hall, Treasurer; Executive committee, J. S. Clark, H. A. Taylor, O. S. Campbell, Clarence Hobart, and Victor Elting of the Riverside Tennis club of Chicago.

The most important question was the place to decide the national championship, as well as the single and double championships, for the coming season. The Chicago representatives made a strong bid for Chicago during the time of the World's Fair, and even went so far as to offer valuable prizes for the players. After considerable discussion it was resolved—

That the double championship tournament for the season of 1893 be held in Chicago, including the championship match tournament, provided satisfactory arrangements can be made with the Chicago representatives and the new Newport Casino governors of Newport, R. I.

From the manner in which some of the delegates spoke, the Newport people evidently have a first mortgage on both tournaments. It was decided to hold the championship for the singles in Newport, R. I. The ladies' championship singles, doubles, and mixed doubles will be held under the auspices of the Philadelphia Cricket club in Germantown, Pa., beginning June 20.

THREE PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH.

I., attempted last night to elope with Deerfoot, a particularly ugly-looking Kickapoo Indian connected with a peripatetic medicine company. Miss Brightman is 18 years old, extremely attractive, and well bred. The Indian is between 50 and 60 years old. A constable found Miss Brightman disguised as a squaw, and about to take her departure with Deerfoot.

SUPT. BELL SAID TO HAVE RESIGNED.

The Gentleman Himself, However, Flatly Contradicts the Story.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—It is understood that M. O. Bell, Superintendent of the Chicago Public Building, against whom a report of malfeasance in office was made by Assistant Secretary Lambertson, has tendered his resignation to Secretary Foster. It will probably be accepted.

[Mr. Bell was seen at his residence, No. 25 Aldine square, last night and denied positively that he had resigned or that he has any intention of tendering his resignation.]

ROUGH ON RAILWAYS.

INDIANA'S TAX LAW IS DECLARED TO BE VALID.

Decision of the Supreme Court which Vastly Increases the Value of Property for Assessment—Roads Will Now Be Taxed to the Extent of $100,000,000 Over the Usual Figures—The Court Unanimous—Decisions Against Central and Southern Pacific—News of the Northwest.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A tax case more momentous to Indiana than any in the courts in years was affirmed by the Supreme Court today. By the court's finding the railroad companies in the State will have to pay tax on nearly $169,000,000 of property, which is an even $100,000,000 more than under the old assessment before the new law was passed by the last Legislature. The State tax on railroads will thus amount to $1,500,000 in round numbers. The Big Four company was the first to make a fight against the assessment fixed by the State Tax Board. The lower courts sustained the assessment and the case was appealed for the purpose of securing an opinion that would settle once for all the question in dispute. Other companies were quick to take up the fight, and while some few have paid their assessments, suits are now pending in nearly every court in the State to avoid the payment. The Pennsylvania company took a hand with a powerful array of lawyers, and every assailable feature of the new law was attacked with a view to having it declared unconstitutional. The companies were willing to pay a tax on $69,000,000 of property, but objected to the new valuation. For six months the validity of the law has been in doubt, and taxes have been withheld pending this suit.

The greatest array of legal talent ever contending in an Indiana court has wrestled for the supremacy, and the State of Indiana has come out victorious. The original title of the case was the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway Company vs. Victor M. Backus, Treasurer of State. The Big Four railway nearly a year ago brought suit in the Circuit Court of this county to enjoin Treasurer Backus from collecting the taxes assessed upon it by the State Board, before Judge Brown. The constitutionality of the law under which the tax board was operating was attacked. The State won and the case was carried through all the usual stages to the court of last resort, where oral argument was concluded two weeks ago. Attorney-General A. G. Smith, W. A. Ketcham, John W. Kern, and Albert J. Beveridge appeared for the State and Claypool & Claypool appeared for the County Treasurer. For the plaintiffs John F. Dye, A. C. Harris, Butler, Snow & Butler, S. O. Pickens, the attorneys for the Pennsylvania Central and Monon systems, participated actively in the case, while the attorneys for all the railroads operating in Indiana were advisory counsel.

Supreme Justices Unanimous.

The Supreme Court was unanimous in its opinion sustaining the court below. Justice Olds wrote the opinion. It comprises seventy-four pages of legal cap and is nearly 20,000 words in length. All questions involved have been exhaustively treated. The court says:

This is a suit brought by the appellant against the appellee to enjoin the collection of taxes assessed against the appellant railway company by the State Board of Tax Commissioners of Indiana. The appellant is a corporation organized under the laws of Ohio and Indiana, and is and has been for several years engaged in the business of a common carrier and operating a system of railroads in Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois, having various lines of railroads, in Indiana, and its track and rolling stock was assessed for taxation by the State Board of Tax Commissioners, under the act of the Legislature of Indiana, approved March 6, 1891.

The principal question involved in this case relates to the constitutional validity of the law under which the property was assessed, though around this question cluster some others.

The act and its various requirements and provisions in relation to the assessment of such property are extensively and substantially set out in the opinion, which then continues:

1. That it denies due process of law to railway corporations touching the assessment and valuation of their property denominated by the act "railroad track" and "rolling stock," which is, therefore, repugnant to and in conflict with Sec. 1, Art. 14 of the Constitution of the United States, declaring, "Nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law," and Sec. 12, Art. 1 of the Constitution of Indiana, providing that "every man for injury done to him in his person, property, or reputation shall have remedy by due course of law."

2. That the act is void, for the reason that it denies to railway companies the equal protection of the laws granted to all other persons against erroneous, unjust, and illegal assessments of the value of property upon which taxes are assessed to be laid, in that it grants to all persons the right or privilege to be heard before some tribunal authorized to correct errors or give appropriate relief concerning the correctness or equity of assessment or inequalities in the same, or mistakes of fact or law, or illegal conduct of those charged with the duty of making the same, after the original assessments have been made and before they become final and conclusive, and as a protection against burdens imposed by such mistakes and errors; but as to railway companies the act utterly denies all protection whatever against the same burdens against which others are protected and therefore the act is in conflict with that part of the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States, which provides that no State shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Statements by the Court.

These questions are considered in inverse order. Railway companies, the court says, are persons within the meaning of the provisions stated. The fact that a wrong was committed in the execution of the law or that an error was committed and not corrected is no objection to the validity of the law. There must be a real discrepancy in fact within the meaning of the Constitution in such law between the rights of railway companies and other persons to make it open to this objection. Whatever power is given by Sec. 114 of said act to County Boards of Equalization to hear showings from persons assessed as to their assessments, and to correct and change assessments and valuations, is by express provision of Sec. 129 given to the State Board in matters over which it has jurisdiction. By Sec. 87 the State Board is given jurisdiction over the assessment of "railroad track" and "rolling stock," and it is made the duty of such board to assess such property in the manner afterward in the act provided.

Sec. 129 provides, among other things, for the meeting of such board, and fixes the time and place of meeting for the purpose, as stated, of assessing railroad property. By the ninth subdivision of Sec. 120 it is made the duty of the State Board to make such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, as it may deem necessary with respect to its meetings and procedure.

In construing statutes, the prime object is to arrive at the intent and purpose of the Legislature, and so construing this it was intended by the Legislature to give such State Board jurisdiction over "railroad track" and "rolling stock," and the right to correct assessments and valuation made in relation to such property.

Citations from Authorities.

Authorities in relation to the construction of statutes are then cited and discussed. "It is a well-settled rule," the court holds, "that the entire statute must be construed together and that effect must be given to every part of it without manifestly violating the intention of the Legislature. The County Boards having jurisdiction over the assessment of other property and the right to hear and correct errors of assessment and valuation and the State Board having original jurisdiction over 'railroad track' and 'rolling stock,' with express authority to hear and correct errors of assessment and valuation, there is no discrepancy between such property of railroad companies and the property of other persons, even though the State board has appellate jurisdiction over the property of other persons, and the claim that the companies are denied the equal protection of the law has no substantial foundation. Equal protection of the law does not require that all persons shall have the right of a hearing or trial before the same tribunal and in all the same tribunals, having the same right of appeal from one to another.

"As to whether such act denies to railway companies due process of law because no notice was given of the assessment the authorities are cited and discussed. No notice other than that contained in the law itself is necessary to the validity of the assessment. The railway companies are bound by the law, and must take notice of its provisions. They submit a schedule to the State board through the State Auditor for the very purpose of having the valuation fixed upon the property, and the assessment thereof by the board. By the terms of the statute the board is given power to correct any errors in assessment and to change valuations on showing or on its own motion, and railway companies have the same right of a hearing before the State board that any other property-owner has before the county board. The statute fixes the time of meeting of State board, and the railway companies having presented their schedules must take notice that they will be considered by the board; and if they desire further hearings they must appear before the board and make their showing without further notice."

An Important Conclusion.

"The conclusion we reach is that the statute under consideration is a valid enactment and not in conflict with any provisions of the Constitution, either of this State or the United States, and the State Board of Tax Commissioners had full power to assess the property of railway companies denominated 'railroad track' and 'rolling stock'; that railway companies were properly before the board and were entitled to a hearing, and were not denied due process of law or equal protection of the laws within the meaning of the Constitution of this State or the United States. The State Board having fixed the valuation and assessed the property, their action is final and cannot be avoided or set aside except for fraud on the part of the board, which would render the assessment void. No such question is presented in this record."

In conclusion the court says:

It is finally contended that the act creating the State Board and defining its powers and duties is unconstitutional and void for the reasons, in brief, that judicial powers are granted to such board, and because the State executive and administrative officers are created and made appointive by the Governor and not elected by the people; that executive and administrative officers cannot exercise judicial powers, and judicial officers must, by the Constitution, be elected. The members of the State Board are not judicial officers, nor are judicial powers conferred upon them by the act under consideration within the meaning of the Constitution. [Langenberg vs. Decker, 31 N. E., 190.] It is a very common, if not an almost universal, custom in this and other States to make, by statutory exactment, certain of the State officers ex-officio members of the State Boards of Equalization. Such, we think, has been the almost, if not the unbroken practice in this State since the adoption of the present Constitution; and if, as held in Langenberg vs. Decker (supra), they are not vested with such judicial powers as to constitute them a court, but only exercise such quasi-judicial functions as does every public officer vested with discretionary powers, they are certainly eligible to become members of such a board. Nor do we think the other members of the board who the law provides shall be appointed by the Governors are administrative State officers, charged with such duties, or that, by the Constitution, they are required to be elected by the people. They are not administrative officers in charge of any separate department of the State government. The same rule must govern in relation to his selection as the selections of members of local and County Boards of Equalization, and any persons or boards for the appraisement and assessment of values and benefits and injuries to property, and the practice of appointment of such persons and members of boards has always existed. If they may be appointed for one sitting of a board, or to make appraisement of specific property, the value of which is to be ascertained, then certainly this law may authorize this appointment for a longer time; and that such appointments may be authorized by statute we have no doubt; and this conclusion is in harmony with the decision of this court in the State ex rel. Collett vs. Gorley, 122 Ind. 17; and the State ex rel. Young vs. Hyde, 129 Ind. 296.

We have considered and decided all of the questions material to the determination of the cause. We find no error in the record. Judgment affirmed.

MUST PAY TAXES AND INTEREST.

Decisions Against the Central and Southern Pacific in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—Judge Hebbard this morning handed down a decision in the suits against the Central and Southern Pacific railroads for the recovery of taxes. The decision is against the railroads. The action was brought by the people to recover both State and county taxes for the year 1887, amounting to $650,000, with 5 per cent penalty for delinquency and interest from the last Monday in December, 1887. The court allows the attorneys for the people a contingent fee of 10 per cent. The railroad companies held that the assessment for taxes was illegal, because the Federal franchise was included in [illegible] valuation. The court finds that the Federal franchise was not included in the assessment, and that in the sworn statement of defendants to the State Board of Equalization there was no mention of mortgages, bonds, or trust deeds.

BLACK HILLS PEOPLE MYSTIFIED.

They Fail to Understand the Closing of the Harney Peak Tin Mills.

RAPID CITY, S. D., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The shut-down of the Harney Peak Tin company's mine and mills continues to be the chief topic of discussion in Black Hills towns. No definite information can be had, but discord within the company is probably the cause. It is rumored that the English stockholders are dissatisfied with the management, but the recent successful operation of the new mill and the certainty that the company's ores can be profitably worked make the suspension a still greater mystery. For several weeks past Harry Claussen, son of the New York millionaire, who is heavily interested, has been at Hill City keeping close watch of the operations of the mill. This fact and other circumstances point to a disagreement as the cause for the shut-down. The company had just paid the third and last installment of $50,000 upon the mill. Some believe that it is a scheme to reduce the value of tin claims which the company desires to purchase. Locally it is said that the heating apparatus of the mill is defective, and that this made a suspension necessary.

THRUN'S BODY WAS CREMATED.

Companies Compromise with Mrs. Thrun on the Heavy Insurance Carried.

MARSHFIELD, Wis., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Mary T. Thrun is to receive the $35,000 insurance on the life of her husband, or at least a large portion of it. Her husband was Ferdinand Jules Thrun. Mr. and Mrs. Thrun resided at Romeo, a small town on the Wisconsin Central, a few miles north of here. The night of Oct. 27 last their dwelling burned and Thrun was said by his wife to have perished in the flames. The insurance people refused to pay the risks, alleging that the skeleton found in the ruins of the house was not that of Thrun, but one that had been placed in the building, and setting up the claim that Thrun was not dead. The case was carried into the courts. Now the statement is made by a representative of the insurance companies that the Northwestern of Milwaukee, and the Mutual of New York, each of which carried $10,000, have settled with the claimant. Other companies interested are expected to follow this action.

Deplores the Death of Mr. Blaine.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 3.—Finance Minister Matias Romero, formerly Mexican Ambassador to the United States, has written to United States Minister Ryan to express his sorrow on account of James G. Blaine's death. Mr. Blaine, he says, was a useful man who had rendered great service to his country, and his death was a national loss.

AGENTS TAKE ACTION.

THEY DO WHAT THEY CAN TO STOP SMUGGLING OF IMMIGRANTS.

Copies of "The Tribune" Containing the Exposure of the Illegal Traffic Sent to Government Officials and to Steamship Offices—Mr. Schonlau, Writing to Defend Himself, Throws More Light on the Subject—Physicians to Hold a Meeting Tonight.

"It's a matter that ought to be brought to the immediate attention of Secretary Foster at Washington," was the remark made by Edward Francis, manager of the Allan steamship lines, referring to THE TRIBUNE'S exposé yesterday of the methods of certain steamship agents who have been doing all in their power to bring immigrants from the cholera districts to this country in violation of the laws of the United States. Copies of THE TRIBUNE of yesterday containing the exposure of the evil in Chicago have already been mailed by the reputable steamship agents here to their head offices in New York and other eastern cities, and copies have also been sent by them to the Dominion Government at Ottawa, and to the United States authorities at Washington.

A further investigation yesterday showed that far from exaggerating the facts, the illegal traffic is much more widespread than at first appeared. Not only has it existed unchecked in Chicago for months past, but some of the agents in the smaller cities throughout the country have also been doing a profitable business in booking prepaid immigrant passages from cholera stricken districts in Russia, Poland, and other European countries.

It may be stated here that the reputable lines, with a few exceptions, have not countenanced the practice, but it so happens that the exceptions compromise the lines most likely to introduce the scourge into this country. Thousands of prepaid passages have been forwarded from Chicago alone to people living in the plague-stricken districts of Europe, and if steps are not speedily taken to prevent it the chances are that cholera germs will be freely imported during the next few months.

More Light on the Subject.

One of the agents mentioned yesterday in THE TRIBUNE wrote a letter disavowing that he has had any hand in the illegal business. His own letter attempting to deny the statements published is the strongest kind of proof against him. The letter was from Emil Schonlau, steamship ticket agent at Madison and Canal streets, and he writes:

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I note in THE TRIBUNE of today, under the heading "Cholera Can Pass In," that reference is made to supposed business transactions done in my office. Your reporter claims he got figures on steerage rates for tickets reading from Hamburg and other prohibited points. He makes a great point of the fact that his money would be refunded should his friends from Russia fail to be brought across to this country. Allow me to say in the first place that there are no steerage tickets obtainable from any of the steamship companies, but there are greatly reduced second-cabin (or intermediate) rates. "None of the established agencies do any immigration business outside of British and Scandinavian ports, against which there are no restriction," your reporter says. Well, this may be taken for what it is worth. I have not yet seen the ticket agent who refuses to book passengers when he can do so in a perfectly legitimate manner. There is no need of booking passengers at steerage rates when we have such cheap intermediate rates. Steerage tickets are used by some lines for the second cabin passengers and the agent has instructions to write "intermediate" across the same. There is nothing to prevent parties in Russia from buying tickets to some western port, such as Hamburg or Bremen, and then making use of the cheap intermediate rates across the water. Now, as to "reputable agents," who are these people? How do they conduct their business? "They do no immigrant business except from British and Scandinavian ports." What tender consciences these "reputables" must have. The law prohibits their doing "steerage" business, so they do no "immigrant" business at all from prohibited points. When these "reputable gentlemen" issue tickets for, say five second cabin passengers from Hamburg to New York, are they, or are they not, doing any immigration business? For my part I shall continue, in spite of my reputable brethren, to sell any tickets that the law allows me to.

[illegible] statements do not harmonize with the conceded fact that Russian immigrants cannot lawfully cross the German frontier. The stories of the thousands of such people who have suffered the miseries of cold and starvation along the frontier have been published almost daily. Not only can the Russian peasant not pass the German boundary, but it is exceedingly difficult for those who propose to travel second, and even first-class. Even for them most exacting conditions have to be fulfilled. For the poverty-stricken immigrant there is no hope of crossing the frontier. His only hope, therefore, is in being smuggled over the line to one of the ports from which a steamer sails on which he holds a prepaid passage.

How the Law Is Evaded.

But the most extraordinary thing in Mr. Schonlau's argument in favor of his methods is his assertion that steerage tickets are used by some lines and that the word "intermediate" is written over the word "steerage" in the ticket. He does not add, as he truthfully could, that some of the steamship lines write the word "intermediate" on a slip of paper and paste that over the steerage sign at the entrance to that quarter of the steamer. That is the way in which at least one of the lines attempts to evade the law.

But as to the assertion that these metamorphosed steerage tickets are charged for at intermediate rates, THE TRIBUNE has proof to the contrary. Some of them have been issued at $32, the regular old steerage rate. That the agency of Alexander Kopperl, who has four places of business in Chicago, has been issuing them at that rate there is no question. No difficulty existed in the way of procuring tickets at such a rate until yesterday. If his patron was not particular as to what line his relatives came by, from Hamburg or other continental port, there was no trouble about the ticket. But the instant any one became inquisitive and insisted on knowing the name of the line which guaranteed the passage Mr. Kopperl or his clerk immediately tore the ticket into pieces.

The illegal business is not confined to Canal street. There are several other offices throughout this city and surrounding towns where the traffic was carried on. Whether the ticket brings a cholera infected immigrant over or not matters little to the agent. He gets his commission in any case, even if the ticket is returned by the company. That is the point, too, which hurts the reputable agents. Should the coming administration remove the prohibition against immigration next March the men who have been obeying the law will find that their business has been taken from them.

It is said that passage for at least 5,000 of the objectionable class to this city has been arranged for.

All of the reputable agents in Chicago interviewed on the subject agree that the matter was one requiring prompt and energetic action.

Health Authorities Urged to Act.

Dr. Henry M. Baker, Secretary of the Michigan State Board of Health, has issued a circular letter, the substance of which follows:

I have written to the executive officers of the State Boards of Health of Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio, asking whether they think it desirable that there be a conference of representatives of those boards and ours in Chicago as soon as practicable with reference to the sources of danger from cholera, and the best measures which each State can adopt and maintain to lessen those dangers. Chicago having such an immense interest in this subject should, I think, be represented in such a conference. At Baltimore the United States Commissioner of Immigration wrote me Jan. 14: "Disinfection of baggage, etc., has been discontinued at this port since the latter part of November, 1892." At New York immigrants from vessels from which dangerous diseases are known to have occurred are not detained nor their baggage disinfected. At Halifax, N. S., the Dominion immigration officer, writing Dec. 27, gave me to understand that the baggage of immigrants going to the Western States was not disinfected at Halifax. Under such conditions as exist at ports at our Eastern seaboard we would expect dangerous communicable diseases to enter this country. Smallpox is now present in a number of States; not all of them, but at least five or six of the outbreaks plainly traceable to immigrants who came on the steamship Saale, which arrived at New York Nov. 23. We have in Michigan one outbreak from that source, and perhaps more. The evidence which comes under my observation does not warrant any one in having confidence in the work being done at several of the quarantine stations at ports through which our dangerous immigrants mostly come. The American Public Health Association has recommended that the United States establish a public health service worthy of such a great country, including provision for quarantine, and placing the great vital interests of the people in the care of a commission of expert sanitarians. One branch of Congress, however, has passed a bill placing the whole work in the hands of the Marine Hospital Service. The other branch has passed a bill authorizing the Marine Hospital Service to aid States. There does not seem to be any prospect of this Congress taking any action which will rise to the dignity or demands of the occasion. The Northwestern States are more vitally interested than the rest of the country, because most of the immigrants pass through and stop in those States. But the entire country ought to be especially interested at this time of the Columbian Exposition.

Some months ago I communicated to several of the State Boards of Health, including Indiana, Illinois, and Ohio, a proposition that a line of inspection and disinfection of immigrant baggage be established from Sault Ste. Marie southward, as far south at least as the southern boundary of Ohio; but I do not understand that such inspection and disinfection have been kept up except on the eastern border of Michigan. The U. S. Marine Hospital Service has just suspended its immigrant inspections at Port Huron and Detroit. The authorized committee of this State Board of Health has ordered the continuance of the inspections and baggage disinfections, temporarily, until the views of members of this board can be learned. It seems to me important that the health authorities of the City of Chicago, the States of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Michigan have a conference as soon as possible and determine what is necessary to be done in order to make sure that cholera and other dangerous communicable diseases shall be kept out of the Northwest. HENRY B. BAKER, Secretary.

Physicians to Talk of Quarantine.

Realizing the necessity of having strict quarantine laws to prevent the introduction of cholera into the United States prominent members of the medical fraternity will hold an important meeting at the Grand Pacific Hotel this evening to take action on the matter. The meeting has been called under the auspices of the National, State, and Municipal Medical Societies, represented by Dr. F. C. Hotz, President of the Chicago Medical Society; Dr. E. F. Ingalls, Secretary of the State Medical Society; Dr. Frank W. Reilly, Secretary of the State Board of Health, and Health Officer John D. Ware of Chicago. Dr. John B. Hamilton of the Grand Pacific will be one of those to address the meeting. They will, it is said, strongly favor not only the adoption of more stringent quarantine laws but will urge that, in the interests of the people of the United States in general, that quarantine shall be made a department of the national government.

All about Cinderella tomorrow.

MEETING OF DEALERS IN LIVE STOCK.

Proceedings of the National Exchange in Session in Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Sixty members were present today when the annual meeting of the National Live Stock Exchange was convened today. President Thompson of Chicago was in the chair. The first thing considered was the election of officers. Vice-President E. J. Senseney of East St. Louis was pushed enthusiastically for President, but was defeated by Thompson. Then the old officers were unanimously reëlected. This was the result of the combination of the following delegates:

Chicago, R. Nash, C. A. Mallory, J. E. Greer, J. P. Butterfield, W. T. Keenan, S. W. Waugh, R. T. Quick, L. C. Wagner, J. H. Wood, J. Rosenbaum, W. T. Dickson, T. H. Brown, A. C. Halliwell, P. B. Budd, P. Baker, Secretary Chicago Exchange and also Secretary of the National Exchange; L. B. Dood. St. Louis, Samuel Scoling, A. L. Keechler, W. J. Broderick, Vice-President National Exchange; C. M. Keys, President Local Exchange; R. H. Mann, James Metcalf, E. B. Overstreet, Frank Turpin, Thomas Mannin, Thomas Sexton. Kansas City—Frank Cooper, President of Kansas City Exchange; A. E. Beggs, Director; J. P. Emmert, James H. Payne, J. R. Stoler, Director; W. F. Moore, C. S. Bridgeford, Director; J. H. Waite, Vice-President Local Exchange; J. F. Timmons, John E. Cole, Director; C. E. Grant, W. A. Rogers, W. McCoy, F. Baldwin, H. Child, Assistant General Manager Stock Exchange; R. P. Woodbury, Kansas City Exchange.

The remainder of the day was consumed in the discussion of the subjects to come before the convention formally. The most important measure of the session will be that empowering the National Exchange to make rules for the various local exchanges. This is calculated to bring on a fierce fight. The idea is favored by the Chicago and St. Louis delegates. Other members assert that the association will be wrecked if the measure is forced, as circumstances differ so widely in different States that no one set of rules can govern individual exchanges. Illinois and Missouri members appear to control things, however, and insist on passing the measure. [illegible] the visitors will be banqueted at the Paxton by the local board.

Speaking this morning of the important matters that are likely to come before the convention, one of the delegates said: "We want, if possible, to secure more uniform rules in the different localities. There are at present seven associations in the compact and the rules that govern them are, of course, not altogether harmonious. Another matter that will call out some discussion will be the laws intended to exterminate contagious diseases among cattle and other kinds of stock they handle."

Referring to the present high price of hogs, President Thompson said:

"The primary cause of scarcity of hogs was the cold, wet weather prevalent during the breeding season. Thousands of young pigs were lost, and as there are but comparatively few fall pigs raised the supply is now short. I do not expect the supply will again become equal to the demand at reasonable prices until next fall or winter, when the crop of the coming spring begins to come into market."

HOSPITAL MANAGEMENT MAKES DENIAL.

Charges of Cruelty to the Insane and Extravagance Said to Be Unfounded.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Within the past two days grave charges have been presented to the State Legislature regarding the management of the Southern Insane Hospital at this point. So pronounced were the charges that the Senate and House committee on benevolent institutions headed by Chairman Leydon and Hench arrived in the city tonight and will tomorrow begin an investigation. The gentlemen accused deny the charges and say that they invite inspection of the manner in which the institution is conducted. In an interview tonight with Dr. Rahm, a trustee, that gentleman said: "How in the world charges could be made out against Dr. Thomas, the Superintendent, or the Board of Trustees I am unable to say. In so far as the Superintendent is concerned the Board of Trustees, of which I am a member, appoints him. If he were ever found incapable or neglecting any duties we have the power to dismiss him and employ some one else. There can be no charge that either the board or Superintendent has been extravagant. The latter especially cannot overstep the limit provided for expenditures. The board meets twice a month. At the last meeting in each month it examines the contracts for medicines and other supplies. These are awarded to the lowest bidder. All persons who enter into a contract with us must furnish bond. If we receive groceries, medicines, or anything else that is not exactly suitable we retain the right to reject and secure better provisions. I do not think that Dr. Wertz or any one else in Evansville would prefer charges without first consulting the board."

Drs. Wertz and Thomas were also seen and entered a vigorous denial of the charges.

Foerstel's Resignation Not Yet Accepted.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The fact that ex-City Treasurer Foerstel has not sent his resignation to the Republican Central committee is causing that body considerable trouble. His resignation to the City Council for some reason is not accepted as final, and the Republicans are in doubt as to the advisability of nominating a successor at the coming convention. The members insist that Foerstel should notify them of his action in order to give them the privilege of placing a man on the ticket for office.

AFTER THIRTY YEARS.

A Sad Story of Almost Unparalleled Suffering.

Speaks Now in the Name of Truth and Justice.

A Sage of Eighty-three Years Gives Eloquent and Timely Testimony.

A most interesting thing.

The following letter in regard to it explains itself.

Deputy United States Marshal S. R. Thorne has been a prominent and important figure in American affairs and gained a world-wide celebrity by his noted arrest of Lewis Baker, the murderer of William Pool, at the Canary Islands in 1855.

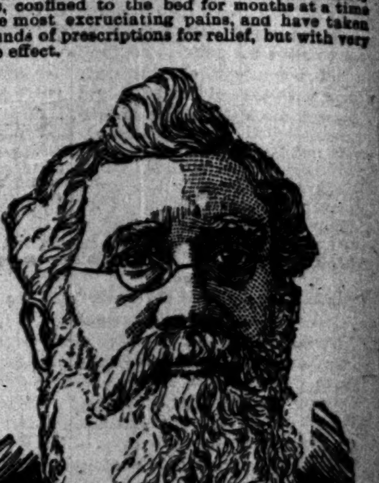
The noted deputy marshal is a veteran now, but his letter shows all his old-time energy:

"In the Christian Leader I read a letter from the Rev. C. D. R. Meacham, pastor of the Baptist Church of Townshend, Vt., stating the wonderful cure received by him by taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

"I fully indorse all the reverend gentleman says about the efficacy of the Nervura.

"Also, I learn of the testimony of H. S. Shorter, Esq., who lives at 391 Broadway, Newburg, N. Y., a man of 75 years, who was restored to health by the same remarkable medicine.

"I now have to add my knowledge of experience with Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I have been an invalid and laid up with the gout and rheumatism for the last thirty years, confined to the bed for months at a time in the most excruciating pains, and have taken all kinds of prescriptions for relief, but with very little effect.



S. R. THORNE, ESQ.

"I thought I would try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and am now on the fourth bottle. The last four weeks I am decidedly better, and am improving very fast. Indeed, I am a new man to what I was years ago, though now in my 83d year.

"It has relieved me from trembling and nervous prostration when no other medicine has. It facilitates sleep, and that is a great relief. This is no theory or imagination, but a fact that experience justifies.

"This medicine has been to me worth more than all the gold dug out in California, and does so much good that it should be known throughout the world.

"I do not know Dr. Greene and have never had any communication from him. This statement is in the way of truth and justice.

"S. R. THORNE,
"Chapin Home, E. 66th-st., New York City."

No expression of ours will add weight to the strong and convincing words of this well known venerable gentleman. His words alone should and will influence every ailing person who reads them to make use of this great and valuable remedy, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. A medicine like this, which is sure to make those who use it strong and well again, does, indeed, seem, as Mr. Thorne says, worth more than gold. The remedy is purely vegetable and harmless, and is the prescription and discovery of

WILL HELP CORRIGAN.

HANKINS ENTERS HIS STABLE IN HAWTHORNE'S STAKES.

Either He Does Not Hope to Open Garfield or He Is Making Overtures for Peace—The Ætna Stable's Owner Is Aiding Corrigan in Crushing Out Roby, Which Is Owned by His Partners in Garfield—Isaac Murphy Will Ride Here Under His Own Colors.

Either George Hankins does not believe that Garfield Park will be opened in the spring or else he has commenced to make overtures to Ed Corrigan toward a division of dates the coming summer, should Garfield secure a license, for he has entered extensively in the stakes to be run at Hawthorne's spring meeting, which commences May 16.

When, some weeks ago, three of Hankins' lot were taken out of their snug winter quarters in Kentucky and sent here to race the incident caused no end of comment. It was particularly marked because Hankins last fall, when Garfield was closed, rather than race his string at Hawthorne threw it out of training.

That part of the Roby contingent that are Hankins' partners in Garfield were unable to understand the meaning of the move, but affected to make light of it, John Condon saying that they were B. J. Johnson's lot and that Hankins did not own them. Still they were racing under the colors of the Ætna Stable.

Now, however, Hankins comes along and enters his entire string at Hawthorne for stakes that are to be run on dates that the Garfield officers had fondly hoped they themselves might be using the coming spring. Even if Garfield does not open the Roby track has announced that it intends to race until June 1, and Hankins by his entry is helping a rival of his business partners.

Condon insists that his relations with Hankins are of the most friendly nature, and Corrigan declares that he and Hankins have never since Washington Park as much as talked over the local situation, so the public is left to wonder why George Hankins should be helping Corrigan, while his business partners and the master of Hawthorne are engaged in a bitter war of extermination.

Among the entries for the Hawthorne stakes which closed Feb. 1 is an extensive one from Isaac Murphy, the famous jockey. Following the entry came a letter from Gus Strauss, the Lexington horseman, to Ed Corrigan, telling him that Murphy had decided to confine his operations to the West this summer and that he would be seen riding in his own colors at Hawthorne.

Murphy has for some time back owned race horses. He was the reputed owner of the string campaigned last year by J. J. Sellers and headed by that good colt The Hero.

Murphy will assume the active management of his own stable this season and with his experience should make a success of it.

CLOSE FINISHES AT HAWTHORNE.

Anglo-Saxon, Humming Bird, Prince, Fan King, and Thorns Win at Cicero.

Three favorites and two outsiders took the purses at Hawthorne yesterday.

The first race was taken by Anglo-Saxon, a 5 to 2 favorite over a field of nine.

Humming Bird took the second race in an exciting drive from the 20 to 1 shot, Maud D.

Bankrupt was made favorite in the third event, but after staying well in front until two lengths from the wire Cratty came up with a rush on Prince and beat him by a short head, with Little Annie third, a nose behind.

Fan King ran an exercise five furlongs in the fourth race, winning pulled up five lengths in front of Mamie B.

BEGGARLY FIELDS RACE AT ROBY.

Only Nineteen Horses Face the Starter in a Card of Five Events.

Beggarly fields and poor racing marked yesterday's sport at Roby.

Only one of the five favorites selected by the talent showed the way to the wire. As a preliminary, Doubtful, well backed at 3 to 2, won the first race in which the topheavy favorite Bugle could do no better than third.

Montclair at 2 to 5 lost to Jessie H., the outsider in the second race, in which only three of an entry of seven went to the post. Erect at 5 to 2, with infinite ease, beat Steve Jerome, played as though all were over at 7 to 10 in the third race, and Red Oak distanced another odds on choice in St. Peter. The last race went to Wiseger.

The summary follows:

First race, purse, $300, for all ages, five furlongs—Doubtful, 105 pounds (Rogers), 3 to 2, won; Mollie M., 90 (F. Carr), 3 to 1, second; Bugle, 105 (Vignes), 7 to 5, third. Time, 1:04. Cruickshanks, 91 (McCormick), 15 to 1, also ran.

CLOSE HANDICAP AT NEW ORLEANS.

Ette S., Readina, Emp. Billet, J. I. B., and Granite Are Winners.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The handicap this afternoon was a glory, five of the six competing horses fighting under the whip from the head of the stretch and finishing within three-quarters of a length of each other. The race was at a mile, and the ring could hardly separate Forest King and Granite in its odds under heavy play, but at the post Forest King was 2½ to 1 and Granite 11 to 5. That old Chicago favorite, Blue Banner, not up to a race, was in and fell back in the betting from 3 to 6. Flora McDonald was backed from 6 to 3½ to 1 and Beeswing rose from 4 to 5. Julius Sax, Blue Banner, and Beeswing in a bright cluster made the running to the big bend, where Granite joined them, and, racing clear of the group, came into the stretch a length to the good. At the eighth pole the four were side by side again, with all the boys hard at work. Then Forest King humped and cut off in the backstretch, got to his horses, and a ding-dong finish ensued, Granite lasting long [illegible] was fifth, another head back, with Flora McDonald last and well up. The stewards did not like Flora's performance, and as she has raced shiftily in the past served notice on her owner, Al Orth, that no more of his entries would be accepted. The track was fast and attendance large. Betting was heavy and in the public's favor and the day perfect. But two favorites won. They were J. I. B. (Sargent), 7 to 5, and Granite (Sargent), 11 to 5. He raced his first furlong in 11¼ seconds and galloped home in 37 seconds. The other winners, all well played, were: Ette S. (Garner), 4 to 1; Readina (J. Hill), 7 to 1; and Emperor Billet (Gardner), 11 to 5. Readina's revival was on account of her physical improvement, and those that knew she was eating well profited by the information. She showed a piece of supreme speed at the end. Jockey Tom Britton is here to ride for Frank Phillips. Though McAbee has returned and filed strong affidavits with the stewards, alleging Marksman to be Marksman and his pedigree correct, no new action has been taken, and McAbee and Caven are still ruled off. The Delamore Stable, operated by old man Brannon, has bought Miss Francis, aged, by Bengal—Bettie White.

Ette S. led all the way and won the opening race, four and one-half furlongs, selling, by a length and a half from Miss Francis, who was the same distance in front of Denver, a hot favorite, with top odds of 13 to 10, and Miss Francis drifted from 8 to 12. There were strong play on Kerosene and Jack of Diamonds, the latter backed from 15 to 8 to 1. The second race, five furlongs, was a handsome one and marked by heavy betting. Readina won it in a drive with a marvelous burst of speed at the end, beating Borealis a length, Elise L. third a neck back. Wakena was virtually left at the post. Readina opened at 4, drifted to 8, and back again to 7. Borealis was always a favorite between 7 and 8 to 5. Fay S. was backed from 6 to 4½. Elise L's. price rose from 6, and there was a heavy play on Bret Harte. Readina's time, 1:02, was the fastest of the meeting. Emperor Billet won the fourth race, three-quarters, selling, in a gallop by one length, from Galen Brown, who beat Longbroek a length for the place. Longbroek was a sharp favorite, backed from 2 to 1. Emperor Billet was backed down from 2½ and Galen Brown's price rose from 5 to 8. The 2-year-old race, three furlongs, was easily won by the favorite, J. I. B., a big quarter horse bred chestnut colt by Red Skin or John Bull out of Ida C., owned by the Owensboro Stable. Off in front he opened a gap of ten lengths and won in a gallop by a big length from Cyrus, who beat George Berz four lengths. J. I. B. has the reputation of a non-stayer. The summary follows:

First race, for 3-year-olds and upwards, non-winners, selling, four and one-half furlongs—Ette S., 105 pounds (Garner), 4 to 1, won; Miss Francis, 105 (Macklen), 12 to 1, second; Denver, 97 (Sargent), 6 to 5, third. Clayton), 4½ to 1; Harry Weaver, 114 (Seguin), 50 to 1, and Wakena, 99 (Stout), 12 to 1, ran unplaced.

Time, 1:17. Little Baltic, 107 (Seguin), 15 to 1; Florist, 90 (Sargent), 10 to 1; Armint, 107 (Johnson), 40 to 1; and Big John, 114 (McFadden), 7 to 1, ran unplaced.

TALENT UPSET AT GUTTENBERG.

Indigo, Zenobia, Hymn, Rose Dance, Renie, and Greenwich Win.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The first race at Guttenberg today began with an upset for the backers of Eph, the favorite. The colt stumbled on the upper turn and lost whatever chance he had of beating the winner, Indigo. Azrael's odds reacted in a startling manner in the booking on the second race, going from 4 to 5 to 3 to 1. Judge Burke warned Jockey Griffin to do his best wish Azrael. The jockey's best, however, was bad, Zenobia, the favorite, winning easily from Register, who swerved all over the home stretch. Hymn, favorite for the half-mile dash, led from start to finish and won from Glance, the longest shot in the race. The Coney Island delegation put Jockey Nate Hill on Rose Dance and then wandered in among the bookmakers and pounded the filly's odds off from 10 to 1 to 5 to 1. Those not in touch with the pilgrims from McKane's bailiwick backed Firefly from 6 to 5 and 4 to 5. Rose Dance won, with Elect, a 5 to 1 chance, in second place. The summary follows:

All about Cinderella tomorrow.

WILL MEET TONIGHT.

IMPORTANT GATHERING OF ATHLETIC CLUBS AT DETROIT.

The Legislation to Be Enacted Changes the Whole Course of Field Sports in the West—A. G. Spalding Will Represent the Chicago Athletic Association—The Obnoxious Sunday Law Likely to Be Rescinded—Anson Signs a Five Years' Contract with the Chicago Club.

Mr. A. G. Spalding leaves this morning for Detroit to attend a meeting of the Central Branch of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Tonight's meeting is the most important that has been held for some time in the West. There will be an election of officers and it is more than probable that Chicago will receive its share of the places to be filled. Mr. Spalding is probably slated for a position in the union's list, and with him and Fred Stearns in command athletics in the West should not lack for good management during the coming season.

At tonight's meeting also the troublesome resolution adopted some time ago prohibiting Sunday games will probably be rescinded and the final step taken in the matter of bringing the warring athletic bodies in the West together. The measure was an ill advised one from the start, and it has served to keep alive a feeling of bitterness in the West which has retarded the growth of athletics materially.

The Chicago Athletic club will be really the one to secure the expunging of the obnoxious resolution from the records of the Central branch. Not that it favors Sunday games nor that it proposes ever to give them, but its members are aware that Sunday games are necessary to the life of certain St. Louis clubs, which are purely amateur in their purposes and management, and they recognize St. Louis' strength athletically and expect to draw from it heavily in future games to be given by the club.

Another important matter which will probably come up at tonight's meeting is the placing of the Western championships for the coming season. These games generally occur a few days before the national championships and have been held of late years in Detroit, for the good reason that the union, thanks to the athletic war, has had no strength in any other Western city. The games this year will probably be held either at St. Louis or Detroit. Chicago will not be a bidder for them, and even if asked to take them would probably decline.

Mr. Spalding argues, and rightly, too, that in view of the interest being centered in the national championships the Western events would attract but scant attention. They would moreover entail a vast amount of work, and Mr. Spalding does not care to shoulder any more than he has already bargained for.

After tonight's meeting Mr. Spalding will journey to New York and will remain there until after the meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union Feb. 18.

At this meeting all the details for the championships to be held here in September will be arranged.

ANSON SIGNS FOR FIVE YEARS.

The Old Man Will Captain and Manage the Colts as Usual.

Uncle Adrian Anson did something yesterday that must have come in the way of a novelty to him.

He actually signed a contract.

The old man has not done such a thing in years before, and it will seem odd to the rank and file of baseball readers to see Nick Young promulgate Anson's contract in the old routine way. The contract is for five years.

Anson in former years, while on the club's pay-roll and really a member of the team, has never been either reserved or signed. The league rules are that a player may take part in only five games without being under contract, but the league clubs have always overlooked Anson's case, he being a stockholder in the Chicago club. His signing effectually puts at rest all rumors as to his intentions for the coming season.

The downtown house of the Crescent City club is to be opened with a social effort tomorrow night.

The correspondent for THE TRIBUNE visited Tommy Ryan at Bay St. Louis this morning. Tom weighs 143 pounds, and is nearly ready to fight now. He is a fearful worker, and has morning exercises, running before breakfast and walking all the morning after it. In the afternoon he fights the ball thirty minutes straight and boxes from fifteen to twenty rounds with Henry Baker. Sometimes when men are plenty the boxing dose is doubled. He throws the ball forty minutes a day, and winds up his work with from 1,500 to 4,000 rope jumps. After supper Ryan walks two or three miles and retires at 9 o'clock.

GALESBURG, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—This morning the Marshal took out warrants for Johnnie Connors and James Brady, the principals in last night's prize fight, and Harry McCoy, the referee. Brady was arrested here. Connors and McCoy were [illegible] guilty, claiming that the match was simply a friendly set-to. He was placed under $500 bonds. The grand jury sits Monday and the fight will be called to its attention.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Donoghue's manager today received a telegram from Hagen's backer at St. John, N. B., saying that he had posted $500 at St. John and that Hagen would race Donoghue for $1,000 a side, one, three, and five miles, in a rink where admission can be charged. Donoghue's manager telegraphed in reply that the deposit must be made in New York and that Donoghue would skate for $1,000 a side without gate money.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The morning mail from Chicago brought to Ashley Lloyd from Capt. Comiskey the signed contracts of Harry Vaughn, "the farmer," and Jud Smith, the third baseman, discovered in Montana by Tony Mullane. NOTHING HEARD OF THE CITY OF PEKING

No Tidings of the Missing Steamer—Statements as to Her Condition.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 3.—The steamship City of Peking is still on the missing list. She is now twenty-four days out from Yokohoma, and should have arrived here over ten days ago. Officials of the Pacific Mail Steamship company and the Union iron works have made a statement in regard to the machinery of the steamer. They refer to the reports which have been published, to the effect that on the last two voyages of the Peking trouble was experienced by the heating and melting of rings in the thrust-block, and that on her last westward trip she had her rings repaired at Yokohama and patched with Babbit metal to prevent heating. Alexander Center, General Agent of the Pacific Mail company at this port, makes the following statement:

> The steamer City of Peking was laid up from the middle of July to the 17th of September last, undergoing a most complete and thorough overhauling of its hull, boilers, and machinery at the hands of the Union iron works of this city, and on its departure for Japan and China in September last it was in a most thorough and complete state of repair. Included in the repairs made was a new thrust-shaft and a new set of thrust-rings. The engines on its trip to China and return worked most satisfactorily, but through the carelessness of an oiler, after leaving Yokohama, who allowed the thrust-rings to heat, it was determined on its arrival at San Francisco to remove those rings and replace them with an entire new set. This was done and the vessel left for Japan Nov. 26 last. The latest authentic reports received from the City of Peking were dated Yokohama, Jan. 10, the date on which it left that port for San Francisco. These reports from its engineers state that from the time of leaving San Francisco up to that moment its machinery in all parts had been working in a thoroughly satisfactory manner.

Henry T. Scott, President of the Union iron works, makes a statement in confirmation of the Pacific Mail agent, as follows:

> When the Peking went to sea she was in a thorough and complete condition. The thrust-rings that heated on her return voyage were made of government bronze and of such material as is now in use in the Charleston, the San Francisco, and all the government vessels of the higher class; and in our opinion it was not necessary to renew them from the slight heating experienced on her first voyage; but the Pacific Mail company insisted upon their renewal, which was done, and we considered that the Peking, when leaving here Nov. 26, left with all her machinery in proper and complete working order.

The Pacific Mail officials express the belief that the Peking has put into Honolulu and that the first reports of it will be received when the next steamer arrives here from that port Feb. 8.

HOT WORDS FROM COLD WATER MEN.

Spirited Debate in the Prohibition State Convention Over a Resolution.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—It was decidedly warm for a time today at the Prohibition State conference. James Felter of this city took occasion to express his views freely and they did not suit most of those present. He introduced a resolution condemning the sentiments of the national party leaders, saying that the party was a failure and that they had always contended that the Prohibition party would never get into power. A. F. Smith of Decatur denounced the resolution as emanating from the graveyard.

Col. Felter's plumes were ruffled by these remarks and he arose to say that he had no words of condemnation too strong to direct against Smith's speech. Several members were on their feet simultaneously warning anybody and everybody not to uphold the resolution nor let it get to the public press. It remained for Dr. Evans to resign his chair and pour oil on the troubled waters, which he did by introducing for Col. Felter's resolution a substitute which declared that there were no reasons for discouragement, and that the party would stand by its convictions and continue the battle until the saloon is wiped out. This resolution had the desired effect. The body recovered its serenity and continued the program.

There has been at no time during the conference a quorum of the State committee or the Executive committee present, and no meetings for business were held. Chairman Samuel Dickle of the National committee did not put in an appearance.

EXPERTS ON CHIROGRAPHY DISAGREE.

Testimony of the Defense in the McDonald Will Case Is Begun.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The defendants in the McDonald will case began the introduction of testimony by offering expert evidence. George Field, Superintendent of the Remington Typewriter agency at Indianapolis, testified that certain peculiarities were such that it could be easily determined whether typewriting on two separate papers was done by the same machine at or about the same time. Being shown papers typewritten in McDonald, Butler, and Snow's office Aug. 26, 1890, the day conceded on which Senator McDonald made a will, the witness was positive the will probated was written on the same machine about the same time. Albert Isensee, repairer of machines, testified in similar way to the first witness. James Franklin, a lawyer of Indianapolis, testified that he, with Albert Beveridge, witnessed the will for Senator McDonald in the spring of 1889. R. B. F. Pierce of Indianapolis was intimately acquainted with Senator McDonald since 1868 and had seen him write and received letters from him, was acquainted with his signature, and believed Senator's and the witness Daniel's signatures to the will and copy genuine. Dr. J. N. Hurty, analytical chemist, corroborated the first two witnesses. The three also agreed that the will and duplicate had not been letter-press copies.

Fast Colors, that are not affected by soap and water, are not affected by Pearline. They will seem brighter and fresher, of course, but that is the way they looked when new. Washing with Pearline has simply taken out the dirt, and restored them.

Use nothing but Pearline, and everything will "look like new" longer. There's no rub, rub, rub in keeping your things fresh and clean. Take away this ruinous rubbing, and what is left there to make them look old?

WESTERN ROADS UNABLE TO SETTLE IMMIGRANT TROUBLES.

Serious Loss of Revenue Is Caused by the Payment of Excursion Commissions—Roads West of Chicago Alleged to Be Cutting Through Freight Rates—The Situation Considered Serious—Col. A. C. Dawes of the Burlington Is Dead—Other Railway News.

The most important problem now puzzling General Passenger Agents and one which they are apparently unable to solve is the seaboard immigrant commission question. Another meeting of the roads in the Western Passenger Association will be held at Chairman Caldwell's office next Tuesday, and the general opinion is that the conflicting interests of the various roads cannot be harmonized.

The committee now at work revising the Western Passenger Association agreement will probably evade this important question entirely. The situation is claimed to be a serious one, as the payment of excessive commissions entails heavy loss of revenue upon the roads. The trunk lines came to the conclusion some time ago that they cannot control the seaboard immigrant traffic and are making no further efforts to regulate the matter. The First Ward steamship agents of New York appear to be on top and they force the railroads to dance to their music. For this reason the Western Passenger Association lines are endeavoring to make an agreement with these men and ignoring the trunk lines entirely. It is not believed, however, that this can be done unless the General Managers themselves take the matter in hand and dictate the settlement of this question.

One of the principal obstacles in the way of an amicable adjustment of this matter heretofore has been the attitude of the Canadian Pacific, but this company appears now to be willing to join the Western Passenger Association lines in any agreement that promises to stop the payment of exorbitant commissions and give the roads a fair remuneration for their work. The charge is made that certain lines are intentionally throwing obstacles in the way of the adoption of a reasonable agreement and are determined to keep up the existing demoralization. While this may be true as to one or two of the roads others who are opposed to the proposed agreement with the steamship agents contend that there is no good reason why the railroads should give up any portion of their revenue to these men and that the railroads themselves, if they felt so inclined, could easily control the business by establishing a joint agency in New York.

SERIOUS RATE CUTTING ALLEGED.

Lines via Chicago Accused of Giving Rebates to the Extent of 25 Per Cent.

Chairman Midgley of the Western Passenger Association has received during the last two weeks numerous letters from officials of roads working via Mackinaw to the effect that on such shipments as wagons, implements, and furniture from Jackson, Kalamazoo, and Grand Rapids the tariff rates to St. Paul and Minneapolis have been cut by lines working via Chicago to the extent of 25 per cent. This, it is stated, is done by rebate, and the facts are claimed to be beyond dispute. Letters have also been addressed to Commissioner Blanchard of the Central Traffic Association, with the request that he would provide measures of relief, and those sent to Chairman Midgley assert that the reductions are not confined to two or three lines but are participated in generally.

The various parties concur in asserting that the shrinkages are entirely absorbed west of Chicago and the complainants are at a loss to meet the situation, because, if they do so openly, the reduction would be followed by reduced tariffs via Chicago divided pro rata per rate. They allege that they could not meet the rates secretly and take care of the difference by voucher.

Chairman Midgley says the allegations are serious and that the lines west of Chicago cannot afford to rest quietly under the indictment. If irregularities are practiced as charged—and the complainants claim they have positive evidence—these corrections ought to be immediately made, otherwise demoralization must follow, because the lines working via Mackinaw will not relinquish traffic, and an effort to retain their share would result in all lines working upon a lower basis.

COL. A. C. DAWES PASSES AWAY.

The Burlington Loses One of Its Oldest and Most Efficient Officials.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A telegram was received here today from Tampa, Fla., stating that Col. A. C. Dawes, late General Ticket and Passenger Agent of the Burlington lines in Missouri, was found dead in his bed this morning. The dispatch stated that Mr. Dawes had retired last night in apparently good health. Mrs. Dawes arrived in St. Joseph at 12:05 p. m. today and did not learn of her husband's death until she reached the family residence on North Eighth street.

When Mrs. Dawes left Tampa last Monday Col. Dawes was in the best of spirits and was feeling almost as well as he ever did. His physicians, it is said, told his wife that he was improving rapidly and that his ultimate recovery was no longer a question of doubt.

Col. Dawes was stricken down with the malady that caused his death early in the winter. Before his condition became serious he went to Omaha to visit his sister and soon afterward took to his bed. The attendant physicians announced that the sick man could never get well in this climate, and in December he was removed to Tampa, Fla. For several weeks after reaching the South no material change was noted in his condition and the invalid grew much discouraged. He sent word to General Manager Brown of the Burlington that there was no hope for him and requested his friend and associate in business to come to Tampa and take him to his home. But soon after the Colonel commenced to improve and he then decided to remain in the South, hoping to return to St. Joseph in the spring a well man and again assume the position with the Burlington system which he had held so long.

The remains will be brought to St. Joseph for burial.

SPOKANE RATES ARE REDUCED.

They Are Cut 10 Per Cent—Figures on Various Classes.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The thick and almost impenetrable envelope of secrecy with which the transcontinental conference has surrounded its deliberations has at last been broken and the information is given out that the new rate-sheets will show a reduction in St. Paul-Spokane rates of from 7 to 10 per cent on the old tariffs. The present rate-sheet is made up of ten subdivisions, five of which are classes and five commodity rates. The supposition is that the 10 per cent reduction will apply to the classes and the 7 per cent to the commodities. Under the old arrangement the same rates applied to Spokane as to Portland, the whole territory west of the former city being covered by a blanket rate. It is understood that on the bulk of the traffic Spokane will receive a reduction of from 7 to 10 per cent, while the old tariffs will remain in effect as to Portland. This arrangement is subject to exceptions being made in favor of through traffic coming into competition with the clipper trade. The present rates are as follows: Commodity rates, Class A, $1.75; B, $1.55; C, $1.25; D, $1.10; E, 90 cents.

New Branch of the Fort Wayne.

NORWALK, O., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—P. E. Moore, Chief Clerk to Superintendent Roser of the Findlay, Fort Wayne and Western railroad at Findlay, O., was in the city today and filed for record, in the County Recorder's office, a mortgage given by the Findlay, Fort Wayne and Western company to the Washington Trust company of New York City for $1,600,000, payable in fifty years. This mortgage is given to secure new bonds issued to build and equip a road from Findlay to New London. Contracts for grading the new line will be awarded at once in twelve mile sections. It is intended to have cars running into New London by Oct. 1 of this year.

Pacific Mail Declines Freight.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 3.—The Pacific Mail Steamship company is declining freight for New York and European points via Isthmus of Panama. The reason for this is that the company's contract with the Panama railroad company expired Feb. 1, and the Pacific Mail cannot make rates on freight, as it is not known what the Panama road will choose to charge for its fractional share for transportation. An official of the Pacific Mail said: "We do not care to carry cargo freight to Panama and risk meeting railroad rates that will be prohibitive. There is no assurance that such will be the case, but until it is definitely ascertained what the Panama railroad company intends charging the Pacific Mail will refuse New York and European freights booked by way of the Isthmus. This state of affairs promises to leave New York and San Francisco without communication via the Isthmus for some time to come. The North American company is not ready for operations, and will not be for some time, so that at present there is a decided blockade, and most of the freight that ordinarily would have gone East by steamer is being sent across the continent by rail."

Summer Tourist Rates for 1893.

Chairman Caldwell of the Western Passenger Association issued a call yesterday for a meeting of rate clerks to compile summer tourist rate sheets for the season of 1893 and a separate all-the-year-round rate sheet, to be held at the association rooms in "The Rookery" at 10 a. m., Tuesday, Feb. 14. Request has been made upon connecting lines and associations interested in summer tourist rates that, if practicable, their rates for the season be compiled sufficiently early to make such rates available for use at the Western Passenger Association meeting to be held in this city Feb. 14. It is understood that summer tourist rates have already been agreed upon by the lines west of the Missouri River, and that the rates to Colorado points for the season will be the same as those in effect for 1892. Other associations have also arranged to take the matter up as soon as possible. The idea of the Western Passenger Association lines is to arrange, if possible, to get the summer tourist rate question out of the way before they engage in the work of compiling World's Fair rates.

Scalpers Are Laid Out.

FORTH WORTH, Tex., Feb. 3.—The rate compilers of the Southwestern roads convened yesterday. T. Swan, Compiling Clerk of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, was Chairman. All the roads were represented except the Rock Island from Southwestern points. Party rates were adopted giving ten or more on one ticket a two-cent rate. Short-line rates to Memphis via New Orleans were discontinued, thus laying out the scalpers. Nothing will be done with regard to Rock Island rates until this road comes into the association. Corsicana is the basing point taken to make rates to West Point and other Southwestern points via New Orleans or Memphis. The session will last all of today and probably longer.

Conversion of the Monon Stock.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The object of the proposed change in the stock of the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago railroad company is to secure to the stockholders a distribution of the surplus earnings which the company expects to be permanent. The earnings at present are equal to about 1 or 1¼ per cent on the entire issue of stock and the conversion of one-quarter of the stock into preferred will enable the company to distribute 4 or 5 per cent on the amount so transferred and render that portion much more valuable. The plan has been submitted to the counsel of the company in Chicago and action will be taken as soon as the report is submitted.

Railway Notes.

The following is the Atchison statement for December, entire system: Gross earnings, $4,168,299; increase, $113,620; net, $1,287,838; decrease, $73,814; surplus, $93,838; decrease, $75,814.

At the request of General Passenger Agent Goodman of the Southern Pacific a meeting of the General Passenger Agents of the Transcontinental roads will be held in this city Tuesday, Feb. 14, to consider World's Fair rates.

President Kennedy of the Cumberland Valley railroad was in Philadelphia yesterday and met Secretary-of-War Elkins, Ex-Senator Henry G. Davis, Richard C. Kerens of St. Louis, and Ex-Congressman Hotchkiss. The object of the conference was to further the organization of a syndicate to purchase some valuable coal and timber tracts in the Kanawha Valley and Pocahontas section of West Virginia, and a company to take up the investment was practically formed.

The Pennsylvania gives it out that until further notice it will not accept freight of any description in carloads or less delivered to it either at its depots or team tracks in this city to be forwarded to points East, with the exception of dairy freight, which will be forwarded as usual. This is done to enable the company to dispose of the accumulation of freight along its lines, resulting from the recent cold weather.

"NEXT OF KIN" TO CROUSE'S FORTUNE.

Suit Begun in Syracuse, N. Y., to Determine the Heirs of the Dead Millionaire.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—An aggressive move has been made by the heirs of D. Edgar Crouse, who left an estate amounting to $4,000,000, instead of waiting for Mrs. Kosterlitz to present a claim on behalf of baby Dorothea Edgarita to that part of the estate devised under the residuary clause to Mr. Crouse's "next of kin." The action is brought to determine who are the "next of kin," and upon this question depends the disposition of the millions of dollars which are devised according to the residuary clause in the will to "next of kin." The plaintiffs in the action are the twenty-seven first cousins and the defendants are the executors and Ecila Henrietta Kosterlitz and Dorothea Edgarita Wilson. Copies of the complaint were served here today upon Executors Nottingham and Graves and in New York upon Mrs. Kosterlitz and her child.

The action is brought in the Supreme Court and is to test the interests of Mrs. Kosterlitz and her child in the estate. Mrs. Kosterlitz is described as the late wife and widow of Mr. Crouse and the mother of the child. Knowledge as to Mrs. Kosterlitz and her child is based only upon information and belief for the purpose of making her a party to the action. The only construction asked is as to who actually are the "next of him" and heirs-at-law, and proof on that point will be presented on the trial of the action.

Has Discovered a Biped Lizard.

TUCSON, Ari., Feb. 3.—A noted geologist of Paris, M. La Grange, in making scientific researches in the valley of the Santa Cruz, made the astounding discovery that a biped lizard-stegosaus, only known hitherto among the rocks of the Siluran epoch, is found in living specimens in the valley hereabouts. The only change in the creature is in the size, otherwise the prehistoric and modern creatures are identical.

For Fair Postoffice Service.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—The Postmaster-General sent to the House today a communication urging an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill which will continue during the fiscal year 1894 the unexpended balance of $10,000 of last year for a branch postoffice on the World's Fair grounds; also the unexpended balance of the $23,000 for the transportation of mails and mail messenger service at the Fair.

"HUNYADI" WATERS.

Paragraphs have recently appeared in some Newspapers here stating that a New York firm of mineral water dealers are the lessees in America of the Hunyadi Waters of Buda Pest, and respectively sole agents in the United States for the famous Hunyadi Springs of Hungary.

These statements are absolutely false, and the intention with which they are made is obvious.

Before any Hunyadi Water was practically known in the United States, The Apollinaris Company, Limited, of London, widely and successfully introduced the Hunyadi Janos Water, the Proprietor in Buda Pest of the Springs having entrusted to them, for a term of years still unexpired, the sole sale of this water in England and in all transmarine places. Hunyadi Janos Water having become very popular, quite a number of other Waters are now offered for sale, under names, of which the word Hunyadi forms part, and in bottles, and with labels, closely resembling in appearance and color those long used for Hunyadi Janos Water.

The word "Hunyadi" having become a generic name for Hungarian Bitter Waters, good, bad or indifferent, The Apollinaris Company affixed to the bottles of Hunyadi Janos, the Hungarian Bitter Water of which they have still the sole sale, a small Yellow Label with their Red Diamond, the object of this Trade Mark being only to indicate to the Public that the bottle so labelled is sold by The Apollinaris Company, Limited.

Consumers, who desire to secure the Hungarian Bitter Water sold by The Apollinaris Company, are requested to see that the bottle bears the Red Diamond and they are cautioned against such absolutely false statements as those contradicted herein.

EPILEPSY OR FITS.

Can this disease be cured? Most physicians say No—I say, Yes; all forms and the worst cases. After 30 years' study and experiment I have found the remedy.—Epilepsy is cured by it; cured, not subdued by opiates—the old, treacherous, quack treatment. Do not despair. Forget past impositions on your purse, past outrages on your confidence, past failures. Look forward, not backward. My remedy is of to-day. Valuable work on the subject, and large bottle of the remedy—sent free for trial. Mention Post-Office and Express address.

TO HANDLE CROWDS.

Extensive Facilities Planned by the Illinois Central.

WORLD'S FAIR TERMINUS.

Big Station to Be Built at the Midway Plaisance.

VAN BUREN STREET DEPOT.

Gondola Cars That Will Carry 40,000 People an Hour.

SCHEME FOR QUICK UNLOADING.

Where the Illinois Central crosses the Midway plaisance heavy piles take the place of sand in the elevation of the tracks in front of the World's Fair grounds. At present the rough bark is still on the piles, the remnants of the tracks still litter the ground, and in the winter's snow the place is as uninviting as a storm fence on a Dakota prairie. Before May 1 all this will be transformed. The greatest individual railway station in the United States, judged by the number of passengers going through it, will have been built around and above the piles. A handsome passageway from the main Fair in Jackson Park to the entertainments on Midway plaisance will be made through the piles. The transformation will be a surprise even to those who have witnessed the magic use of money and brains for these two years in Jackson Park.

PLAN OF THE PROPOSED VAN BUREN STREET VIADUCT.

The plaisance was selected by the Illinois Central as its World Fair terminus rather than the terminals of the Fair in the park on account of time. To run trains into the park would require 25 per cent longer for the trip, and this meant 25 per cent more equipment and the same increase in operating expenses, with no corresponding gain in earnings. The plaisance is 600 feet wide, and all of it was set apart for the handling of the crowds. The Fair has asked for 100 feet of the space, and, although it has not been granted formally, there is no doubt that it will be.

Chief Engineer Wallace now has the plans for both the Van Buren street station and the station at Midway plaisance practically complete. Only minor details have yet to be arranged.

The Big Station.

To the east of the tracks a platform twenty-five feet wide will extend the entire width of the plaisance, just level with the car floors. Six wide stairways will lead to this platform from the level of the park below. Tickets will be sold in the offices near the stairways and will be collected as the passengers reach the platform. The ticket offices and entrances will be constructed of light material but of tasteful designs. This platform will be used solely for loading passengers on the express trains, which are to run through to Van Buren street without stop.

On the next track west will arrive the express trains from Van Buren street. A secure fence separates the two. Four stairways break into the platform and lead between the piles to the ground below. The exits are commodious, and a vast crowd can move through them without a crush. It is planned that a train load of 600 passengers will get off the cars and down the stairways in one and one-half minutes after the train stops. The peculiar construction of the cars, by which they can be unloaded through the side, like a summer street car, instead of at the ends, will facilitate the rapid handling of crowds. As soon as unloaded the trains will be pulled south a short distance and return on the east track.

WORLD'S FAIR LANDING DOCK
CHICAGO DATUM

SIDE ELEVATION OF STEPS TO PIER FROM VIADUCT.

The next set of tracks is given over to freight traffic, and the next to through passenger trains. It is not determined fully as yet whether the through trains will stop at the plaisance or not. If they do platforms will be constructed alongside these tracks also, with stairways leading to the ground. Fences will be built between all the tracks, so that passengers cannot get in the way of trains by any possible blunder.

The last set of tracks to the westward will be devoted as now to the regular suburban business. The same elaborate arrangements for meeting all requirements of a crush will be made here as on the east side. Wide platforms with "umbrella covers" will extend the entire width of the plaisance. Six broad stairways will lead to the north-bound trains through the piles. Passengers from the city will be landed on the platform west of the tracks.

Facilities at Van Buren Street.

At Van Buren street the arrangements will be fully as complete. The viaduct across the tracks will be divided into four passageways, separated by secure railings. One of these ways is for passengers who are to take the train, and one for those going to the park on the Henry syndicate steamers. The other two are for people coming from the park. In this manner the crowds will be kept separated, and there will be no struggle between those who want to go to the park and those returning. As soon as a train has been unloaded it will be pulled ahead to a point about Madison street and hauled back on the outgoing track. To make the turn the switch track will encroach for half a block on city property, and the Exposition authorities are endeavoring to have the City Council pass an ordinance giving the right of way until after the Fair. They will operate the tracks on their own account, doing the switching for the Illinois Central.

The platform between the tracks is twenty-four feet wide and will extend southward from the viaduct several hundred feet. It is likely that the ticket offices will be located at the head of the outbound platform, instead of the entrance to the viaduct as originally planned. The platforms will be tightly fenced in, the railway company being determined that there will be no grade-crossing disasters in its World's Fair business.

The regular suburban trains, which will run five minutes apart, will stop at Van Buren street much as they do now, but passengers will no longer have their present free-and-easy way of boarding trains. They will be compelled to pass through chutes, the same as on elevated roads. The only difference will be that they will show their tickets. The same plan will be followed at all the stations between Randolph street and Jackson Park.

On the express trains nothing but 10 cents in cash will secure a passage through the gates, but on the suburban trains all of the seventy-five different kinds of tickets the road provides for its patrons will be accepted. In fact, the present system will not be disturbed in the least.

Three Hundred Cars Ordered.

Three hundred of the gondola style of car have been ordered for express trains, and they are being constructed as rapidly as possible. After the Fair is over they will be converted into fruit and refrigerator cars. They are not handsome, but they will do for twenty minutes at a stretch in going between Van Buren street and Midway plaisance. Seats will run crosswise the full width of the car. The openings will be at the side. There are no steps, as the platforms come even with the car floors. The gondolas will be fully as comfortable as the open cars on the cable line, and there is not really much difference between them in most respects.

The big six-wheel locomotives the Illinois Central has been trying on its suburban trains have proved a great success. They lessen the time lost in stops to a remarkable degree. Ten of them have been ordered for the Fair, and the suburban coaches will be increased by thirty.

The capacity of the express line of gondolas is estimated at 18,000 passengers an hour, and that of the suburban trains at 12,000, making a total of 30,000 people an hour that the Illinois Central can carry to Jackson Park. It will be only on big days that this limit can be reached.

The original estimate as to the cost of elevating the tracks at Jackson Park was $1,360,000. The work is now 80 per cent done. Although the hard winter has added greatly to the expense, the estimate bids fair to be close to the mark. As soon as the tracklaying is done, work of arranging the great depot at the plaisance will be commenced. Many of the arrangements will be made subject to change after the Fair has opened. Outside of the experience last October with the dedication crowds, the officials have only theory to go by. They may plan and plan, but a single week's business may show that many beautiful schemes are of no account for active service. Crowds are peculiar, anyway, and if they don't like the depot arrangements the arrangements will be changed as far as possible to suit them.

When the workmen are through with the piles across the plaisance and Fair decorators have plied their craft, the station, it is said, will bear comparison with the magnificent depot facing the Administration Building in the park.

DESIGNS FOR GOVERNMENT BUILDING

Complete Drawings of the Decorations Have Been Submitted and Approved.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Completed drawings of designs for the interior and exterior of the dome of the Government Building at the Columbian Exposition have been submitted to the Supervising Architect of the Treasury Department and approved. They are soft colored, running from brown into yellow and orange, with the dome in blue studded with white stars. All the columns are marbleized and upon the second story walls are eight receding panels to receive representative illustrations.

Four of these panels will typify East, West, North, and South and their specific industries, while the other four will represent liberal arts, such as metal industries, ceramics or pottery, tapestry, modeling, and architecture. These panels are ten feet high by sixteen feet in length. Above the second story and all around the inner dome is a children's freize ten feet high and 280 feet long allegorically representing the commerce of this country. There are two tympanums around the external dome on the first floor, ten feet high by thirty-two feet in length, these tympanums being typical of the North and South, illustrated by drawings respectively of the Declaration of Independence and the achievements of the United States since that period.

America is shown in the center, and at the right in the background is a representation of the Capitol Building at Washington. On the left is an illustration of commercial transportation by water. There are also two panels, ten feet high and twenty feet long, in the gallery fronts east and west to represent in allegory 1492 on one side and 1892 on the other. In the first panel will be portrayed the landing of Columbus and in the second an illustration depicting the Columbian Exposition. There will be nothing in the panels on the main floor, as they will be obscured by exhibits from the different branches of the government. It is expected that the entire wall space of the interior of this building, some 100,000 square feet, will be completed by the middle of March. With the exception of the panels the wall space will be in soft brown tones.

FOR THE TEMPERANCE CONGRESS.

J. N. Stearns Now in the City Making the Final Arrangements.

J. N. Stearns of New York, Secretary of the National Temperance Society, is now in the city making final arrangements for the World's Temperance Congress to convene in Chicago the week commencing June 5, 1893, under the auspices of the World's Congress Auxiliary. In submitting his report to Assistant Secretary Young Mr. Stearns gives every assurance that the congress will be the largest of the kind ever held. He states that papers have been solicited from some of the most eminent writers of the world. These papers will embrace the scientific, religious, social, political, medical, legislative, and economic aspects of the question, together with hours of work, coffee houses, the alliance, total abstinence, and other phases of the drink question.

Representatives have been invited from every great temperance organization on the globe. The Department of State of the National Government has been requested to send out a series of questions relating to the temperance cause and its extent and progress to every American Consul on the globe, and it has cheerfully responded to the request. Delegates have also been invited from every church and temperance society. The National Tavern Association of Great Britain has appointed sixty delegates, who will arrive in this city June 1 and are booked to stop at the Moody Institute. The National Division of the Sons of Temperance will meet in executive session at the South Shore Hall June 1, 2, and 3, with delegates from all North America. While Mr. Stearns is in the city he will meet the executive officers of the R. W. G. T. Lodge of Good Templars. The National Temperance Society has asked every church in Chicago to set apart Sunday, June 11, to be known as Temperance Sunday.

Don't allow yourself to trifle with a cold, and so encourage the development of some latent Pulmonary and Bronchial disease, which often ends fatally. You had better cure your cough or cold by promptly resorting to Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant, an old-time remedy for all coughs, lungs, and throat affections.

MODEL OF ITS KIND.

HYDE PARK POLICE STATION FOR WORLD'S FAIR SERVICE.

It Is Built of Substantial Materials and Has Every Modern Appurtenance to Make It the Finest Station in the Country—The Various Rooms and the Barn—A Shower Bath for Tramps—The Sanitary Arrangements—The Structure Will Be Finished in a Few Weeks.

In a few weeks from now the police of Hyde Park will have the finest police station not only in this city but throughout the whole country. It will be a model one of its kind, embodying the latest improvements in its general design, in the matter of light, heat, and ventilation, and in its sanitary arrangements. The building has been erected by the World's Columbian Exposition authorities, and expense has been a consideration only second to the intention of putting up a model police station near the World's Fair grounds, and where it is likely to take a prominent part in the next year.

There is nothing particularly striking in the exterior appearance of the structure except its simplicity and solidity. The new station is located on the site of the old one, on the east side of Lake avenue, about twenty yards north of Fifty-third street. The building includes quarters for two patrol wagons and one ambulance. It is three stories in height with a pediment roof. The front is of white limestone up to the first story. Above that it is of red pressed brick, with a handsomely designed corner just under the roof. The height of the building is not imposing, being only fifty-four feet. It has a frontage of eighty-three feet and a depth of 121 feet, extending from Lake avenue to the boundary of the Illinois Central railroad tracks.

In the Interior.

The main doors to the general offices of the police station and to the two court-rooms overhead are located in the center of the building. A handsome porch or loggia, with pillars of limestone, the only attempt at ornamentation on the exterior of the building, marks the entrances. The entrance to the offices of the police station is through a double door and that to the stairway leading to the court-rooms is a wide single door. These are of solid oak.

South of these two doorways are two larger and wider doors of the patrol and ambulance barn. These are made of Georgia pine, stained to match the other two doors.

Immediately inside the principal doorway is the general office of the police station. On its north side and facing Lake avenue is the public office of the Captain, and inside of that, occupying the northwest corner of the floor, is the Captain's private office. Back of the Captain's rooms are those of the telegraph operators, and behind these again are the officers of the Lieutenants. In this quarter of the building also are lavatories, bath-rooms, and closets for books and papers. Directly behind the general office is that of the Desk Sergeant, and at the rear of this is the roll-call room, with lavatories, toilet rooms, etc.

Arrangements of the Barn.

The patrol and ambulance barn occupies the first floor on the south end of the structure. It can be entered by a doorway from the general offices as well as those on the front and has also a doorway on the alley, near to which is a carriage wash for the cleaning of the wagons, ambulances, and Captain's and Inspector's buggies.

One patrol wagon will occupy a position close to the door nearest to the police station entrance. The ambulance will be stationed at the door on the south side. On the north side of the barn are six stalls for horses. The Captain's buggy will occupy a place in front of the stalls and will be separated from them by a room which shall hold the feed for the horses. On the opposite or south side, corresponding with that of the place for the Captain's buggy, will be the place for the Inspector. Directly behind it is the harness-room and a stall for the Inspector's horse. The second patrol wagon will stand between the harness-room and the stalls on the north side.

At the rear end of the building are the cells, of which there are twenty-five. They are entered by a door at the far end of the general office. The cells are built of six-inch limestone and the flooring has a thickness of six inches of concrete. Four of the cells are for women. They are on the right-hand side of the doorway from the main office. At the head of the women's cells are the matron's room and a room for lost children. At the rear of the women's cells are three for boys.

Shower Bath for Tramps.

On the left hand side and separated by a corridor and thick party walls from the women's quarters are eighteen cells for men. As adjuncts to both departments are disinfecting rooms and shower bath rooms. Arrangements are made to overcome the objections of men of the genus "tramp" to come in contact with water. Once the tramp gets into the shower bath room there is no way out until he has been washed, head, neck, and heels in the deluge which the doorkeeper lets down on him from the ceiling. There are also nicely arranged water pipes within a circle of which he may be placed and from whose countless jets water will spray on every portion of his body from the crown of his head to the soles of his feet.

The disinfecting rooms are to be used for cleansing the clothing of men who will not be allowed to go into the World's Fair until the odor of stale beer is washed out of them.

Special attention has been given to the ventilation and general hygiene of the cells. Each one will have a separate water connection, with faucet, at which the prisoners may get a drink; and a basin to wash in. In each there will be a constant supply of running water, and each will have separate sanitary sewage connections. Light will be given through fifteen extra strong, grated windows, and there is a general lavatory for certain prisoners. The system for ventilation consists of a large flue, through which there will always be a current of fresh air. This is located so that all the cells will get the benefit of it. Between the cells and the patrol barn is the boiler-room. A dumb waiter connects the cells with the kitchen, which is overhead on the second floor.

The Court-Rooms.

At the head of the main stairway from the street are the two court-rooms. They occupy the whole floor on the north side from front to rear of the building. The front court-room is the larger of the two and the business of the greater number of the police districts on the South Side is intended to be transacted here. The bench is at the eastern end of the court-room. Behind it and separating it from the smaller court-room are the private rooms of the Justices and the clerks. All the fixtures of these rooms and also the stairways are of solid oak. The small court-room, so-called in contradistinction to the other one, is as large a room almost as any of its kind in the present police stations of the city. Between the two court-rooms are also located the "bull pens" for the prisoners. These are intended to hold about eighteen or twenty prisoners at a time. The women's pen is nearest to the large court-room and the men's pen looks into the smaller court. A narrow stairway between the two pens forms the connection with the cells.

In the southeastern corner of the building on this floor are the kitchen and pantry. They are separated from the court-room by a substantial wall, and on the same floor also is the "squad-room" of the policemen. From the alley at the southern side of the building there is an iron stairway. This leads to the squad-room and also to a public room for the Justices when not on the bench. Beside the Justices' room are two arranged for the safekeeping of police records. Outside of these facing Lake avenue are the public and private rooms of the Inspector. There is also a room on this floor for stolen property. Lavatories are placed conveniently for the use of the Justices and for the policemen and also others for the general public. All of these are made of marble facings.

On the top floor is a dormitory to accommodate at least 100 men, with lavatories, baths, and closets. Two small rooms occupy the north and street corner of the room. These are for the sergeants. There is also a gun room fixed up for the cleaning of weapons and storage of cartridges, shells, etc.

The new building will be lighted throughout by electricity, and all the improvements made in the system of heating buildings are to be adopted.

Inspector Hunt visits the new station from time to time to see how the work is progressing. He says that, in the way of a police station, there is nothing in the country to compare with it.

The contractor of the building is John Griffiths, and his chief foreman is Alfred Balaam. The work is done under the superintendence of C. F. Wickes for the Exposition officials.

EXHIBITS BY GREAT BRITAIN.

Six Hundred Thousand Square Feet of Space to Be Occupied.

Sir Henry Trueman Wood, Secretary of the British Commission, has made public particulars of the character and extent of the British exhibit at the Fair. The British section, he says, will cover 600,000 square feet, which is the largest space ever occupied by Great Britain at any international exhibition. Two-fifths of the space will be given to the colonies of Great Britain. There will be about 600 exhibiters in the industrial departments of the Fair, and great care has been taken to select exhibits which shall give the most adequate illustrations of Great Britain's commerce and art. The allotment of space is divided among the following departments: Agriculture, Electricity, Fisheries, Forestry, Live Stock, Machinery, Manufactures and Liberal Arts, Mines and Mining, Transportation, Fine Arts, and in the Woman's Building.

In the Manufactures Building there will be shown fine specimens of Worcester porcelain, Doulton ware, jewelry, furniture, silks, wall-papers, billiard tables, linen and old gold work from Ireland, chemical products, an extensive exhibit of photographs, including work by amateurs, newspapers, scientific instruments, and various educational appliances used by the School Board of London and the Science and Art Department.

In the Transportation Building the Britons will show engines and carriages from various English railways, bicycles, a model of the Forth bridge, carriages and vehicles, and an elaborate show of models of ships sent by the great shipbuilding firms of the United Kingdom. The latter exhibit attracted great attention at the Naval Exhibit in England, and, it is predicted, will be one of the most popular features of the British contribution to the great show, to view every exhibit in which, Sir Henry Trueman Wood says, will necessitate a walk of fifty miles.

In the Machinery Department a great number of miscellaneous mechanical devices will be in view. Printing and typesetting will be illustrated, there will be looms spinning frames, steam hammers, three steam engines at work, and specimens of cotton cleaning machinery.

English electricians, the Secretary states, have not contributed so liberally to the electrical section as the Commissioners have desired. The chief British exhibit will be a splendid collection of telegraph apparatus in use in the Postoffice Department.

Burdett-Coutts, M. P., will show a model of his stud farm in the Agricultural Building. There will also be a model dairy.

Of England's colonies Canada will hold the premier position, says Sir Henry Wood. Its exhibits will be large in the Agricultural, Mining, and Manufactures Building. New South Wales will show timber and merchandise and an enormous trophy of silver taken from the Broken Hill mine. Ceylon will show teas in native stall with native attendants. India will send specimens of Indian art, silks, and other articles. The Indian exhibit, though not decided upon till late, will nevertheless be creditable and interesting. South Africa will send exhibits, noticeable among which will be an illustration of the process of diamond mining, and the samples of clay sent over to show the operation of washing will be selected for their probability of containing diamonds.

Great Britain will have a handsome representation in the fine arts section. There will be between 800 and 900 works by some 300 painters who have been chosen out of 1,000 applicants. There will be few pictures from the public galleries, but nearly all of the royal academicians will have canvases at the Fair. The Queen has lent several pictures which will be sent over. In explanation of the limited number of pictures from public galleries, Sir Henry Wood states that the collections in the National Gallery and at South Kensington are precluded from being lent, a rule which is in contrast to the regulation on this point governing the public collections in France and Germany. These may be drawn upon with the assent of the government, which is not difficult to obtain.

Many of the British exhibits are now on the way to Chicago, and the organization of the section will be begun this month by Sir Henry Trueman Wood in person, assisted by a regular staff. He is confident that the entire exhibit will be complete and ready by May 1.

OPENING CEREMONIES TO BE SHORT.

There Will Be Neither Orators, Poets, Nor Prayers—The Program.

The opening exercises next May will be short and simple. The Executive committee has decided not to expend more than $5,000, and has outlined a brief program which omits poets, orators, and prayers. The entire services should be over in half an hour. All will be conducted in the open air.

First there will be music by the Exposition orchestra. Director-General Davis will then introduce the chiefs of the thirteen great departments. He will speak of them as the men who have filled the beautiful buildings with exhibits gathered from all corners of the earth. President Cleveland's address will be the event of the ceremonies, and at the close of his talk the President will press the button and start the machinery in motion. The official program as outlined by the Executive committee is as follows:

1. Music.
2. Presentation of chiefs of departments by the Director-General.
3. Music.
4. Address and opening of the World's Columbian Exposition by the President of the United States.
5. Starting machinery.
6. Official visit from the President of the United States and the officials of the World's Columbian Exposition and the World's Columbian Commission to the various departments, arrangements having been previously made with each chief to receive them.

SOLICITS FACTS RESPECTING WOMEN.

Board of Lady Managers Issues a Circular to Many Manufacturers.

The President of the Board of Lady Managers issued yesterday a circular to manufacturers asking for detailed information as to the amount of work done by women in a production of the display which is to be exhibited. Mrs. Palmer's circular asks twenty-two questions. The circular announces that the questions are not asked from an inquisitorial point of view, but in order to obtain, if possible, an accurate survey of the conditions under which women of the working world labor. The information is to be held in strict confidence. The circular continues:

> The Board of Lady Managers hopes for the sympathetic coöperation of all manufacturers in assisting it to take the opportunity which the World's Fair affords of acquiring and endowing the future with the information which may encourage women throughout the world and improve their means of obtaining an honorable livelihood.
>
> These returns will be published, either during or after the Exposition, in the form of a general report to Congress. An early reply will therefore greatly facilitate the work in hand.

Will Be a Crystal Cave.

Beneath the dome of the Horticultural Building there is a mountain of flowers. Inside this mountain next summer there is to be a crystal cave. The idea of a cave was hit upon by F. T. Allabough of Dakota, and the Ways and Means committee yesterday granted him a concession for carrying out his project. The flower mountain was first constructed for the purpose of hiding from view the heating apparatus which had to be placed in the dome. The more the Exposition official looked at it the better they were pleased and became convinced that it should be a permanent feature. Mr. Allabough came along and couldn't find any place more suitable for his cave than under these walls of flowers. The heating machinery will be moved out in the spring. It is the intention to reproduce one of the underground passages discovered in the Black Hills. There will be long pointed shafts of stalactites and stalagmites and a wealth of crystals.

All about Cinderella tomorrow.

FLOWERS AT THE FAIR

PRIMROSES WILL SOON BE REPLACED BY PERSIAN VIOLETS.

Nature's Beauties Even Now Make the Horticultural Building a Pleasing Sight—Novel Exhibition of Orchids—The Century Plant Will Blossom in Two or Three Weeks if Climatic Influences Are Favorable—The "Elkhorn" and Its Death Trap into Which Insects Wander.

IRST among the many departments of the Columbian Exposition to interest visitors with anything in the way of exhibits has been the Horticultural Building. Nature cannot be induced to advance or retard the growth of plants. When the season for primroses arrives the primroses will bloom even though it may be over three months before the Exposition will be formally opened.

For several weeks there has been a magnificent display of these beautiful forerunners of spring in the greenhouses at the Exposition grounds, and the season is now on the wane. In order that the public might have a better opportunity to see them they have been transported under the dome of the building, where they are arranged on stands on either side of the broad circular walk. The plants are all in pots and the exhibit of each grower is marked with a placard.

AGAVE AMERICANA

CENTURY PLANT.

The next exhibition of flowers will be of Persian violets, which are just beginning to bloom. The blossoms are large and handsome, showing great variety of color, and in the arrangement of the petals something of the eccentricities of the orchid. The stalk which holds the blossom stands up tall and straight, and the long rows of plants present the appearance of a resplendent cloud of butterflies hovering over some moist, green bank.

A superb collection of orchids has just been received and is being unpacked in the Horticultural Building. These are not for competitive exhibit, but have been purchased by the Exposition and will be used in adorning the grounds. The collection, which probably represents $5,000, contains some fine specimens, one of which is about four feet in diameter. The orchid, being a parasitic plant, admits of original treatment, and one of the designs which will interest visitors is the "Presidential Chair," made of different varieties of orchids, arranged upon a wooden framework, which when complete will resemble an imposing chair of state.

Century Plant to Bloom Soon.

An object of curiosity to most of those who visit the building is a century plant or agave in bud, which is expected to bloom in two or three weeks if the weather is favorable. Although an even temperature is maintained in the building the effect of the cold weather and lack of sunshine is to materially retard the growth of the bud or flower stalk, which is recorded by an ingenious device. Jan. 1 this stalk was but two and a half inches in height and is now over fifty inches. Jan. 3 and 4 it grew three inches. The average daily growth is but one and three-quarter inches or less. The name century plant is a misnomer, for plants have been known to bloom in twenty years. This specimen is supposed to be fifty years old. The flower of the agave is like the swan's song, the plant dies immediately after.

ELKHORN PARASITICAL PLANT.

The propagation is by means of seeds from the flower, though plants are also obtained from suckers. In tropical and semi-tropical countries the plant grows to an immense height, often twenty or twenty-five feet. The specimen at the Fair is a conservatory plant loaned by Mrs. Mark Reeves of Richmond, Ind. The plants grow best in a native state in Central America, though they are found as far north as Arizona and New Mexico. In old Mexico a fermented liquor is made from the juice, and a coarse cloth and ropes are made from the fiber.

One of the largest parasitical plants known is the elkhorn of Australia, so called from the peculiar form of its leaves. The plant, of which a number of examples are shown in the Horticultural Building, grows around the trunks of trees, its leaves growing close together in the form of an immense cup from three to five feet in diameter. This cup forms a sort of cemetery for bodies of small animals which may fall into it and which serve to manure the plant. The bones of lizards and small rodents were found in several of the plants exhibited here.

UNCLE SAM'S PROPOSED WAR EXHIBIT

It Will Be One of the Best Displays at the Park.

Uncle Sam will open up a big gun exhibit in the Government Building next summer. One-fifth of all the space in that structure has been set aside for the War Department and the entire area will be filled with the trappings of war. A gun foundry of huge proportions will be one of the features.

Here will be seen specimens of all munitions of war necessary for besieging a city, with rifled cannon capable of throwing twelve-inch iron shells of more than a thousand pounds weight. A big gun of fifty tons weight will be exhibited, and also many of the small pieces used in field service. Gun carriages of various descriptions will show the improvements made in the last few years. Small arms of all sorts and designs will form attractive groups by themselves, while the "stuff" with which to wound and kill in the way of smokeless powder, cartridges, torpedoes, and various kinds of fixed ammunition will have due prominence.

Several interesting features in connection with the manufacture of gunpowder will be shown. Only the processes generally known will be displayed, as the United States War Department is not disposed to impart secrets of so important a character. The Engineer Corps will make a fine exhibit of photographs of government works in various parts of the United States. In addition to these twenty-eight large transparencies will be arranged, representing certain panels, the windows in the southwest corner of the building being devoted to the purpose.

The signal service will make an imposing and pleasing display. A valuable collection of views of Arctic scenery, taken by the members of the Greely expedition, will be exhibited. A reproduction of a military hospital will be shown with wardroom, cots, pharmacy, operating-rooms, tables and all details required in a completely equipped United States army post hospital. The Quartermaster's department will embrace the various styles of camps and field equipage, flags, cooking utensils, etc. The Commissary Department will make an exhibit of prepared rations and the Geographical Survey Bureau will show models of harbor work, military bridges, and lines.

The exhibit of the War Department will be entirely separate from the Naval exhibit. The following staff of officers has been detailed by order of the Secretary of War to superintend the display: Maj. Clifton Comly, in command; Capt. J. F. Rogers, Quartermaster; Capt. W. L. Marshall, Corps of Engineers; Capt. La Garde, Medical Department; Capt. A. H. Russell, Capt. Borup, Ordnance; Capt. R. E. Thompson, Signal Corps; Lieut. H. L. Harris, First Artillery.

KENTUCKY TO BEGIN ITS BUILDING.

Ground Has Been Secured and Plans Have Been Submitted and Approved.

The Kentucky Board of Commissioners of the World's Fair has been in Chicago this week arranging for the State Building, upon which work will be begun immediately. The ground has been secured and the plans decided upon. The building will be located at the extreme northwest of the section occupied by the State buildings and in form will represent an old-fashioned homestead, with the leaning toward the Greek forms of architecture frequently displayed in early times.

Miss Enid Zandell has submitted a design for the pediment which has been accepted by the commission. The space to be covered is 6x24 feet. There will be a small irregular window in the center and on each side of this will appear the bas-relief in which Miss Zandell will symbolize the chief products of the State. Maize and tobacco will be employed in the ornamental molding of the window and will also be used in the body of the design, as typifying two of the chief products of Kentucky. Women and horses will be represented by a mythological figure, half woman and half horse.

The Filson club will make a complete display of pioneer and Indian relics and an heroic statue of Daniel Boone, also to be designed by Miss Zandell, will adorn this exhibit. Miss Zandell will begin upon her figure immediately and will have the hunting shirt, gun, shot-pouch, and other accouterments of the pioneer to model from.

Will Have a Fine Display.

The fine arts section of the German Women's committee has completed its collection of pictures for the Woman's Building. Among the most notable canvases will be a portrait of Vilma Parlaghi, painted by herself; a Venetian scene by Begas Pamentier, still life by Hedinger, Gräfin Marie von Kalkreuter's "Christ and Simon," and the "Oeschinnensee" of Marie von Kendell. The collection includes a number of portraits of celebrated women, conspicuous among which is one of Angelika Kaufmann. This collection also includes a portrait of Marie von Alfers by Elizabeth Strempel, and one of Frau von Helmholz by Sabine Lepsius-Graef. The Board of Lady Managers has received official notification by cable that the women of Spain will be active participants in the Exposition and that they will make an exhibit in the Woman's Building.

Contract for Tickets Let.

Five million tickets of admission to the Exposition next summer were contracted for yesterday by the Bureau of Admission. The American Bank Note company of New York was given the job. The first 5,000,000 are to be delivered by April 1. Then if three times as many more are required they will be furnished by the same company. The tickets are intended to be of an artistic character and will be printed on a fine quality of heavy paper. There will be two colors on one side and a single color on the other. The designs to go on the ticket have not been decided upon, but assurance is given that they will be fine. Columbus' head has been barred out. The tickets will be 2¼x4 inches, and will cost approximately three-fourths of a cent each. Should there be 10,000,000 issued the American Bank Note company expects to get $75,000 for the work.

Looking for More Funds.

Funds for the Children's Home at the World's Fair are not coming in as the managers of the enterprise anticipated. Contracts for the construction of the building were awarded yesterday and Mrs. George L. Dunlap made another request for additional contributions from those who might wish to give. Little children in the public schools have contributed a great many thousand pennies and Mrs. Dunlap hopes that people of means will help out the project. The scheme with the children has been to give a certificate with the seal of the Board of Lady Managers to every child who contributes $1. The plan for the penny subscriptions is to give a copy of the seal to the children who jointly contribute $1.

Pennsylvania's Appropriation Intact.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 3.—Gov. Pattison passed through Pittsburg today, en route to Franklin, and during an interview denied that there was any truth whatever in the recently circulated report of a deficit in Pennsylvania's World's Fair appropriation. Said he: "Why, there is $170,000 yet remaining, of which $140,000 is in the treasury and $30,000 in the hands of the subtreasurer. The calculations made still leaves $1,000 that, as far as is now seen, will not be needed at all." Continuing, Gov. Pattison said he would not sign any bill making a larger appropriation for Pennsylvania's exhibit at the Fair.

To Accommodate Women.

The President of the Dormitory Association has signed the contract for the dormitory building, which will be located at Fifty-third street and Ellis avenue. It will be built around a square court, will be two stories in height, and will contain 1,000 rooms, capable of accommodating as many women. The shares, which were sold at $10 each, have been disposed of with the exception of a few that have been reserved by the association for transient and non-shareholding visitors.

Exposition Notes.

The first shipment of the Krupp gun exhibit, consisting of fifteen cars, is expected to reach Jackson Park Monday. Owing to the great weight of some of the guns special cars were built for their transportation.

The Illinois Woman's Board met yesterday and discussed the details in connection with the arrangement of the corn kitchen, where it is intended to prepare a variety of corn dishes to be served to visitors. Mrs. Sarah L. Rorer will take charge of the cuisine.

The Watchmakers' and Jewelers' Association of Illinois has secured Marble Hall, on the fifth floor of the Masonic Temple, where, during the World's Fair, it will entertain the jewelers and watchmakers of the world. The hall has a floor area of 1,500 square feet.

Mr. Cummings of New York, from the Committee on Library, reported favorably to the House yesterday the Barter bill, extending the powers of the United States Government Board of the World's Fair by authorizing it to expend $50,000 in the preparation of an exhibit illustrating the progress of the colored race since 1863.

The Committee on Ceremonies will hold another meeting or two before the final announcement of its plans can be made. The original intention was to have a poem by Oliver Wendell Holmes, an orator of national renown, and a doctor of divinity of like prominence. But the business-men of the Executive committee thought a great deal of time would be consumed by such a program.

German women intend to emulate their English sisters by sending to the Exposition a library of the books written by German authors. The library has been collected and is ready for shipment. It consists of over 300 handsomely bound works, representing the most famous literary productions of the women of that country. The books will become the property of the lady managers at the close of the Exposition.

The members of the jury on fine arts to pass upon pictures submitted by intending exhibiters who are not residents in the States of New York, Pennsylvania, or Massachusetts will meet in Chicago in the first week of March. The session will be held at the new Art Institute Building on Michigan avenue. A large number of pictures from all parts of the country will then be shown and selections will be made by the jury of those to be exhibited in the fine arts section.

PLEA FOR FREEDOM.

Memorial for a Sunday Fair Adopted at Springfield.

COL. BRYAN'S GOOD WORK

He Makes an Eloquent Appeal for the People's Rights.

COUNTRY MEMBERS OPPOSED.

Resolutions Finally Passed by a Vote of 63 to 48.

THE BALLOT GIVEN IN DETAIL.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—But for the good offices of Speaker Crafts and the energetic work of Col. Bryan of Du Page, "Dan" Paddock, Donnelly, and a little knot of Cook County members the resolutions in favor of Sunday opening of the World's Fair would have been defeated in the House today. More than half of the Cook County members had gone home or were absent for other reasons. The rural members were present in large numbers and were zealous against the resolutions, which were brought up by Capt. Farrell soon after the reading of the journal. Representative Bryan supported them in a strong speech, saying:

> The opening of the Columbian Exposition Sunday is neither a local nor an unimportant question. In its educational and elevating influences on those tens of thousands who cannot visit the Exposition on other days the benefit will be incalculable. A college professor recently said that he would rather have his son spend a season of studious observation at the World's Fair than four years at the great university in which the father is an intellectual leader.
>
> The little band of men of moderate means, but untiring energy who selected Chicago as the proper site for this vast educational undertaking and who at sacrifice to themselves of strength and money succeeded against tremendous odds in wrenching the prize from Gotham's grasp had first of all in view the education of those people of America who cannot afford to travel. Some 30,000 wageworkers hold stock in this Illinois corporation. It is they and their comrades throughout the land who petition Congress to rescind its action. Will religion suffer? It will if the gates are kept closed, because the multitudes who most need the consolation of the Nazarene's teaching will associate church and aristocracy, church and austerity, religion and rum-selling. I respect the sincerity of the Puritan. But in this matter he has become the catspaw of the Sunday-thriving dive-keeper.
>
> Would Increase Congregations.
>
> The open Fair Sunday may become a nuisance to some of us who can go other days, but it will certainly increase the congregation of able and earnest preachers who will officiate in and near the Exposition grounds. That great pillar of Catholicism, Cardinal Manning; the noble patriot, Archbishop Ireland; the erudite Protestant, Bishop Potter; the brilliant Collier, and Thomas, and Spaulding will be heard there, for they favor Sunday opening. Under no condition must the compact with Congress made in accepting the gift be broken, but if it will rescind its action I for one would favor making the entrance fee that day as small as possible, so that every man, however poor, make take in his wife and children, and so that many an humble toiler may for the first time see and exclaim: "How wonderful are thy works, O God."

Col. Bryan did not content himself with this little speech in advocacy of the resolution. He worked among his colleagues for it, and Crafts and Donnelly labored with the Southern Democrats who were opposing the resolutions through prejudice against Chicago. Donnelly induced Mr. Murphy to make his little speech in which he said:

> I understand the groggerykeepers of Chicago want the Fair closed Sunday so that their business may thrive. For that reason I want to vote for it.

This influenced some waverers. The Speaker withheld the announcement until changes could be made, and finally the resolution was adopted—63 to 48.

The Resolutions.

The resolutions as adopted are as follows:

WHEREAS, There is now enjoyed by the people of the State of Illinois the reasonable liberty of devoting the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, either to religion exclusively or to religion and rest, or to religion, rest, and recreation, without undue restraint, and any attempt by the Congress of the United States by compulsory legislation or otherwise, to determine which of those modes of Sunday observance shall prevail anywhere within the limits of this State is deemed by our citizens entirely beyond the jurisdiction of Congress, an encroachment upon their liberty, and direct and dangerous position to the genius of American institutions; and

WHEREAS, The vast majority of the wageworkers of this and adjoining States insist that unless the gates of the coming World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago be opened on Sunday they will be barred the proper and reasonable enjoyment and elevating influences of the World's Fair accorded those having the means and facilities of such enjoyment on other days of the week, now therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring therein, that the Congress of the United States is hereby respectfully appealed to in this behalf to rescind its action concerning the Sunday closing of the World's Columbian Exposition, leaving to the officers of the Exposition discretion in stopping machinery on that day or otherwise by proper means to indicate that the American people believe in rational observance of Sunday;

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be engrossed and enrolled and transmitted to the Clerk of the House of Representatives and to the Secretary of the Senate in Washington.

To Close the Canadian Section Sundays.

ANTI-SNAPPERS MOVE.

WILL MEET CLEVELAND TO CLAIM IMPORTANT PLACES.

They Now Think That Cleveland Does Not Know What Is Political Gratitude—Turned Down Continually—Why Former Members of the Cabinet Are Not Inclined to Again Enter Cleveland's Family—The President-Elect Wants Canada—Sensational Divorce Case.

New York, Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Mr. Cleveland's week of receptions ends tomorrow, and from this time on until he goes to Washington it is his intention to see no one with whom he has not made appointment by letter or who has not been invited by him to come to Lakewood. The best opinion here is that he has practically decided upon his Cabinet, and that before the end of another week it will be possible pretty accurately to suggest the names of those who will aid him in his administration. His interview with Mr. Carlisle, which may be prolonged over Sunday, he expected to take place last week, but it was postponed for mutual convenience. Mr. Carlisle either assumes indifference when he has been asked if he has any idea who his fellow-members of the Cabinet are to be or else that is a matter which gives him little concern.

He seems to be wholly absorbed with the financial problems which he will have to consider, although those who have talked with him say that he is not so greatly alarmed over the silver situation as Mr. Cleveland seems to be. The Senator seems to his friends here to be in better health than he has been for a long time. He is perfectly well, stronger than he has been at any time since he became Speaker, has adopted some rules for preserving his health, and, all in all, appears to look forward to his service as Secretary of the Treasury with great enthusiasm. When Mr. Cleveland announced that he would give this week to conferences with any responsible persons who wanted to see him he said that he would not be compelled to deny himself one day. He thought he should be able to finish his work of this sort today and that he could have Saturday for seclusion.

But there came a few days ago an appeal to him, formal, persistent, and perhaps as sharp as courtesy would permit it to, be for an audience with some of those who have felt themselves peculiarly bound to him and who believe now that the time has come when he should recognize or repudiate these obligations. Mr. Cleveland after considering this request for a day or two sent word to those who made it that he would see them on Saturday. He put off the interview as long as possible and gave up a day which he hoped to have entirely to himself. This interview may be of very great consequence. It may determine whether Mr. Cleveland will accept the offer of his old friends to destroy the regular Democratic machine in New York State and create a new one in his interest or whether he will decline to take advantage of this opportunity.

Anti-Snappers Who Will Talk.

The most earnest of those who created what is colloquially called the anti-snapper movement, but is referred to with more dignity as the Syracuse convention party, were Oswald Ottendorfer, Charles S. Fairchild, Ellery Anderson, Robert G. Monroe, and ex-Mayor Grace. The political experience, the organizing ability of some of these men, and the great wealth which they are able to command made it possible for them to crystallize the opposition to Hill, make it formidable, and barricade the rapidly growing movement in other States in favor of Hill's nomination on the plea that he was the strongest Democrat in New York. These men and their following were commonly reported to have been turned down by Mr. Whitney at the Chicago convention. Yet last spring I pointed out that these anti-snapper leaders had foreseen the possibility of just such emergency as might arise in Chicago and had determined that if Mr. Cleveland could be nominated without any other demonstration on their part than a model one they would consent to stand one side.

That was exactly what happened, excepting they had no idea that Mr. Whitney would take to himself the prestige of this thing. They have never forgiven Whitney for it, he is no longer on terms of political intimacy with any of them, and his personal relations with some are strained to the point of cold courtesy.

Are Again Turned Down.

Last fall these men and their following being anxious to serve Cleveland and distrustful of the regular Democracy hoped to keep up their organization. After Mr. Cleveland had his peculiar Victoria Hotel dinner with men whom he despised politically his anti-snapper friends were amazed to hear him say that they must abandon all organized effort, for they would injure rather than help him if they tried to aid him in that way. Some of them were deeply humiliated. His old Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Fairchild, has never recovered from the wound. Some of the others have scarcely seen Mr. Cleveland since the election. A few of them are brave enough to admit that their experience justified the assertions of those who have said that Mr. Cleveland is unfamiliar with political gratitude, and that it is his belief that politics is not gratitude but power.

Some of them have been brave enough to suggest the matter of patronage to him and even to insist that the important Federal offices ought to be filled by appointments from the anti-snapper organization. Mr. Cleveland has listened with dismal courtesy to these propositions. He has not invited opinions or confidences from a single one of these people. His treatment of them has been that of indifference, which is more than can be said of his relations with some of those who have been associated with the other faction. Patience has ceased to be a virtue in the opinion of some of these men, and they have determined to find out exactly what Mr. Cleveland's purposes are. They have recently held several meetings at one of the up-town hotels, when this matter was fully discussed, and at last decided to make formal request of Mr. Cleveland for an audience, and if this should be granted to talk to him with such plainness as their command of English permits.

These men are not disposed to be satisfied with frigid politeness. They will tell Mr. Cleveland that if he desires organized following in this State he must do those things which will enable his friends to create it, and if he then seems indifferent they will bid him good day, and permit him in his own way and from the plain people whom he professes to love, to create such a machine as in his opinion will best serve him and his administration. It is apparent that those who control the State offices have determined to build up a new organization as it seems now in the interest of Gov. Flower. Perhaps after Mr. Cleveland becomes President he will undertake to carry out that threat which he made last winter of crushing these people if they put stumbling blocks in his path. But the wonder is where he is going to find the men of ability and experience who will enable him to crush this machine, since he seems disposed no longer to trust his friends, while he is as bitter in enmities as he ever was.

Cabinet Making Experiences.

The strangest stories are told among the abler politicians, especially those who gather at the Manhattan club, of Mr. Cleveland's experiences with some men with whom he has consulted regarding Cabinet places. Not one of the members of his former Cabinet was willing to take any post in the new one, and some of them have not hesitated to say in private that business-men and public men of long experience and high character hesitate to enter into an association which suggests the master and his pupils. The story which was told of Judge Lamar, who when a member of Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet said after a Cabinet meeting one Tuesday that "I am glad that we do not have to meet the master again until Thursday," is true.

Mr. Whitney, whose relations with Mr. Cleveland had not become strained until the beginning of the new year, was expected by the President-elect to take the post of Secretary of State, and Mr. Cleveland was amazed when his old friend declined it. He could not understand why Don M. Dickinson, who was offered any post in the Cabinet excepting the Treasury Department, should have declined over and over again, but he would have understood it had he heard Mr. Dickinson say that his earlier experience was sufficient. He would serve Mr. Cleveland loyally and at some personal sacrifice, but he could not become a member of his official family. Senator Vilas could not be prevailed upon to return to the Cabinet, and Mr. Bayard's hesitation was not entirely due to the fact that he thought he could not afford it.

However, Mr. Cleveland will not be embarrassed on this account, but he has been amazed that any man or group of men should have forgotten, as he believes, their self-respect so far as to make persistent campaigns in behalf of Cabinet offices. Mr. Cleveland has said that he thinks a person might just as properly try to force himself into the private family of a President.

Cleveland Is After Canada.

I was told today that the prestige which it was hoped would go to Mr. Cleveland's administration by reason of the sudden and dramatic acquisition of Hawaii was not the only diplomatic prize which Mr. Cleveland and his friends have been hoping they would be able to win. They did not expect to secure Canada by one brilliant stroke after the manner which they had in contemplation to gain the Sandwich Islands, but Mr. Dickinson certainly has led Democrats here to believe that before the close of Mr. Cleveland's administration Canada would be found, if not in the Union, at least about to come in. The resolution offered by Congressman Cummings may have been inspired by the knowledge that it is Mr. Cleveland's purpose to set in motion those agencies which would bring Canada to us, and the Hawaiian diplomacy having been prematurely revealed, Mr. Cummings may think that it is just as well no longer to hide the coveting glance that is turned towards the St. Lawrence.

The action of the New York delegation in Congress, which, it is said, will be taken speedily to bring about a repeal of the Sherman law, is not due so much to any regard for the wishes of Mr. Cleveland as to the pressure brought by powerful banking interests in this city, and especially by bankers who have been of secret though unrecognized influence with Tammany Hall. These men have brought all the influence they could command—some of them secret and subtle and some direct—to bear upon the Democratic delegation from New York, and it is these influences which are forcing these Congressmen into action.

A Sensational Divorce Case.

At the Manhattan club a great deal of exciting comment has been heard lately respecting an action for divorce which it is said is about to be brought against one of the most prominent and lively members of the club. The case when it reaches the courts in a day or two will cause general comment not only on account of the wealth of the parties to the action but because it is very unusual to have public scandal in the wealthier Hebrew circles.

Charles L. Bucki has been for years regarded as the King of the lumber trade in this city. He is reputed to be a multi-millionaire, has been a successful contractor, and recently built that marvel of cable railroads, the one which surmounts the Catskill Mountains. He has been as persistent in his pleasures as in his business. He is one of the gayest members of the Manhattan club. Everybody there likes him.

Mr. Bucki lived for some years in a beautiful home in the aristocratic section west of Central Park, but for some time he has abandoned domestic life, he living at one of the uptown hotels while his wife and family remain in the old home. She is a beautiful woman, a leader in the Hebrew aristocracy of New York, which commands quite as much wealth in the aggregate as do the 400. Mrs. Bucki brings a petition for divorce, but on what grounds will not be revealed until the lawyers appear in court. The great wealth of the family, their high social standing, Bucki's brilliant repute as a club man will combine to make this a sensational case.

Railway Rates to the Fair.

Railway managers here are still consulting about the rates of fare to the Columbian Exposition next summer, and their concern has been recently increased by the evidences they have received that traffic will pass far beyond the greatest estimates made by the managers last fall. It now seems likely that every trunk line running from the Atlantic coast will be tested to its utmost capacity. One of the companies has ordered $1,000,000 worth of new rolling stock, and all of them are putting everything that may be used in safety in readiness for this traffic. It is not likely, however, that fares on the first class or limited trains will be decreased. The managers tell me that the different trunk lines are now running as many trains at high rates of speed as can be done with safety.

They believe, too, that many persons will be entirely willing to pay for these exclusive accommodations and that to cheapen the rates on limited trains would be only to create a demand for other and more expensive service. It is probable, however, that arrangements will be made possible for daily excursion service at a low rate of fare. But those who take advantage of such opportunity must expect to dispense with parlor cars, dining cars, porters, and the other incidentals which increase the expense of travel. These trains will be slow and carry no sleepers, but they will be of a better grade than the immigrant trains. One thing is certain, and that is there will be no cutting of rates, no mighty rivalries, since the managers are convinced that every road instead of seeking business will be more greatly concerned with the problem of handling it.

Opera and Grand Opera.

The pleadings of the maidens and the sighs of the matrons are likely to avail, so that now instead of indifference two committees are at work in competition to secure the ruins of the great opera-house so that it may be rebuilt and grand opera, mainly for the benefit of society, produced here next winter. It is going to cost not far from $2,000,000. So much money must be raised, but modern financiering seems to be equal to the emergency, and has provided a way by which the opera itself may possibly pay off such obligations. It is only by private subvention that grand opera is possible in New York. The only season when any money was made was in the last weeks of Mr. Abbey's company's presentations last winter, and it was the old and somewhat over-familiar "Faust" which saved that season and gave Mr. Abbey a few thousand dollars profit, but he had an extraordinary cast for it.

Opera that is not grand does not pay here at all. Attempts at summer seasons, which have proved successful in other cities, have caused misery to managers. This winter, with a good company in a new opera-house singing favorite operas in English, the manager has turned with sad eyes upon his backers for relief, and may be compelled to close at the end of two weeks a season which was expected to run for twelve. Comic opera, however, pays well, as Reginald De Koven has to his joy discovered, so that he is understood to be writing another one.

RECEIVER FOR A LITTLE ROCK RAILWAY.

Capitalists Watching Chancery Proceedings in the Arkansas Capital.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—In the Pulaski Chancery Court today the case of The Thomson-Houston Electric Company of New York and Chicago vs. The City Electric Street Railway Company was taken up. Walter J. Ballard of Chicago and several local attorneys appeared in behalf of the plaintiffs. The application is for a receiver, and the bill alleges that the street railway company is insolvent; that it is encumbered with $600,000 bonds and a floating debt of $60,000; that it has issued $200,000 of income bonds, which are void because not properly authorized by the Board of Directors.

The defendants owe the Thomson-Houston company $170,000. The suspension of the First National Bank, the former President of which institution was also President of the City Electric Street railway company, has greatly complicated matters, and the Thomson-Houston people have prepared an amended petition in which it is alleged that the President of the street railway company, the Vice-President, and Secretary and Treasurer, and a majority of the directors are insolvent, and for that and other reasons improper to be left in charge of the property; that the President has shown himself utterly reckless and unscrupulous.

In addition the Atlantic Trust company alleges that the interest upon the bonded indebtedness of the railway company amounts to $36,000 per annum, while its income is less than $31,000, so that it is impossible for it to pay the interest out of its earnings; that the intervener has recently learned that the installments of interest heretofore paid upon its bonds have not been paid out of the earnings, but with money borrowed for the purpose. Chancellor Carroll issued an order that pending the application for a receiver the defendant railway company be restrained from taking any steps by which the situation of affairs would be changed and from doing anything further than the mere routine operation of its cars and machinery and the collection of fares and payment of current bills. The case went over until Thursday next. Capitalists from New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, and St. Louis are here awaiting the result.

Text and Application.

In the dining-room of an English hotel a scriptural text is hung on the wall, as follows: "Wait on the Lord and he shall exalt thee to inherit the land," and alongside of it is a warning from the landlord, reading: "Watch your hat and overcoat, as the proprietor is not responsible for them."

FEARS FOR FUTURE.

MUCH SPECULATION INDULGED IN THE FIELD OF TRADE.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review—Despite More or Less Uncertainty, Actual Business Has Been Surprisingly Large—Large Distribution of Products to Consumers—Western Trade Interrupted by Storms—Weekly Review of Wall Street—Returns of the Clearing-Houses.

New York, Feb. 3.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Actual business is surprisingly large for the season and yet fears about the future are also large. Congressional uncertainties cause the fears, but the prosperity and needs of the people make business what it is, and never before has the distribution of products to consumers been larger than it has been thus far this year. Yet it is probably safe to say that rarely if ever, except in a time of panic, has business been more cautiously and conservatively regulated. Monetary uncertainties are excused by the continued outgo of gold, but the passage of the anti-option bill by the Senate had no effect on the markets as yet.

NEW GOVERNMENT BUILDING AT AURORA, ILL.

At Pittsburg the glass trade is fair, but trade in iron and its products weak. Business at Cleveland is fairly good, and at Cincinnati the demand for lumber exceeds the supply, and prospects are bright for trade in woolens. General trade is improving at Indianapolis, and at Detroit exceeds that of last year. At Chicago receipts of cured meats and wheat are more than three times those of last year, and considerable increase is seen in corn, cheese, oats, and rye, while in hogs, lard, and dressed beef the decrease is large. Trade at Milwaukee is increasing, though collections are retarded. The storm checks retail trade in the region about St. Louis. At Minneapolis and St. Paul trade is fair, and similar conditions appear at Kansas City, but at St. Joseph and Omaha trade is generally good and money in good demand. At Denver business is fair, at Louisville prospects are encouraging, at Nashville business is good, and at Knoxville improving with money in better demand; at Little Rock collections are slow, but at Mobile trade is satisfactory. Business at New Orleans is quiet, with money in good demand and easy, cotton more active, sugar strong, and trade in rice improving.

While there is much cutting of rates by the railroads, and the movement has been greatly interrupted in the West by severe storms, the volume of traffic astonishes managers. The movement of cotton is not large, but the great accumulation of stocks is felt in a decline of an eighth, with sales of 1,000,000 bales. The wonderful demand for textile fabrics is unabated, for brown and bleached cottons the market is said to be the best for twenty years, and some makes of sheetings have advanced. The trade in low and medium grades of men's woolens is about closing at the time when it is usually opening, and while the demand for fine grades is less strong, possibly because of anticipation of tariff changes, the general tendency is clearly toward greater economies in manufacture. Trade in boots and shoes is active. Prices for manufactured products of iron and steel are depressed beyond all precedent, but nevertheless the sales continue remarkably large and the volume of business greater than in any previous year. The stagnation in steel rails has been broken by the placing of orders for 60,000 tons by the Pennsylvania railway, and in plates orders for 20,000 tons have been placed for the Cramps at the Pittsburg mills, though at low prices. Large structural contracts have also been placed for buildings in New York.

While $2,500,000 gold has been ordered for shipment today and the amount may be larger receipts from the interior were so heavy that money markets were not disturbed and foreign exchange is slightly lower. Produce exports are $10,000,000 less than last year since Jan. 1 and there is also a decrease at cotton ports in spite of the advance in prices. The uncertainty about the monetary future retards business engagements, but in other respects trade is most satisfactory and perhaps all the more safe and healthy for the feeling of caution that prevails.

The business failures number 301, as compared with totals of 295 last week.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF WALL STREET.

Speculation a Game Between Two Sets of Professional Operators.

New York, Feb. 3.—Bradstreet's Wall street review says: Stock speculation has degenerated for the time being into a game in which one set of professional operators are pitted against another section of the same element. Public interest of any real character is lacking, the outside participation being furnished only by speculative followers of the current manipulation. It is true that the demand for bonds and high grade stocks is fair in its proportions, though such business seems to be as devoid of real relations to the active market as the customary dealings in municipal securities. The excessive ease of money, which conservative interests do not regard as an indication of the most favorable nature, renders the market apparently indifferent to the progress of gold exports and supports the artificial bullish activity which has been maintained in the industrials, and even negatives the effect of the disastrous break which this week overtook distillers, one of the most prominent of the group in question. Apart from the eccentric performances of the industrials the general market has lacked interest.

EVERYBODY TAKES THE BOVINE VIRUS.

Reports of Smallpox Cases Keep the Vaccinating Physicians in Employment.

Because of the recent article in The Tribune about smallpox cases in the city there has been much vaccination done by the Department of Health.

Room 8 in the City Hall has been cleared and assigned for purposes of free vaccination. The room is thronged daily by persons who wish to be vaccinated. All classes of people call there. They speak all languages, and are of all ages.

Most of them are vaccinated on the arm, but every day there are young women who insist on being vaccinated on the lower limbs, as they move in society and do not want the anti-epidemic scar on the arm.

The children of the public schools are vaccinated free by physicians of the Health Department who visit the school buildings. Many of the children from these schools visit the doctors' room at the City Hall. Children of the parochial schools, which are not visited by representatives of the Health Department, call at the City Hall.

To make the work thorough the Health Department has inaugurated the vaccination of public officers. They are being vaccinated by precincts. Almost all the Central detail officers have been cared for. When a friend of any of the down-town officers on crossings salutes them the officers shy around and hold their left arm away out of reach of a friendly hand. Some of the officers have been made sick and unfit for duty by this preventive operation. Last evening two Health Department physicians visited Maxwell Street Station and vaccinated sixty officers. Lieut. Byrne drew the men up in line for roll-call, then they were ordered to strip off their coats and bare their left arms, and the two physicians went to work.

Thirty-three tramps, who had sought shelter for the night in the station, were taken up into the drill-room, formed in line, and vaccinated. They formed a motley crew. Most of them were ragged, there were but six overcoats in the crowd, several were crippled, and a dozen were drunk. Almost all of them objected to being vaccinated, but a few stern words from Lieut. Byrne, and they submitted, though with poor grace, to the operation.

When a case of smallpox breaks out in a neighborhood agents from the Health Department at once make a house to house canvass in the vicinity and vaccinate all who have not been operated upon before. This has had a salutory effect on checking the spread of the malady.

The number of persons vaccinated since The Tribune recently gave the alarm as to two or three cases of smallpox in the city has reached far up among the thousands. The statistics are not compiled yet, but the aggregate number is large.

Dr. Wells, one of the city physicians, said yesterday: "No large city in the United States is so free from smallpox today as Chicago, and this is because of the gratuitious and general vaccination in vogue here. Every day this room is crowded. Hundreds are served daily. The vaccination is free to all and office hours are from 9 a. m. to 12 and from 2 to 4 p. m.

AN OHIO PRESIDING ELDER RESIGNS.

The Ministers of His District Decide He Is Guilty of Unministerial Conduct.

Lima, O., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The Rev. L. R. Henderson, presiding elder of the Lima district of the Methodist Episcopal Church, resigned today under sensational circumstances. Henderson was charged with writing several letters to Miss Mertie German, the pretty daughter of Moses German, President of the Commercial Bank at Delphos, requesting the privilege of seeing her privately. She turned the last letter over to her father, who decided to trap the divine and he had her answer the letter. Henderson appeared and was met by German, who kicked him off the premises. An effort was made to hush up the affair, but it got out and the ministers heard of it and held an investigation, at which Henderson penned his resignation from the presiding eldership and the church. He is 70 years of age and was cowhided at Van Wert about ten years ago for insulting a young lady.

Ore Shipped from Southern Wisconsin.

Galena, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The shipments of ore from Benton, Southern Wisconsin, in 1892 were: Galena, 800,000 pounds; black jack, 8,000,000 pounds; dry bone, 5,000,000 pounds. Five carloads of mineral were shipped from here yesterday by Jefferson Crawford of Hazel Green.

ON AURORA'S ISLAND.

WATERS OF THE FOX WILL HAVE A PUBLIC BUILDING SITE.

Work to Shortly Begin on a Fine Federal Edifice in the Capital of Kane County—Through Congressman Hopkins' Enterprise Appropriations Aggregating $100,000 Have Been Secured—Building to Be Erected Between Aurora and West Aurora on Neutral Ground.

Aurora, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Aurora people are just now congratulating themselves because the dream of many years is about to become a reality. The city is to have a government building. The appropriation has been made, a lot purchased, the contract for the foundation let, the old buildings incumbering the ground sold, and the actual work of construction will commence in a few days. Representative Hopkins of this city could not have found a better way of endearing himself to his fellow-townsmen than by getting through Congress a bill for a postoffice building in Aurora. The original bill introduced two years ago called for an appropriation of $100,000, which was cut down in committee to $75,000 and passed. This was not considered sufficient, but the Congressman accepted it and bided his time. Last June when the sundry civil bill was sent from the Senate to the House it had two riders attached in which Aurora felt particularly interested. One was for an appropriation for the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago, the other appropriating $25,000 more to complete the government building in this city. This was the only public building appropriation made at that session of the economical House of Representatives.

When Col. Lowe of the Treasury Department came to Aurora to decide upon a site for the building, he personally desired to see it located on the east side of the Fox River, where three-quarters of the population reside. He found, however, that there was but one available site, which would be acceptable to the people, and that site was "the island."

The unwritten law that the postoffice must be located on the island, which Col. Lowe found to exist, dates back to early times. Before the city was incorporated Aurora and West Aurora were two separate towns with an intense rivalry between them. The postoffice was originally on the east side, much to the disgust of west siders.

Island as a Site of Peace.

Finally when Franklin Pierce was President R. C. Mix was appointed Postmaster. He was a west side man and at once moved the office to River street, on his own side. Great was the rejoicing of west siders when this was accomplished. Nearly the whole population gathered on the river bank in the evening in full view of east siders and there showed their joy by firing off cannon and shooting off fireworks. One man even had his hand blown off, so fierce was the celebration. Mad would not express the feelings of patriotic east siders. They refused to have anything to do with the new postoffice. They employed a man named Frank Reynolds to go after their mail and bought their stamps at Montgomery, two miles away. This course brought Mr. Mix to time. To establish peace, and at the same time regain his commissions, he built a frame postoffice on an island in the river midway between the warring factions, and on the island the postoffice has remained to this day. That same building is now standing on the site of the proposed new structure. A few years later the City of Aurora was incorporated under a special charter and it became necessary to build a city court-house. It was designed to contain a room for the postoffice, and the State Legislature was asked to determine its location. By a special act of the Legislature, therefore, it was located forever on the island. This alleviated in a measure the feeling between the two divisions of the city, although Col. Lowe found enough left to make any other site impossible.

As can be seen from the picture taken from the architect's plans, the new postoffice will be a handsome two-story stone structure, an ornament to the city. The site cost $20,000. Nearly $80,000 will therefore be available for the building itself. E. D. Briggs has been appointed supervisor of construction and W. C. Estee dispersing agent. The next Postmaster seems to have been already selected by local politicians, and if plans do not miscarry his name will be Jacob Marx. Mr. Marx is a young German merchant who, as President of the Hickory club, has been especially active in advancing the cause of Democracy in Aurora.

Judicial Reprimand for "Stormy" Jordan.

Keokuk, Ia., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—"Stormy" Jordan was brought before Judge Woolson in the Federal court on the charge of failing to cancel the international revenue stamps on liquor barrels and kegs. He pleaded not guilty and when asked if he wanted a lawyer answered that he had no money to buy a lawyer with. Judge Woolson severely reprimanded him for this language. Jordan is the notorious violator of the Iowa prohibition law, against whom more than $30,000 in fines is outstanding. He formerly conducted a saloon in Ottumwa, which he called "The Road to Hell." His case was continued.

Gen. Clarkson has written a stinging letter on the results of the last campaign. It will first see the light tomorrow and will create a sensation. It will be printed as a matter of news, and "The Tribune" disclaims responsibility for the attack on the President.

EXECUTION OF A WIFE MURDERER.

Wallace W. Holmes Hanged at Springfield Mass.—Story of His Crime.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 3.—Wallace W. Holmes, the wife murderer, was hanged at 10:25 this morning. The crime for which Holmes paid the penalty has been regarded as peculiarly atrocious. On election day in November, 1891, the body of his wife, who had been missing two months, was found in the cellar of his house on a lonely road near the outskirts of Chicopee. According to the testimony of his 9-year-old son Harry, Holmes became incensed at his wife early one morning over some trivial matter. In a rage he dragged her out of bed and kicked and beat her until she became unconscious. Believing her to be dead he dragged the body to the cellar and buried it in a shallow grave. At the post-mortem examination of the body sand was discovered in the lungs, indicating, the surgeons said, that she had been buried alive. When the neighbors made inquiries as to what had become of his wife, Holmes told them that she had eloped with a former admirer. But as he had often made threats against her life the neighbors became suspicious, and on instituting a search found the body buried in the cellar.

He was then arrested and in the following June tried and convicted. The case was appealed to the Supreme Court, which sustained the finding of the lower court. The death sentence was pronounced Oct. 28. Since then Holmes has admitted his guilt. He was born at St. Albans, Vt., and served in the Fifth Vermont Infantry in the war.

Land Suit That Affected a Senatorship.

ASHLAND, Wis., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The case of A. L. Osborne et al. vs. Col. John H. Knight, both Ashland parties, being argued at Washington, D. C., before the Secretary of the Interior, is of special interest now, as it played an important part in the Senatorial contest when Knight was accused of using his official influence for personal gain. H. H. Beaser, John Prince, R. Y. Prince, H. Snyder, and several others are interested with the plaintiff in this case against Knight. The latter is endeavoring to get possession of Wisconsin Central land, suburban to Ashland, valued at $100,000, using the innocent purchaser act as his support. The plaintiffs all have filings on the land. Whoever loses in the contest before the Secretary of the Interior will carry the case to the United States Supreme Court.

Saloon Crusade in Columbus, Ind.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The clergymen of this city organized a ministerial association four weeks ago and made an onslaught on the saloonkeepers for violating the law by preaching on the subject, and demanding of the Council the passage of an ordinance compelling the removal of all screens and frosted glass from saloons. The saloon men opposed this violently, but said they would be willing to accept as a substitute an ordinance requiring such restrictions after 11 o'clock at night and Sundays. Two weeks ago the passage of this ordinance was defeated, and this so emboldened the liquor men that they will now oppose any ordinance.

CABLE STOCKS BOOM.

SHARP ADVANCE IN BOTH NORTH SIDE AND WEST SIDE STOCKS.

Traders in the Produce Markets Are Anxiously Waiting for Action on the Part of Congress in Regard to the Anti-Option Matter—A Little Better Feeling Prevails in Most of the Pits—General Commercial and Financial News from Other Centers.

There is every appearance of a genuine and vigorous boom in the street railway stocks. North Side stock again advanced yesterday and once more passed all previous records. West Side stock advanced sharply, selling up from an opening at 220 to a close at 225, with the market strong from start to finish. The buying of the cable stocks is general, but it seems to have for a foundation the support of strong insiders. The boom seems to be principally based on an appreciation of the value of the rights. It is argued that when these stocks are ex-rights they are certain to look very cheap to the public, and quotations are likely to be advanced to about that point they are now. If the present prices can be maintained after the stock sells ex-rights it is evident that the rights are valuable.

One thing that will be likely to interfere with the steady progress of the boom is the unanimity with which traders are expecting the market to keep on advancing. About every one on the floor is bullish. The money market is not yet so easy that everybody can obtain an unlimited supply of funds at a narrow margin between the amount borrowed and the amount of collateral put up. A great deal of account is being taken on by not particularly strong traders, and there is a possibility that it might not be easy for them to take up the stock when this account ends Feb. 23. The buying is mainly in strong hands, however, and it is not at all improbable that the prediction of the bull leaders that West Side stock will sell at 230 before the close of the account will be more than verified.

American Strawboard stock is decidedly strong. It sold up yesterday to 89¾ for the account and closed firm. The insiders seem to have much faith in the future of the property and they are talking decidedly higher prices. Diamond Match stock sold at 160. Calumet Dock continues to advance, although the trading was not nearly so active yesterday as it was Thursday. The stock got up to 73¾ yesterday and closed at the highest for the day. The indications are that there is a pool to put the stock up. Officers of the company insist that there is no reason to be found for the advance in any new developments regarding the company's affairs and it seems likely that the present quotations are entirely the result of clique manipulation.

The brewery stocks were firm in the morning, but scored no special advance. Edison stock continues at 210 bid, with none offered. There are bids of 118 for Arc Light and Power, and it is likely some one stands ready to take all that is offered at that price on the assurance of the deal being carried through for the absorption of the company by the Edison people on the basis of 120.

Lake Street Elevated stock is heavy. It sold down to 31¼ yesterday. Stock in the Metropolitan Elevated can be had in a limited way at about 40, and the friends of that stock declare that there is no comparison to be made between it and Lake Street Elevated. They say that the financial future of the Metropolitan is assured, the construction definitely arranged for, and that it is entirely free from legal entanglements and the one hundred and one complications that surround the other company. On the other hand the believers in Lake Street stock declare that they have a road almost finished and in shape where operation can begin in a short time after the active work of completing it is started in earnest, and they believe that this offsets the advantages which the Metropolitan people claim. Some Rapid Transit stock sold yesterday at 97. The market for the bonds is at 95, with bids for practically unlimited amounts at a fraction below that.

There was no progress in the direction of easier money yesterday. Commercial paper brokers report that the local demand for money has fallen off in the last day or two. At some of the banks it was said that 6 per cent loans had been refused during the day simply because they did not have the money to supply the demand, but at other banks there was no shaking of cashiers' heads at any applicant with the proper standing. Bankers are looking forward to a decidedly profitable year. They say that the great number of World's Fair schemes in the way of hotels and amusement enterprises have now reached a point where the actual cash has to be put up and that the demands of that nature will absorb a great amount of capital from now until the opening of the Fair. They believe that this will prevent rates getting below the present figure materially. The money that is put into these enterprises will not come back until the close of the Fair, and so these bankers who are taking a cheerful view of the outlook think it not improbable that money will remain in good demand all summer, with rates at a more than ordinarily remunerative basis.

The sterling market was a shade firmer yesterday. Somewhere between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 will probably go out on today's steamers.

Clearings at the principal cities of the United States yesterday and a week ago were:

	Feb. 3.	Jan 27.
New York	$136,181,746	$146,358,664
Boston	17,663,006	15,351,058
Chicago	15,685,596	15,308,549
Philadelphia	14,225,674	12,876,282
St. Louis	3,589,473	3,563,933
Baltimore	2,732,936	2,520,553
New Orleans	2,229,265	2,164,908

New York exchange was quoted as follows yesterday: Chicago, 10c discount; Boston, 5@10c discount; St. Louis, par.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Two general neutralizing conditions overshadowed the market today and left prices free to follow their particular bent. The adverse circumstance was the withdrawal of gold for a consignment of some magnitude by tomorrow's steamships, $2,500,000 being the amount that is expected to go. There had been a belief that the weakness of exchange would obviate the necessity for the shipment. The favorable circumstance was the report that a large shipment of American securities would go also by tomorrow's steamships, and it was asserted that this would in a measure offset the gold shipment in its influence on the money market. At any rate dealings were not dampened by the gold shipment as they have been many times in the past. That the present temper of the market is such that it responds more quickly to favorable than to unfavorable conditions was again shown today when on a variety of reports several stocks easily moved upwards, imparting by sympathy strength to the general list. The opening was firm, with prices generally higher. The features in the early trading were Reading, New England, and Richmond Terminal. Both the former stocks moved upward on reports that a combination had been formed to secure control of the Old Colony road. Reading was in active demand and New England had a return to prosperity, the opening bid being more than a full point above yesterday's close. Richmond Terminal was exceptionally strong and in active demand on the assurance of a prominent banking house that it might undertake the reorganization of the property. The stock opened one-half point above yesterday's close, with the quick advance of another half point. The buying clearly indicated a belief that better times were in store for the properties that have experienced such vicissitudes. Distillers' certificates opened firm, and although there were fluctuations within a narrow range, the stock maintained its strength by the skillful operations of the new pool that has apparently come to its support. Manhattan and Sugar certificates both were strong at fractional gains. The balance of the list was steady. The strength of the market during the early part of the day was more than maintained in subsequent transactions when many stocks were buoyant and scored unusual advances. Manhattan, which opened at 162, closed at 168. Chesapeake and Ohio, on the assumption that it would be favorably affected by the Richmond Terminal reorganization, moved up from 23⅞, the opening bid, to 25½, and Omaha again showed the effect of skillful management, as the price moved easily from 54⅜ to 57⅜. Distillers' certificates fluctuated somewhat, but on the whole held their strength in an encouraging manner. New England and Reading each were firm and generally unchanged from the early prices. The grangers and coal stocks were less active, although not weak. A feature of the market was a demand for low priced stocks, especially of railway shares, with the result that transactions were usually well distributed, and many stocks that have been for a long time dormant were again active. The market relapsed into positive dullness at the close, although there was no perceptible yielding in prices.

Money on call easy at 1½ to 2 per cent, last loans 2, closed offered at 2. Prime mercantile paper 4½@6.

Sterling exchange quite but firmer with actual business in bankers' bills at 486⅝ for sixty days and 487¾ for demand. WHAT TRADE GOSSIPS WERE SAYING.

Interesting Bits of Information Picked Up on the Floor of the Exchange.

A good deal of the time yesterday was spent on the Board of Trade in standing around wondering what the fate of the Hatch bill would be. There seemed to be little inclination to trade in the face of the uncertainty of the future and the pits generally were dull. The signal service showed that the sleet-storm had covered the greater part of the country, and the probabilities were that almost any sort of weather might be expected during the next few days. The weather undoubtedly furnished most of the bull energy of the morning. The feeling after the close was steady. Puts on May wheat sold at 77⅜@77¾c and were 77⅞c late. Calls sold at 78⅛@78⅜c and were 78⅛ late. Puts on May corn sold at 47⅜@47½c and calls at 47⅝c.

Estimated receipts for today: Wheat, 160 cars; corn, 270 cars; oats, 145 cars; and 9,000 hogs.

It seemed to be the opinion of most of the traders that there was little chance for the Hatch bill to get through the House. Many of them are pinning their faith to this belief, while others are nervous and apprehensive. All are anxious for the agony to be over, as it is believed there can be no general trading until the bill is out of the way.

After the session was well advanced a number of brokers who buy corn for elevator concerns were withdrawn from the market, especially so far as No. 3 mixed was concerned. The theory was expressed that with the present cold weather corn will speedily grade, and elevator men expect it will come to them naturally, without the necessity of their buying it on the open market.

Ream was a seller of everything on the floor. Hately sold lard early, but bought it freely after the market broke. Schwartz-Dupee-McCormick sold more pork than any one else, possibly 20,000 brls. Floyd and the Anglo-American were other notable sellers. Cudahy was a buyer of pork. Armour was a buyer of pork. Baldwin, Farnum, Roloson, and the Chicago Packing company were on the buying side in lard.

With the exception of wheat the out-inspection of grain has been exceedingly small all the week. There was no outward movement of corn reported in the inspection sheet of yesterday or the day before, and only 22,547 bu for the three days immediately preceding. Last Monday's sheet indicated 12,000 bu oats sent out; since that day nothing has been reported. Of rye and barley the outward movement has been insignificant.

The belief is anything but universal among barley men that reserves of good barley are about exhausted. Said a dealer yesterday: "I believe there are still liberal quantities of good barley in the Northwest. Farmers and small holders are bullish through sympathy. They observe that the more desirable grades are commanding good prices, and this serves to make them hold back what they have. But they will get left. They will keep the barley until the season is well advanced and then all of them will want to sell at about the same time and more than enough will come forward."

The following diagrams indicate the principal fluctuations of May wheat, corn, oats, and pork Feb. 3. The stars show the closing prices of the previous day:

WORRYING ABOUT THE HATCH BILL.

Traders Disturbed and Business on the Board Seriously Interfered With.

The sleet-storm and reports from the winter wheat belt might have given the market a boom yesterday had it not been for the situation at Washington. Outsiders did not care to do anything and local traders spent a good deal of their time talking it over with each other. Cables were easy, both private and public, and outside markets were inclined to be rather easy. Second cables quoted an advance at Antwerp and Berlin, with other continental markets easier. Receipts in the Northwest were light, lighter than usual, because of the weather. There was no export demand for wheat, but millers were after the better lots of low grades at an advance over the previous day. May opened at 77⅞c, sold at 78c off to 77⅝c, up to 78c, and closed at 77⅞@78c, with July ½c discount. The volume of trade was light, everything considered. There was some buying during the morning that was supposed to be for the so-called clique, but it attracted little attention. Receipts at principal Western points were 321,400 bu, and at Eastern points 58,600 bu, a total of 380,000 bu. The shipments from Western points were 139,100 bu, and from Eastern points 147,800 bu, a total of 287,000 bu. The export clearances, wheat and flour, from the chief Atlantic ports aggregated 296,000 bu, and the local out-inspection was 247,000 bu. New York reported no engagements there for export. Sales in store and to go to store were made at 73⅛c for No. 2 red, 66⅛c for No. 2 hard, 73¾c for No. 2 spring, and 61@63c for No. 3 spring. Free on board sales were at 56c for No. 4 red winter, 63@66c for No. 3 do, 56@62c for No. 4 spring, and 63@72c for No. 3 do.

Receipts of corn were under the estimates, but the feeling at the opening was rather easy. Offerings on the part of some of the commission houses were quite liberal and scalpers were inclined to take the short side. Cables were easy and outside markets were also lower. The range for the morning was a narrow one, and at the close the price was just where it was when the bell tapped the previous day. In a general way it followed the action of wheat in narrower limits. There was not much of a demand for car lots of low grades to go to store, and the cash market was easy, while contract grades were in fair request and barely steady. Selling by Baldwin-Farnum and Bryant was the only conspicuous trading of the morning. Receipts at principal points aggregated 443,600 bu and the shipments were 388,800 bu. The export clearances from the chief Atlantic ports were 120,700 bu. There was no local out-inspection and nothing was reported taken at New York for export. Sales in store and to go to store were made at 44c for No. 2, No. 2 white, and No. 2 yellow, 40¾c for No. 3 white, 39¾c for No. 3, and 40@40¼c for No. 3 yellow. Free on board sales were at 38⅝@40c for No. 4 mixed and 40@40½c for No. 3 grades. Through billed sold at 37½@39c for No. 4 and 38½@41c for No. 3 and No. 3 yellow.

Oats leaned to weakness, yet there was little actual change in the situation, and final figures were just where they rested the day before. Buying orders at the opening placed May at 34⅞c and at 34¾@34⅞c together, which was a shade better. But Norman Ream came in and sold about 200,000 bu, Bestor taking 100,000 bu from him, and the month named receded to 34⅜c, barely touching the split below. The close was 34⅞c paid and asked, with February dull at 31⅜c. Speculative trade was larger than a recent average and usually well distributed among brokers. There was no special news, with No. 2 regular dull, while samples of white oats were in fair request. Free on board sales were at 30½@33c for No. 3 mixed, 32¾@34½c for do white, and 35@35½c for No. 2 white.

Rye recovered in part from the previous day's weakness, the price finally moving up 1c and closing at the outside. Offerings were light and there was a good demand for good samples, with 54c paid for No. 2 free on board and 52c to go to store. After being 56½c bid nearly all day May finally sold at 57c, with no business reported in near deliveries. There was only a small in and out movement. Barley was in about the same position as for a week past, with a ready outlet for desirable grades at full prices. Poor and common lots were slow, though feed barley would sell. Free on board transactions were at 44@67c for No. 3 and 38@48c for No. 4.

Receipts of hogs were light and the market at the yards was higher. There was a little better inquiry at the opening in the speculative market, but offerings were liberal, and a decline was started that caught a good many stop orders before it was stopped by purchases by influential traders. When it was seen that the leaders were buying the list at the lower range of prices there was a rush to take hold again, on the theory that the time was ripe for another big advance. The light stocks of lard for the world were also suggestive. The competition for the offerings carried prices to the top notch for the day, and the close was at nearly extreme figures for everything. Outside markets were steady and cables irregular, lard being 6d lower, while bacon was unchanged. May pork opened at $19.30, sold off to $19.00, up to $19.70, and closed at that, cash being $19.25@19.37½ for regular. May lard opened at $11.35, sold off to $11.22½, advanced to $11.70, and closed at $11.67½, cash being $11.25@11.70. May ribs opened at $9.92½, sold as low as $9.80, as high as $10.25, and closed at the outside, cash being the same as May. Cash sales included 300 tcs lard at $11.25, 25,000 lbs green shoulders, New York cut, at 9¼c, and 25,000 lbs short ribs at $9.95.

Not a sale was reported in the flour market. The feeling was barely steady, with traders holding off waiting for something to turn up.

Millstuffs remained scarce, and bran was again 25c higher, with sales at $14.00@14.75.

Flaxseed was more active, yet there was no noise, and prices little more than steady. There was fair buying in a quiet way with Seckel the leader on that side of the market, and perhaps 100,000 bu changed hands. May opened at $1.19¼ and sold chiefly at $1.20, closing ½c higher at that, with February inactive and nominally $1.16¼. No. 1 on track sold at $1.16¼@1.17 and closed ½c higher at $1.17. Receipts, 13 cars; shipments, 11,528 bu. Timothy was inquired for, but buyers and sellers were too far apart in their views to permit business. March was offered at $4.56 per cental, and $4.54 was bid. Sales by sample were at $4.30. Clover sold by sample at $14.15@14.85 per cental, indicating firmness, with March about $15.10 or $9.00@9.05 per bu.

GENERAL MARKETS.

Street Produce in Light Supply and Firm—General Merchandise Active.

A walk through South Water street yesterday would suggest a quiet market. And in fact that was true in the main, yet a fair business was accomplished as retail merchants were obliged to secure needed supplies in spite of severely cold weather and bad condition of the highways. The receipts of street produce were small, this being due chiefly to the low temperature and heavy snows in country districts. Prices averaged steady to firm, with butter a little slow at top quotations. Poultry sold at the highest figures of the winter with choice chickens touching 13c. This because of the scant offerings and good demand. Eggs were held at a slight advance and cheese was quotably firm in tone. Houses with orders to ship fruits and vegetables were afraid of frost, hence trade was dull at former quotations. In the wholesale markets for general merchandise fair activity was the rule, and some jobbers reported a largely increased January business over that of a year ago. Sugars were steady. Coffees and teas firm, drugs and chemicals in good demand, and oils fully steady, with best lard oil held at the highest prices in a long time.

The following quotations are for round lots of merchantable quality and usually from first hands:

BUTTER—Fancy separator goods, 28@29c; fine, 27½@28c; fair to good, 26½@27c; fancy dairies, Cooley's, 25@27c; medium to good, 24@25c; packing stock, fresh, 18@20c; roll, good to choice, 18@22c.

BUTTERINE—Extra fancy creamery, 23c per lb; fancy creamery, 21c; extra dairy, 19c; dairy, 16@17c, rolls and small pails ¼c additional.

BEANS—Hand-picked, navy, and pea beans, $2.00@2.10 per bu; hand picked mediums, $1.85@2.00; low grades, $1.00@1.50; California lima beans, $3.75@4.50 per 100 pounds.

BROOMCORN—Green-hurl, 4½@5½c per pound; red or yellow tipped hurl, 4@4½c; choice green carpet brush, 5¼@6¼c; green self-working, 4¼@5¼c; inside and covers, 4¼@5½c; crooked, 2@3¼c.

FEATURES OF TOMORROW'S TRIBUNE.

The women of America are waiting and watching for the crinoline. They may not be aware of what it looks like and will be interested in the experiences of a woman reporter, as detailed in tomorrow's Tribune.

Gen. Clarkson has written a spicy letter in which he charges that President Harrison was alone responsible for the Republican defeat in November. It will create a political sensation after its appearance in tomorrow's Tribune.

Jerome K. Jerome has a funny story about the heroes women like for their novels. He finds that soldiers are the favorites, and this prompts him to tell some queer tales on this subject which will be printed with illustrations in tomorrow's Tribune.

The Cinderella mystery will be dispelled in tomorrow's Tribune.

In the back streets of Paris the slick French thieves ply their trade. Some of their tricks will be illustrated in tomorrow's Tribune.

There are fashions for dogs as well as for their mistresses, and they are to be followed only at large expense. Some of the latest things in dog finery will be shown in tomorrow's Tribune.

Some men continue to wonder whether wives are a help or a hindrance so far as actual success in business or professional life is concerned. The subject will be discussed in tomorrow's Tribune.

Curious side lights on English manners of the last century are to be found in a novel which has been reviewed by Mrs. Abbott for tomorrow's Tribune.

In the days when might meant right a suitor at law could demand a trial of his case by the "wager of battel." This strange precedent was cited in a recent case in this city as told in tomorrow's Tribune.

Senator Morrill, the dean of the Senate, has given Gath an interesting interview, which will appear in tomorrow's Tribune.

In Beaconsfield's old residence, Hughenden Manor, "Dizzy Junior" now rules. A description of the famous old place will be given in tomorrow's Tribune.

Following up the series of articles on strange religious communities, the Trappist monastery near Dubuque, Ia., will be written up in tomorrow's Tribune.

The truth about Venice has at last been told. A returned traveler describes the City of Canals in breezy fashion. He found little poetry there, and was sorry he had his organ of smell with him. His story will be told in tomorrow's Tribune.

Smash the glass trust.

Uncle Horace Boies, if he is to be the Secretary of Agriculture, will see the propriety of starting out his whiskers at once.

Gov. Flower of New York has become indignant again and the tears of the recording angel have had to do some more blotting out.

Certain Canadian papers are calling Goldwin Smith a traitor because he advocates annexation. Canada is becoming crowded with such traitors.

If Hawaii were a part of this country the winter weather of the United States would show a warmer average. Let the movement for annexation go on.

The gentleman whom President Harrison has appointed to be successor to Justice Lamar is one to whom the late Andrew Jackson himself could not object.

As the only Democrat who has been elected Governor of Illinois in forty years and the only Democrat likely to hold the office for another forty years, Mr. Altgeld naturally attracts a great deal of attention as he travels about the country.

In simple justice to John Bull let it be said that if any other power sought to poach on his rightful preserves there would be a terrific fight and somebody would be hurt. Due consideration of the subject will convince John that Hawaii is not among his preserves.

There is nothing bigoted or illiberal about the members of the Missouri House of Representatives. They have declared their entire confidence in the course of Senator Cockrell in supporting the anti-option bill and of Senator Vest in opposing it. It must be a great comfort for a Missouri Senator to know that no matter how he votes he has the warm support of his constituents, who believe that their Senators are right, even when they disagree.

Gov. Pennoyer of Oregon is the gentleman who refused two years ago to meet and welcome President Harrison when he made his Pacific coast journey and bombastically announced that he could be found at Salem. A short time since Gov. Pennoyer refused to allow the use of some State artillery with which to celebrate the election of Mr. Cleveland, saying that he had no use for "a Wall street plutocrat." It is needless to say that Gov. Pennoyer is a Democrat in good standing.

The New York stock market opened strong and a number of securities advanced sharply. The market was affected unfavorably by considerable engagements of gold for export by today's steamers. The local market was extremely strong, especially for the street railway stocks. Sterling rates were a shade firmer. New York exchange sold at 10 cents discount.—There was not much activity in the grain and provision markets at Chicago yesterday. Traders were waiting for news from Washington. The cold wave advanced the price of wheat and provisions were higher on the belief that strong local traders were buying again. As compared with the latest prices of the previous day May wheat closed ½ cent higher, corn and oats steady, cash rye 1 cent higher, barley steady, flax ½ cent higher, May pork 45 cents higher, lard 47½ cents higher, and ribs 37½ cents higher.

The sensational stories set afloat regarding the wealth of the late Phillips Brooks are pronounced as entirely without foundation by one of his friends, who states that at the time of his death he had not sufficient income outside of his salary with which to support himself, though he lived in a very simple way. Besides the expense which social etiquette always entails upon one occupying an official position, the good Bishop was one of the most sympathetic and generous of men and was constantly engaged on errands of charity and relief. This is sufficient of itself to explain why he had not accumulated wealth, and will relieve his beautiful memory of any suspicion that he had used his extraordinary talent for the vulgar purpose of hoarding up money.

The briefs which have been sent to the Attorney-General by the lawyers of the Drainage Board set forth concisely and clearly the reasons why the Canal Commissioners should turn over to the trustees that part of the canal they have asked for. The arguments in these briefs are unanswerable. If the Attorney-General says he is not convinced by them it will be because he chooses to sin against the light. He should lose no time in notifying the Commissioners that there is nothing in the trumpery points raised by them, and that it is their duty to obey the law and let the Drainage Trustees set their contractors at work. The Commissioners are hopelessly in the wrong, and the sooner they abandon their obstructive policy the better for them.

JUSTICE LAMAR'S SUCCESSOR.

It was President Harrison's duty to make a nomination for a vacancy on the Supreme Court bench which occurred before his term expired. Consequently he has sent to the Senate the name of Judge Jackson of the United States Circuit Court as the successor of Justice Lamar, and though he has taken less time than usual to make a selection he has not fallen short of the high standard of qualifications which he has observed from the beginning in making judicial appointments.

The nomination of Judge Jackson, proper in itself, is also a politic one. Few question the ability of the appointee. The only fault-finders are the two Republican Congressmen from Tennessee, who say that Judge Jackson is a "State's rights Democrat" and will be anti-national in his views regarding questions which may come before the court. On the other hand President Harrison served in the Senate with the Judge. They have been personal friends for some years. The President has known what the Judge's decisions have been while on the Circuit bench. If he is satisfied Republicans need not be alarmed. On the money question he is unquestionably sound. He was elected to the Senate by anti-repudiation Republicans and Democrats.

The Fifth Judicial District, to which the new Justice will be assigned, embraces the States of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas. It is better in many respects that a man reared in the South should hold court there. Where it is possible vacancies in the Supreme Court should be filled by promotion. After looking the field over carefully the President could not find a more suitable man than Judge Jackson.

When the Appellate Court Judges were appointed President Harrison departed from all precedents by putting some Democrats on the bench. He has gone farther still in non-partisanship by appointing a Democrat to the Supreme Court when he could, had he seen fit, have given the position to a Republican. There may be some Republicans who will find fault with him for acting thus and who will say with truth that no Democratic President would have given any office to a political opponent. It is not likely that if one of the present Republican Judges were to die just before the expiration of Mr. Cleveland's term he would select a Republican as his successor. And yet President Harrison's course needs no defense. It has disarmed all opposition. Had he sent in the name of a Republican it is quite possible that there would have been a dispute over the confirmation. The Democrats would have fought against and might have defeated action, thus enabling Mr. Cleveland to make the appointment.

Instead of pursuing a course which might have led to unseemly wrangling and contention the President has risen superior to all party considerations and has endeavored to take the Supreme Court out of politics. That is one of the many acts which will make his administration notable for its excellence.

THE CRY FOR MUNICIPAL GAS.

A number of citizens of Chicago have endeavored this week to impress upon a Senate committee at Springfield the alleged importance of empowering this city to erect and maintain a municipal gas plant. This is part of a scheme which is admitted to include electric plants and telephone establishment, and understood to be intended to pave the way for other municipal ownership and operation. The aim and intent are to make the city government a paternal one, providing light, heat, and power, transportation, electric and telephonic communication, etc., thereby constituting it a vast machine with powers far greater than any ever wielded by Tammany, and giving opportunities for corruption on the biggest conceivable scale.

It was stated by one of the speakers that ten cities in the United States now own and operate gas works, but the fact that if allowance be made for difference in cost of fuel the cost to consumers is as great in each case and in some of them greater than in this city was quietly ignored. The visitors also seem to have no conception of the fact that gas gradually is dying out as an illuminant, giving way to electricity, so that the probabilities are the city would be saddled with a gas plant that would not pay expenses a few years hence. But they were boiling over with ideas concerning the cost of manufacturing gas and with the notion that their fad would be the means of an immense saving if adopted. One of them asserted that "fuel gas could be sold for 15 cents" per 1,000 feet, but did not say under what conditions. It is true that a good article of fuel gas has been manufactured not far from this city at a net cost of about 10½ cents per 1,000 feet, but it was done by use of slack and with country scale of pay for labor in addition to rural valuations of real estate. And that was the cost for the gas put into the holder, not including cost of distribution or what many companies have found to be an important loss by leakage and condensation, the former having amounted to 14 per cent in Philadelphia one year. The fuel gas thus produced is far from equal in value to natural gas, which some consumers here have recently alleged to be dear at 25 cents per 1,000 in comparison with coal. The gentleman admitted that it costs about 10 cents per 1,000 extra to make illuminating gas, but did not seem to be aware that the expense of distributing it would also be greater, if a smaller quantity were delivered in proportion to the area served by the pipes and mains of the company.

No doubt the gas companies are making a big profit out of the people of this city. They could well afford to supply at a less price the enormous quantities they serve each year to the people. But other things being equal the city would not make nearly so much out of it as the companies do. As a rule the men employed by the companies understand the work they are paid to perform and have an abiding interest in doing their duty by fairly close application through each of the number of hours that constitute a fair day of labor. It need not be said these conditions could not be secured under political domination in a big city like Chicago. That "both the city and consumers would be greatly benefited" by such an arrangement is much more easily said than assured. Probably the twenty thousand citizens who have signed a petition urging favorable consideration of the bills know nothing of the facts, and it is likely that very few of them are sufficiently prominent as users of gas or otherwise pecuniary contributors to the support of the city government to give their petition much weight. Certainly it should be of no value when used to back up statements in which the cost of gas distribution under economical management is terribly underrated and the claim made that a municipal gas service "would do away with a great deal of corruption."

THE SAVAGERY IN TEXAS.

The negro Henry Smith, who was burned to death after the most horrible tortures at Paris, Tex., had committed a most inhuman crime and deserved to die as swiftly as justice could bring about that richly merited penalty. He was an inhuman, bestial monster and his crime one of the most appalling on record. But even this statement of the case does not excuse or even palliate the inhuman crime perpetrated by a mob of people calling themselves civilized. Their crime was as fiendish as his and every man concerned in it deserves condign punishment. It was a display of barbarism that would have disgraced the Apaché Indians. It adds to its barbarity that it was not the result of a sudden mad and revengeful impulse. It was planned coolly and deliberately several days in advance of its execution and public announcement was made of it. Hundreds of white savages flocked into Paris to witness this revolting and fiendish display of cruelty, and every detail of the horror was carried out with deliberate, cold-blooded, and diabolical delight. Though forewarned of what was coming not a step was taken in the line of their duty by the officers of the law. The officials who are sworn to keep the peace and execute the law were either too timid to interfere or they were in collusion with the fiendish mob in a deed the description of which even makes one sick with horror.

Now that the deed is done, however, and the mob satiated with cruelty has dispersed, the Governor of Texas has instructed the County Attorney of Lamar County to prosecute every person engaged in the lynching and the Sheriff to make complaint against them and report the names of witnesses. In one of his dispatches the Governor says:

> In the lynching of the negro Smith in Paris yesterday the laws of the State have been openly defied. Every good citizen is interested in maintaining and enforcing the laws of the land. Either law and order or anarchy must prevail, and there can be no compromise or middle ground. Mob law in Texas must be stamped out. It is believed and expected that you will promptly, diligently, and persistently inquire into and ascertain who are the guilty parties and faithfully and fearlessly prosecute them. Any assistance needed will be promptly rendered.

Accompanying the Governor's dispatches is another from Paris which says: "There exists little serious belief that any real steps will be taken to bring people to the bar of the courts," and this undoubtedly reports the correct condition of public sentiment at that place. During the last two years similar orders have been issued by Southern Governors without result. No steps have been taken by the authorities to enforce them. No one has been prosecuted, no one punished, and the law remains impotent. Meanwhile these outrages continue without the shadow of justification, since there never has been a case on record in which a negro convicted of any offense in the courts of that section has escaped the extreme penalty of the law.

It goes without saying that the inhuman deed perpetrated by the people of Paris will have no effect on checking crime, but on the other hand will tend to increase it. It is tantamount to a public notification that the laws cannot be administered, and in any community where such a condition of justice exists it will invite fresh outrages. The desperate and criminal portion of the community will be encouraged and sooner or later will dominate the few law-abiding persons and chaos will ensue. But apart from this view of the subject if the Governor of Texas has any respect for the reputation of the State he will not rest until he has brought every man connected with it to justice and thus avoid the repetition of a similarly horrible crime. If the Sheriff of Lamar County cannot do his duty then let the Governor call out the whole militia force. If that organization cannot enforce his orders then let him call upon the United States and let Paris be placed under martial law until these white savages are punished and the operations of law are respected. They are not a whit superior to the brutal monster they so brutally dispatched. His savagery was even exceeded by theirs. Their crime reflects not alone upon the civilization of Texas but of the whole country. Let the civil law be enforced or promptly acknowledge it cannot be and let martial law take its place.

TRANSPORTATION THROUGH CANADA.

The message from President Harrison to Congress in regard to our Canadian trade relations is a timely one. Business conditions have undergone important changes since the treaty of Washington was concluded, and provisions which then were well adapted to the requirements of foreign trade require to be altered in common fairness to the people of the United States. The President holds that Art. 29 of the treaty has been abrogated, but that even if it were in force there is no law to execute it, and that "treaty or no treaty the question of sealing cars" containing merchandise imported through Canadian ports for the use of our citizens or passing from one place in the United States through Canada "is and always has been one to be settled by our laws according to our convenience and our interests as we may see them." The law authorizing the sealing of such cars in Canada does not apply to merchandise imported by our citizens from countries not contiguous, such as China and Japan, and carried through Canada for delivery to such owners. The law did not contemplate the passing of sealed cars to any place not "a port," nor their delivery to be opened without the supervision of a revenue officer, such a practice being inconsistent with the safety of the revenue. The Treasury regulations have given to these laws a construction and scope not contemplated by Congress.

The President says that a policy adapted to the new conditions growing in part out of the construction of the Canadian Pacific railroad should be declared and the business placed upon a basis more just to our people and the transportation companies. If we continue the policy of supervising rates upon the railroads of the United States and require that they be just and reasonable, we cannot, in fairness, at the same time give those unusual facilities for competition to Canadian roads that are free to pursue the practices as to cut rates and favored rates which we condemn and punish if practiced by our own railroads. The question thus opened by the President is a vexed one and might be found very difficult to settle, but it demands investigation as an act of justice to American carrying companies, which allege they find it impossible to operate in competition with Canadian lines without granting to large shippers rates they could not afford to make general. The inquiry is all the more needed, as it is claimed to be the settled policy of the Dominion Government to favor the lines under its control in their efforts to absorb undue quantities of traffic away from roads that are south of the border. It is hardly probable that these matters will be acted upon by the present Congress, but it is of so much importance that it may well command the attention of the incoming administration at an early day as one that vitally concerns the commercial and transportation interests of the people.

ENGLAND NOT CONCERNED ABOUT HAWAII.

When the news of the Hawaiian revolution and the proposed annexation of the islands to the United States first reached England many of the leading London papers announced that that would not do at all and that Great Britain must not permit anything of the kind. There has been no repetition of such offensive remarks. The reason probably is that they did not represent the sentiment of the country, and that these journals discovered speedily the English did not care much if Hawaii did fall into the hands of the United States.

Nor does the English Government seem to be in any haste to mix itself up in the matter. In reply to inquiries made in the House of Commons the Parliamentary Secretary of the Foreign Office said that no protest whatever had been made to the government at Washington regarding the Hawaiian Islands, and that the government as then advised did not intend to send any warships to Honolulu, believing "the lives and property of British subjects in Hawaii were safe under American protection." That was courteous and true.

The truth is that the English Government lacks a decent pretext for interfering. It has no special rights whatever in Hawaii, not even a shadow of a right. It has no treaties with Hawaii which require it to do anything. Nor has any English colony such an interest as would induce it to make a fuss as Canada did about the seal question. Hence it is not astonishing that the English people take things so quietly.

Nor is this a suitable time for the English Government to hunt for pretexts for interference. A row in the Pacific might stir up a row in Europe, which might result disastrously for England. Furthermore, there are matters for the present government to attend to at home. It is of much more importance for the Liberals to settle the Irish question than it is to get into a dispute with the United States.

These things ought to reassure those timid souls who have been saying that Hawaii must not be annexed because England would object and there would be a war with that country, which would be a very expensive one. The United States is too big now to listen patiently to such unmanly, cowardly reasons. If the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands at the request of their legitimate government must needs be followed by war with England then the war must be fought out no matter what the cost. It would be economy in the long run to do that rather than let England get the islands. From present appearances, however, there is no reason why any one should be worried. England seems to be taking the proposed annexation very easily.

COUNCILS AND STREET RAILROAD ORDINANCES.

The general law governing cities, villages, and towns says that a City Council or a Board of Trustees shall not grant the right of way on any street or alley to any steam, electric, cable, or horse railway except upon the petition of the owners of more than one-half the frontage of each mile. Two bills have been introduced in the Legislature to amend that provision by limiting the power the city authorities now enjoy of refusing to grant a franchise even though the company asking it has the necessary petition. These bills say that when the petition signed by more than half the owners of the frontage of each separate mile or fraction of a mile is presented the Council must grant the right of way "under reasonable and just conditions."

The object is, no doubt, to meet some special case, where a Council in the exercise of its discretion has refused to grant a franchise, for it is stated that—

> The construction of certain railroads is now being obstructed which are in process of construction, therefore an emergency exists, and this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

It may be that some street railroad company somewhere in the State has not been fairly treated and that property-owners may have been denied a road they have asked for and need. Nevertheless, it is not wise to amend a general law to meet some special case before becoming satisfied as to the effect of that change in cities where the law has not worked badly. If the law is amended the amendment will apply to Chicago as well as to the smallest town in the State. That being the case, it would be well to know who is to decide what are "reasonable and just conditions." Supposing the Aldermen are asked for a right of way and they insert in the ordinance provisions which they deem reasonable and just, such as a mileage rental, for instance, but which the company does not, who is to decide? The Council or the courts?

If the Council is to be the judge then the law might as well stand as it is. If the courts are to settle a dispute, then the Legislature ought to give them some specific directions as to what constitutes justice and reasonableness, for the words are rather vague. The lawyers of the General Assembly should look into the matter carefully before passing such a bill.

IT IS NOT A MIND CURE.

In the January number of the Arena Henry Wood asks the question: "Does bichloride of gold cure inebriety?" and answers it to his own satisfaction. He admits "there is overwhelming evidence that a large number of radical and positive cures have taken place" under the Keeley treatment for drunkenness and the opium habit, and that "many who for years have bravely battled in vain with their insatiable and intangible foe come forth after a few weeks' treatment free and reliant, with all craving for stimulants eradicated." He concedes that not much if any more than 5 per cent of the Keeley graduates have fallen back, and says that even if twice that proportion had lapsed the record would be a remarkable one. But he claims it has been proved both by expert testimony and the experience of the ages that "no drug or material remedy can cure drunkenness." As it is axiomatic that two truths cannot be in conflict, Mr. Wood argues that the only solution of the difficulty is to assume that the so-called gold cure is in reality "unconscious mind cure." He thinks the gold is only a fetich but a necessary one, since if Dr. Keeley had named his establishment a mind cure institute or a metaphysical sanitarium, leaving out the gold, he would have received such an amount of popular ridicule that few would have entered the institution. He says the cure through the voluntary worship of the gold fetich is greatly preferable to the slavish abstinence due to hypnotic influences as exerted by some other reformers.

Mr. Wood insists that Dr. Keeley's own strong personal faith and pure ideals, "which are winged with great power," are impressed upon the mentality of the patient, and that water might as well be used for hypodermic injection by him as the bichloride. That is as much as to say Dr. Keeley does hypnotize his patients, though not by the process used at Nancy. But it is unfortunate for this theory that more than ninety Keeley institutes are scattered over the United States, all of them curing dipsomaniacs, opium-eaters, and tobacco-users, who are slaves to those habits to the extent of being mental and physical wrecks. A thousand per week of drunkards and narcotic victims who never saw Dr. Keeley are cured simply by taking the medicines sent to those institutions by the case—prepared by his chemist and delivered to them by express.

If Dr. Keeley can cure these three diseases, caused by alcohol, opium, and tobacco, thousands of miles away, by some sort of theosophy or astral projection of his mind to each of nearly one hundred institutes and to thousands of men and women of whom he never heard and who never saw him, why can he not also cure by the same process other diseases, such as cholera, yellow fever, typhoid, diphtheria, pneumonia, consumption, or catarrh, or even a common cold? While admitting the fact that myriads of cures are being performed Mr. Wood gives a foolish reason therefor. Simply because he does not believe that alcoholism, morphinism, and narcotism can be cured by any medicine, and because some persons who wrote without the knowledge gained through recent researches asserted it could not be done, Mr. Wood refuses to admit what is to many thousands a patent and most welcome truth. But who cares whether he believes or not, so long as the solid fact of cure exists? His position is equally illogical and untenable with that of the lawyer who told a prisoner: "They cannot arrest you for that," and received the reply, "But they have arrested me, and I am in jail."

A complete answer to the theory of mind cure in these cases is furnished by the fact that several persons have been cured without knowing that they were under treatment. The very first person to whom the double chloride remedy was applied by Dr. Keeley was thus cured, and others have been entirely weaned from the tobacco habit when they supposed themselves to be under treatment for alcoholism only. In the face of such facts as these the mind cure theory is an explanation that does not explain. It must be classed with the now evidently absurd reasons given by some of the ancients for certain natural phenomena. The wonder is that an educated man should deem it wise to seek for obscure and occult reasons where plain and simple ones are open before him. The fact that the Keeley treatment works a physical cure by physical agency can no more be denied than that the cures are performed, which is admitted by the writer of the article in the Arena.

A dispatch states that the Harney Peak Tin Mining company has shut down its works and dismissed its employés for an indefinite period. This is the mine to encourage which a duty of four cents per pound was imposed on block tin, to go into effect July 1 of this year. Congress was told that the Black Hills contained tin deposits of great richness, which would furnish all of that metal the United States needed if a little tariff protection were given. The Temescal tin mines of California, of which so much was said at one time, have petered out, and the Black Hills ones seem to have followed suit. If there is as much tin there as has been claimed, and if as much money has been invested in the Harney Peak mines as has been alleged, it is a little odd that the company should stop operations at this moment when the heavy duty on tin will soon go into effect if not repealed. For several years the public has been regaled with stories about the richness of these Black Hills mines. It has been stated scores of times that "within a few weeks" or a "few months" their owners would begin turning out tin in great quantities. And now comes a shut-down for an indefinite period. The probabilities seem to be that while there is tin in the Black Hills no process has been discovered yet of handling profitably the intractable ores. If no tin is to be produced in the United States the sooner the provision for the imposition of a duty next July is repealed the better. From a protectionist point of view the duty is indefensible.

Massachusetts is working early and earnestly in the movement to secure good roads. It has created a State Highway Commission, which has submitted a report to the Legislature recommending the appointment of a permanent State commission for the care of the highways. The report estimates the economic losses from present generally bad conditions at five to ten million dollars per year, this not including indirect loss by damage to animals, vehicles, and harness. It discusses methods of road construction, and states that more than 600 miles of road have been photographed under the oversight of the commission. Twenty-three per cent of the towns in the State spend less than $1,000 per year each on their roads, and 50 per cent less than $2,000 each. The seventy-five towns which expend less than $1,000 each average $15 per mile per annum of expenditure. The ninety-three towns which spend from $1,000 to $2,000 average $26.70 per mile, and fifty-seven spend from $2,000 to $3,000 averaging $19.30 per mile. In all these towns the best that can be done is to struggle against a further depreciation of the highways. There are 257 towns, covering 82.5 per cent of the town area of the State, which are financially unable to keep their roads in good condition. There are twenty-two towns which spend each from $4,000 to $5,000 per year, averaging $94.30 per mile, and in these alone is it possible to secure reasonable improvement of the public highways. Four-fifths, and perhaps as much as 90 per cent, of the bad roads are directly connected with the manufacturing places.

The Michigan Legislature has repealed the law providing for the choice of Presidential Electors by Congressional districts, and the vote of the State will be cast as a unit in 1896. The senior Democratic organ thinks that the passage of the repealing measure by Republican votes is a "notable change of front" on the part of that party, which in 1880 repudiated the unit rule and ordered that delegates be elected by Congressional districts. The facts do not warrant the charge. The action of the Republican convention in 1880 applied to all the States. It did not lay down one rule for Michigan and another for the other States. If the Legislatures of Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee, New Jersey, Maryland, etc., had provided for the choice of Electors by districts the Republicans would not have been so unanimous in their opposition to the action of the accidental Democratic Legislature from Michigan. They saw that what was done in Michigan was done merely because the Democrats were convinced they could not carry the State in 1892, and they saw also that in other States which the Democrats felt they could carry no such law was to be adopted. The Michigan Legislature did not pass its district law to secure a closer representation of the people, but to gain an unfair partisan advantage. Hence the Republicans did not change front when they repealed that law.

Isaac Pusey Gray of Indiana seems to be having a heap of trouble at the Mills Building. It will be remembered that Isaac Pusey sold out to Cleveland last June on the understanding that he should have the nomination for Vice-President. It is needless to say the goods were not delivered. Upon the suggestion of Chairman Harrity, however, he went to Gray Gables in September, and upon the understanding that he should be appointed Postmaster-General agreed to "whoop her up" for Cleveland. Now he has been to the Mills Building only to be informed by the Prophet that the best he can do for him is to give him the place of Secretary of Agriculture. Isaac Pusey is mad and says he will not take it, but as it is either that or nothing he may conclude not to be left out in the cold and to accept the charge of the national garden seeds and entomology. It goes without saying that the Hill snappers are chuckling at the predicament in which the man who sold them out finds himself.

The State of Illinois, by the action of both Houses of its Legislature, the Common Council of the City of Chicago by the passage of resolutions, and the Board of Directors of the World's Fair by its memorial, have placed themselves on record asking Congress to rescind its action concerning the Sunday closing of the Fair, "leaving to the officers of the Exposition discretion in stopping machinery on that day or otherwise by proper means to indicate that the American people believe in the rational observance of Sunday." The action of these various bodies correctly represents the opinions of the people of Illinois in this important matter. Were the resolutions passed at Springfield yesterday submitted to popular vote they would be adopted by an overwhelming majority. The great State of Illinois is now on record, and as the party most directly interested and bearing the heaviest burden of responsibility for the outcome of the Fair, its declaration should carry great weight and engage the serious consideration of Congress in coming to its decision. The members from Illinois, in view of this record, will have no doubt how the majority of Illinoisans feel in this matter and should act accordingly.

SHALL WE ANNEX?

New York Recorder (Rep.): A midocean station in the Pacific is essential to our national and commercial independence.

Minneapolis Tribune (Rep.): Canada and Hawaii are sitting in Uncle Sam's barber shop impatiently waiting the call of "'nexed."

Philadelphia Inquirer: We want these islands. They can be made useful to us, and a great mistake will be made if the proffer is rejected.

Columbus Journal (Rep.): We do not want Hawaii, but, by jingo, if we do, we've got the ships, we've got the men, and we've got the money, too.

Nashville American (Dem.): The possession of the Hawaiian Islands would prove to be of the utmost importance to American commerce in the Pacific.

Boston Journal (Rep.): The mere suggestion that the United States may intervene in Hawaii causes the British lion to show his teeth. Let him busy himself with his Egyptian bone.

New York Recorder (Rep.): Every law of self-preservation for our interests in the Pacific, for the security, welfare, and well-being of the republic, demands that we should annex Hawaii.

Indianapolis Journal (Rep.): The whole American people, except a few mugwumps who are not Americans, speak with one voice to other nations regarding the Hawaiian matter, "Hands off!"

Boston Advertiser (Rep.): The United States will under no circumstances consent to the acquisition of Hawaii by any European power. But that can be prevented without annexation to this country.

Terre Haute Express (Rep.): Almost any political or economic reason which makes it desirable for other countries to occupy Pacific islands can be urged in favor of our taking Hawaii now or later.

Buffalo Express (Rep.): If the United States should annex Hawaii its 20,000 Chinese citizens would come under the provisions of the exclusion law. China has a better right to protest than England.

Kansas City Journal (Rep.): For the time being a protectorate would hold all that is needed, and should annexation be desirable as a final solution there would be abundant time for deliberation by both Houses on the subject.

Cleveland Plaindealer (Dem.): No matter what happens the islands cannot be permitted to pass under the domination of any European power. Self-interest and self-protection demand this course on the part of the United States.

Pittsburg Dispatch (Rep.): If this country were looking for a penal settlement there might be some excuse for annexing the Hawaiian Islands. As such a colony is not needed at present the acquisition would involve a deal more trouble than it is worth.

New York Press (Rep.): Hawaii will be of far more importance to the United States for the next fifty years than Alaska. Its control by the United States is absolutely requisite to the protection and development of the commerce of our great Pacific coast.

Binghamton Republican (Rep.): The Sandwich Islands are now ripe for somebody to grab, and some nation will probably grab them if we do not. The best way to save them from falling under European proprietorship is to annex them regardless of expense.

St. Louis Republic (Dem.): The so-called Hawaiian Commissioners represent no one but themselves and Claus Spreckels. It will be idiotic to give them recognition as the representatives of a foreign power when they are simply dependents of a California plutocrat.

Terre Haute Express (Rep.): The United States can confer a great blessing upon the Sandwich Islands by guaranteeing to them the mildest and most equitable government in the world, and can derive no benefit from them which will not be returned at least cent per cent.

New York Advertiser (Rep.): We cannot tolerate the suggestion from any quarter that in this affair the right to take part in the consideration of the questions involved may be exercised by any other people. It is a matter belonging solely to Hawaii and the United States.

Burlington Hawkeye (Rep.): The American interests in the Sandwich Islands are larger than those of any other country, and it may be necessary to take steps toward annexation to protect these interests or to prevent England or Germany from securing control. But will it pay?

Washington Post (Ind.): By annexing Hawaii we shall increase our own strength and promote our own prosperity; but by lifting her out of the turmoil and the peril of her present state, and by joining her safely to the march of human progress, we shall do a greater and a nobler thing.

Topeka Capital (Rep.): Uncle Sam must have Hawaii and President Harrison should lose no time in laying hold of that important island. Once Cleveland gets into the White House John Bull will have things his own way on the Pacific unless the present administration seizes time by the forelock.

Pittsburg Gazette (Rep.): No foreign nation will be permitted to gain political control of the islands. This has been the settled policy of the government for half a century, and it is not likely to be changed now, when the wisdom and necessity of maintaining and enforcing it are more apparent than ever.

Philadelphia Record (Dem.): The right of the Sandwich Islanders to dispose of their islands, and the right of the United States to accept the proffer of sovereignty cannot be disputed. The value of such a concession in the eyes of other nations is demonstrated by the active jealousy of European powers.

Philadelphia Press (Rep.): The United States cannot afford to have another English Bermuda in the Pacific, and the only sure way to prevent this is by annexation. Who would hesitate about annexing the Bermudas if they were offered, and the Hawaiian Islands are but the Bermudas of our Pacific coast.

Atlanta Journal (Dem.): We have territory enough already. Hawaii is over 2,000 miles from our western coast and has a population composed mainly of semi-savages and lepers. It might be a very good place for adventurous spirits, but it would add little or nothing to our material strength and the glory of our national name.

Richmond Times (Dem.): The true solution of the problem is to allow the Hawaiian Islands to establish their own government and take care of themselves, but to enter into a treaty or alliance with them which will fully protect our interests on the islands and guard them from the danger of falling into the hands of any other nation.

Utica Herald (Rep.): The Sandwich Islands are the natural way station and depot of traffic between the United States and the East. When appealed to by the natives to take possession of that station our government cannot permit itself to be deterred by England, any more than it could "permit itself to be hurried" by Italy on another occasion.

Philadelphia Inquirer (Rep.): Are the islands of sufficient value to make annexation desirable? That is the only question. If so, then annex. If not, then reject. Unquestionably, the islands are of importance politically and commercially. Therefore let us have them, always presuming that there is no treaty obligation in the path, and there does not seem to be.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat (Rep.): No European government will be allowed to extend its sway over that region. The plainest and most urgent considerations of political dignity and commercial interest demand that we assume control of the islands if they are unable or unwilling to take care of themselves. Hawaii must be governed by either Hawaiians or Americans.

New York Press (Rep.): The traditions of American diplomacy for half a century, the security of our Pacific coast, and the development of American commerce with the Orient demand the domination of Hawaii by the United States. We want no more impregnably fortified British outposts to menace our coasts. European control in Hawaii must be prevented. American domination in Hawaii must be assured.

Philadelphia Times (Dem.): It is by no means clear that the United States will have any interest in departing from the long-settled policy of non-intervention. We must defend these people, if need be, from foreign aggression and see that no other power shall interfere with their independence, but that is all that we have to do at present. The apple will fall into our lap when it is ripe and we do not want it prematurely.

Hartford Courant (Rep.): The one thing quite clear at this stage of the Hawaiian question is that we cannot afford to let the islands fall into the possession or under the control of any rival and unfriendly government—Great Britain or another. That would be a calamity only second to the loss of the Nicaragua Canal. It is simply not to be thought of. The political and business interests at stake are too momentous.

TODAY'S LITERATURE

"ETRUSCAN ROMAN REMAINS IN POPULAR TRADITION."

Mr. Charles Godfrey Leland's Researches Show That Pan and Bacchus Are Still Invoked Almost Under the Shadow of Ravenna's Ancient Fanes—What He Found in a Mountainous District of Northern Italy—More than Sorcery and Less than Faith.

"Etruscan Roman Remains in Popular Tradition," by Charles Godfrey Leland. Of the many Catholic Bishops "in partibus infidelium" the Pope himself remains the chief. That the Christianization of Italy was and is incomplete is a fact which admits of no dispute. Of the number and strength of heathen survivals at the very heart of Catholic Christendom we imagine, indeed, that few but specialists are aware. Who would suppose, for instance, that Pan and Bacchus are still invoked almost under the shadow of Ravenna's ancient fanes? Yet Mr. Leland's researches in the Tuscan Romagna have disclosed the existence of such a cult, while other vestiges of paganism which abound in the same region, if hardly so startling, are equally significant.

The Tuscan Romagna, which must not be confounded with La Romagna proper, is a mountainous district of Northern Italy that once formed part of the Papal dominions. Its inhabitants, who speak a rude form of the Bolognese dialect, have preserved a mass of traditions and observances apparently dating from a very remote antiquity. Among these people there exists a sort of primitive shamanism which, according to Mr. Leland, is something more than a sorcery and something less than a faith. This "old religion," as it is sometimes called, "consists in remains of a mythology of spirits, the principal of whom preserve the names and attributes of the old Etruscan gods, such as Tinia (or Jupiter), Faflon (or Bacchus), and Teramo (in Etruscan Turms), or Mercury. With these there exist in a few memories the most ancient Roman rural deities, such as Silvanus, Palus, Pan, and the Fauns. To all of these invocations or prayers in rude metrical form are still addressed or at least preserved, and there are many stories current regarding them." Ancestral spirits, too—known to the Romagnoli as Lasi or Lasii (the Roman Lares)—are still believed to concern themselves with the welfare of their descendants. Said a woman to Mr. Leland:

> When I was about 12 years of age something happened to me which I thought at the time was queer, but I have since regarded it in a very different light. Once I went with some relations into the country. One day I was in a dark forest, and wandered about picking leaves and wood flowers, and at last found myself in a very lonely place by a stream. I had a habit of talking aloud to myself, and I said: "O, I would like to bathe there"—the weather was very hot—when all at once there stood before me an old woman, who said: "Dear child, if thou wouldst like to bathe, undress without fear; I will protect thee!" There was something about her which pleased me greatly; a care, a kindness and sweetness which I cannot describe. And when I had bathed and dressed myself, she said: "Bimba, thou hast had many troubles, and many more are before thee, but be not afraid, for in thy old age thou wilt have good fortune." And so she disappeared, and I never saw her again, and I still await the good fortune which has not yet come to me. I believe she was indeed a Lasia, a spirit of some ancestor long dead, who wishes me well.

It would be too much to claim that polytheism exists in full force among the peasantry of this region. Catholicism has not expelled the ancient gods, but it has mediatized them as it were, so that they merely rank as benignant or maleficent spirits. In time of trouble the peasant has recourse first of all to the saints, but in case they prove refractory or incapable he resorts to the "old religion," just as a patient might call in an old-school practitioner when homeopathic treatment has proved ineffectual.

> A few years ago Count Angelo de Gubernatis informed Mr. Gladstone, in conversation, that there was actually among the Tuscan peasantry ten times as much heathenism as Catholicism. I repeated this remark to a woman whom I employed to collect folk-lore, and her reply was: "Certainly, there is ten times more faith in the old religion. For the peasants have recourse to the priests and the saints on great occasions, but they use magic all the time for everything." At another time when I expressed my astonishment that a certain girl who had grown up in the country was utterly ignorant of the name of a single spirit, and could recall nothing relating to witchcraft, she [the old woman] became scornful, and then excited, exclaiming: "And how should such a fool who is afraid of the priests and saints know anything? I call myself a Catholic—O, yes—and I wear a medal to prove it"—here she, in excitement, pulled from her bosom a saint's medal—"but I believe in none of it all. You know what I believe." "Yes, the old faith," I answered, by which I meant that strange, diluted old Etrusco-Roman sorcery, which is set forth in this book. Magic was her real religion.

The identification of these "spirits" with the old Roman or Etruscan deities has not always been fully established. Mr. Leland offers an ingenious conjecture with regard to the spirit Norcia, who puts the truffle-hunter's dog off the scent. The truffle-hunter thereupon addresses the animal thus:

> O dog, my dog, so dear to me,
> We're out of luck, I plainly see!
> No truffles hast thou found today,
> So then to Norcia go and pray;
> For if her favor we implore,
> She'll grant us truffles in such store,
> Fortune will smile for evermore.

Truffles, it seems, are locally called nails on account of their shape and size. Now the great Etruscan goddess Nortia had a temple at Vulsinii into the door of which the priest drove a nail every year to serve as a kind of register. Mr. Leland finds here a hint of consanguinity between the two Norcias. A much more complete identification is that of the spirit Carmenta with the Latin goddess of the same name. Carmenta was the goddess of childbirth, in which capacity she is still invoked.

The chapters on sorcery and divination will interest every student of ethnology. Mr. Leland was fortunate enough to collect numerous examples of magical formulæ with appropriate incantations, spells, and ceremonies, having for their object to attract love, to remove evil influences, or bring certain things to pass; to win in gaming, to evoke spirits, to insure good crops or safe return from travel, and to procure divination or enchantment in many curious ways—all being ancient, as is shown by allusions in classical writers to whom these spells were known. These charms and conjurations are jealously concealed from strangers. But Mr. Leland's necromantic lore enabled him to gain the confidence of the adepts.

> Many peasants in the Romagna Toscana are familiar with scores of these spells, but the skilled repetition and execution of them is in the hands of certain cryptic witches and a few obscure wizards who belong to mystic families in which the occult art is preserved from generation to generation under jealous fears of priests, cultured people, and all powers that be, just as gypsies and tramps distrust everything that is not "on the road" or all "honest folk," so that it is no exaggeration to declare that "travelers" have no confidence or faith in the truth of any man until they have caught him telling a few lies. So these travelers on the dark road of sorcery soon recognized in the holder of the Black Stone of the Voodoo, the pupil of the Red Indian medaolin and the gypsy rye (and one who had, moreover, his pockets always full of fetiches in little red bags)—a man who was worthy of confidence—none the less so since he was not ungenerous of pounds of coffee, small bottles of rum, cigars, and other minor requisites which greatly promote conviviality and mutual understanding in wisdom.

Of a hundred magical remedies described in the fourth century by Marcellus Burdigalensis, court physician to the Emperor Honorius, Mr. Leland found that about one-half were still recognized or practiced. As given by Marcellus they are often imperfect, many incantations being omitted, some of which Mr. Leland has been able to supply. These charms were very ancient, even in the time of Marcellus. Here is one. Marcellus says: "To those suffering from a colic. Let them fasten a live duck to their stomachs, thus the disease will pass from the man to the duck, and the duck will die." Precisely the same remedy is in vogue today. The patient must also say:

> Duck, duck, so may it be,
> That thou shalt take this pain from me!
> That the ill depart, and I
> Shall be cured, while thou must die;
> And may I never feel the pain
> Till thou shalt have thy life again.

The following spell at once recalls the cavern scene in "Macbeth":

> When you would do evil to any one, kill a black cat, skin it and rub the skin (by burning is, I suppose, understood) to a very, very fine powder, and when it is triturated finely to a powder, mix with it pulverized horse-scrapings, and pepper, and earth over which a toad has passed, and while taking this earth from under the toad say:
>
> "Toad, all poison from thy birth!
> Shed thy poison on this earth!
> Give me of thy poison some,
> That I may bear it to my home."
>
> Then put all together in a small bag, and at the time of mixing say:
>
> "Poisoned earth and powder fine
> To the powdered cat I join,
> 'Tis the worst and yet the best
> For my vengeance—for the rest
> Cat-skin powdered; naught is worse;
> With the scraping of a horse,
> Pepper next, to make it good,
> Earth well poisoned by a toad;
> 'Tis a mixture which, when done,
> Will rack and ruin many a one,
> And they shall know no good or peace,
> Nor shall their sufferings ever cease,
> Until they humbly come to me
> And beg for mercy on their knees,
> Which I may grant—if I should please."

Witchcraft, it seems, may be transmitted as a legacy—nay, it must be so transmitted before the witch can breathe her last. Mr. Leland was told of a priest in Florence who thus became a wizard in spite of himself:

> This priest was called in to confess an old woman who, saying that she had something, continually repeated: "I have no relations—to whom shall I leave it? to whom shall I leave it?" Then the priest said: "Leave it to me." Then the old woman at once gave him a small key to a certain box or casket and died. When the priest opened the casket he found in it a mouse. And so the spirit of witchcraft came on him. And when it comes, if the witch touches any person he or she will be bewitched and waste away or die. But this priest, being a good man, would not touch or embrace people at such times; but, going into the country, touched trees, or grain, or maize, and whatever he touched dried up. So he did as little harm as possible; but for all this he could not help being a wizard.

Mr. Leland's book, it should be observed, is not intended for youths and maidens. Nor is it written throughout in the best taste. The author obtrudes his own personality too much; he indulges in too many comments, digressions, cheap witticisms. His anti-clerical feeling amounts to monomania. Much that passes for religion, he claims, is merely another form of sorcery, and is no more entitled to respect than the rites it has superseded. He supports this claim by various anecdotes, of which the following is one:

> In old times those souls of men who had slain many victims were invoked above all others, the belief being that they carried into the other world the audacious power which they had won by blood. This foul and atrocious worship of dead criminals is today in full action in Sicily with the cordial sanction of the priesthood, as the reader may learn in detail from a chapter in the "Biblioteca delle Tradizioni popolari Siciliano," edited by Giuseppe Pitrè, Vol. XVII., Palermo, 1889. In it we are told that when murderers and other atrocious criminals have been beheaded, if they do not confess and receive absolution before death, they are believed to become a specially favored kind of saints, who, if invoked when any one is in danger of being robbed and slain, come down from heaven and aid the victim. And this is carried so far that there is actually a "church of the souls of beheaded bodies" in Palermo, with many pictures of the holy miracles wrought by the sainted murderers. . . . What this really is is devil worship. These saints have been the scum of Sicilian brigandage, outrage, robbery, and wickedness—incarnate fiends; and now, because they went through a mere form of words and were sprinkled and oiled, they are adored like God, are prayed to, and their relations are proud of them.

Here is another, which originated nearer home:

> In the year 1859, when Theodore Parker was extremely obnoxious to the rigidly orthodox of all sects, a number of very Presbyterian pious ladies held meetings for the purpose of praying that he might be taken away from this life; and his death, soon after, was attributed to the fervency of their zeal. No secret was made of this—it was boasted of in religious newspapers. I was at the time editor of Vanity Fair in New York. A lady wrote a poem gracefully satirizing this Voodoo work, and I drew for it an illustration, which I published. I do not see wherein this piously praying a man to death differs from the very wickedest witchcraft described in this book.

Some of the curious and interesting illustrations are taken from Etruscan mirrors or vases, while others are the work of the author himself. In the absence of any statement from Mr. Leland we infer that the latter are purely ideal. (New York: Imported by Charles Scribner's Sons. $5.50.)

Brief Mention.

"The Wit and Wisdom of Charles Lamb, with Anecdotes by His Contemporaries, Selected and Arranged by Ernest Dressel North." To this attractive title it is only necessary to add that the book is one of the Putnams' "Knickerbocker Nuggets."

"Perchance to Dream, and Other Stories," by Margaret Sutton Briscoe. This is Miss Briscoe's first book, but she is not unknown to the public, for several of her stories have appeared in high-class periodicals. Miss Briscoe's work is unusually strong, and her range is remarkable. The initial story is perhaps the least characteristic in the collection. Diabolical influence, hypnotism, and whisky are the ingredients of this uncanny compound. Each of the evil spirits, however, is finally expelled, and the story fitly ends with "a strange smile." The union of the dove and the serpent in the youthful hero of "A Chip" will doubtless tickle the reader's fancy. The deathbed scene of "The Gentleman in Plush" is touching, with its picture of the boyish hand holding guard over the dying lips that might unwittingly disclose their long-kept secret. From stories like "Ned" and "Die, Which I Won't"—masterly sketches, at once humorous and pathetic—we infer that Miss Briscoe is a Southern writer. "A Tea Leaf" reveals a broader humor, but the treatment is delicate. We should like to ask Miss Briscoe how such a phrase as "rather delicious" (p. 86) can possibly be appropriate? Rather implies a qualified praise which is quite out of keeping with so high-pitched a term as delicious. (New York: Dodd, Mead & Co.)

"Picturesque Chicago and Guide to the World's Fair" is sufficiently described by its title. It contains some six-score pictures of public buildings, monuments, and other objects of interest, and is published by R. H. Woodward & Co. of Baltimore.

"The Visible Universe" is a series of chapters by J. Ellard Gore, F. R. A. S., on the origin and construction of the heavens, and is published by Macmillan & Co. The book is one of the most readable works on astronomy that have been issued in a long time and is composed in large part of fresh material, though, of course, it contains some of the straw that has been thrashed almost to dust by previous authors. The first chapter presents an excellent sketch of the nebular hypothesis, with a statement of the principal points of difference between the views of Kant and Laplace, and modifications of both which have been suggested by recent writers. It gives deserved prominence to the work of Jacob Ennis, a man recently dead, who is entitled to rank as an authority, although his name is known to very few. Succeeding chapters tell the story of the evolution of sun, and stars, and planets, as read by philosophers of the present day, and bring out the geological difficulty which the late Dr. James Croll could see no way of explaining except by supposing that the masses colliding to cause high stellar temperatures had originally a rapid movement over and above that which was due to the force of mutual attraction. The fuel of the sun, the constitution of matter, and the light thrown on the subject by the spectroscope, with a discussion of Lockyer's meteoric hypothesis, a glance at star streams, and a statement of much that is known in regard to the sun's motion in space, all furnish interesting reading, and while the author is fully master of his subject he does not insist on telling all that he knows about it. The illustrations are well chosen and sufficiently numerous, while they leave little to be desired on the score of distinctness.

"Aunt Liefy," by Annie Trumbull Slosson. Aunt Liefy describes in her own words how she was once mistaken for the chief-mourner at a funeral, and how the unaccustomed tenderness she then experienced was the means of transforming her entire character. From "Miss Staples," whom nobody loved and everybody respected, she became "Aunt Liefy," the dearest and happiest old maid in Hilton. A sweet and characteristic little story. (New York: Anson D. F. Randolph & Co.)

"In Gold and Silver," by George H. Ellwanger. "The Golden Rug of Kermanshah" relates the adventures of a connoisseur in search of a rug of marvelous beauty, which is described as "too tender and precious for even a houri to repose upon," and of which "the varied hues vibrated through every chord and octave of the colorific scale, like the consonance of a harp or the carol of a bird." In the other papers the author writes of sport with rod and gun amid the woods and along the streams of his native land. Unfortunately his style, always devoid of simplicity, is often marred by a silly pomposity that moves the reader to scorn. It is because the author finds nothing to say that he has recourse to these dancing-master poses and schoolgirl affectations. The pictures, on the other hand, by A. B. Wenzell, W. C. Greenough, and W. Hamilton Gibson will please the most fastidious. (New York: D. Appleton & Co.)

Messrs. Dodd, Mead & Co. have published a handsome illustrated edition, in four volumes, of Charles Reade's famous novel, "The Cloister and the Hearth." The volumes are issued at $7 the set.

MICHELANGELO'S LIFE

JOHN ADDINGTON SYMONDS' NOTABLE CONTRIBUTION TO LETTERS.

Many Disputed Questions Cleared Up—A Somewhat Different View of the Great Sculptor's Temperament from the One Usually Presented—Three Famous Incidents in His Career and How They Are Treated—Some of the Merits and Some of the Faults of the Book.

These sumptuous volumes have some of the distinction in their outward appearance that Mr. Symonds finds so characteristic of their subject. They add to one's self-respect by successfully challenging it as examples of good bookmaking. They are satisfactory to eye and touch, besides reminding one of the existence of tastes not often enough gratified to be very exacting. The first thought likely to suggest itself after these feelings have been quieted down is: What need does a new life of Michelangelo meet?

And this brings to light one of the great merits of the book. The preface is a model. It is not the conventional greeting to the reader where literary weather is discussed in dull platitude nor the entertaining essay only mechanically associated with the rest of the book in bonds of ink and paper. It is a careful setting forth of the purpose and methods of the book, and supplies in sixteen pages information that an exasperated reader is too often compelled to pick out from the biographies themselves—to-wit: the points in which they differ from others and the possible grounds of their superiority. Mr. Symonds' preface provides the standards by which his book must be judged. Mr. Symonds has been allowed by special favor of the Italian Government to examine the Buonarroti archives, consisting of authentic contracts, letters, poems, and memoranda, mostly in Michelangelo's handwriting, of copies made by his grand-nephew, Michelangelo the younger, and autograph letters from all sorts of people to the sculptor. Until 1858 these papers were the private property of the family, rarely seen, and only in a few instances finding their way into the collections or inferences of biographers. Mr. Symonds has used them to clear up, as far as they may, certain disputed questions of Michelangelo's personal history. He makes them also contribute to a somewhat different view of the sculptor's temperament from the one usually presented.

There is one book which provokes comparison with the work before us. We refer, of course, to the Life by Hermann Grimm, published in 1860. Mr. Symonds gives it merited recognition as offering in its fifth edition, that of 1875, a standard authority. He also indicates the line in which he hopes to establish the claim of his own work by pointing out that against the strength of Grimm's treatment in introducing a critical and scientific method of dealing with his material, and in using documents freely, must be set off its weakness in giving disproportionate attention to Italian dynasties, wars, and revolutions. Michelangelo, according to Mr. Symonds, is neither an illustration nor an appendix to general Italian history, but a chapter by himself. Mr. Symonds has brought to bear his technical knowledge in art and history without being hampered by it. He has desired to make his hero tell his own story by letters and memoranda, and he has made liberal use of drawings, charts, and portraits where they would supplement or take the place of detailed explanation. The result is not without faults, as is almost inevitable where an attempt is made to outdo so many forms of excellence along their special lines. The reader has an uneasy sense that the results of what must be technical art criticism are not always scientifically obtained. A general obligingness on the part of the author to leave such questions to experts does not relieve him from responsibility in stating what the reader must accept as facts. The plain man cannot compare authorities, weigh evidence, or always see the bearing of footnotes, so that beyond a certain point he is teased instead of helped by their presence.

Again, the author's desire to rescue Michelangelo's character from the exaggeration in some respects and the shreds and patches in others to which it had been reduced in the process of portraiture, has led him to take a too persistently defensive attitude on certain points. His tone loses the impersonal calm of the scientific biographer and takes on the apprehension of the hero worshiper or the insistence of an advocate. This, perhaps, is excusable as long as all Mr. Symonds' readers must be supposed to be possessed by the prejudices he wishes to remove, but the unsophisticated reader is almost always puzzled by being held responsible for other notions than those with which his author supplies him. Finally Mr. Symonds quotes too much from himself in other books devoted to the same general interests as this biography. Not that Mr. Symonds is not always interesting and suggestive, but there is a distinct break made in the style of the references he uses to himself in an earlier stage of literary existence.

In the account of a life so lacking in serenity that one almost entertains suspicions of a discontinuous identity it seems a pity to introduce any new or unnecessary element of unrest. On one point Mr. Symonds has neglected a tempting opportunity for discussion. He has passed by the question of Michelangelo's insanity with only incidental treatment. He knows of Lombroso's book, he is even alive to the deductions sure to be drawn from it and the thoroughgoing zeal of the disciples who are so eager to outstrip their master. But with admirable self-control he has put away from him the desire to silence professional quibblers and has told the facts almost as if there were no Lombroso who had declared genius insanity and Michelangelo insane. And for Mr. Symonds' work in giving his reasons a strong impression of the personality of the great artist too much can hardly be said. The man is there, although we cannot always understand him, indeed, perhaps, all the more that everywhere there is something that we cannot understand. This, in the last resort, vindicates the humanity of most men. Mr. Symonds manages the revelations of the Buonarroti archives by simply not managing at all, so as to secure the inviolability of Michelangelo's spiritual privacy. Much may be learned of his psychology; the man's soul is as remote as when he walked among men, misunderstood by his own father and brothers, and longing for any comprehension that need not start from himself. The peculiar merit of Mr. Symonds' method is that we feel this acutely. We know, to vary a phrase of Mr. Lowell's, that all our flattening of our noses against the windows of the living has not enabled us to intrude on the awful seclusion of the dead. And in proportion as our organization is above that of turkey buzzards we rejoice in our own failure.

Three episodes of Michelangelo's life have a compelling interest on even superficial acquaintance; the tomb of Julius II., the painting of the Sistine vault, and the friendship with Vittoria Colonna. In the first we see him engaged on a great task congenial to his powers and promising such accomplishment as was worthy of his genius. But this natural hope was never realized. "The tragedy of the tomb" is a long one, and dreary with sordid episodes in which Michelangelo played many parts. From first to last it is the story of a genius in his struggle for self-preservation. Concession after concession was forced from him to save even the shadow of his original conception. In the end the work was hardly a hint of what he had hoped for. The story of the painting of the Sistine vault has the pathetic success which sometimes attaches to what men do with their whole heart, though their heart is not in it. The Sistine frescoes are the great paintings of a man who painted as well as he could when he felt that he ought to be modeling. Mr. Symonds carries us into the heart of the artistic life of the day, its factions, its dependence on patronage, its rivalries and jealousies. He shows us Michelangelo with big faults, and, worse still, with little ones; but Michelangelo still great and still interesting.

Vittoria Colonna will disappoint expectations founded on romantic and detailed misinformation, as well as on the vague conjecture of references to her in calendars of famous women. She plays throughout Mr. Symonds' account the part of a great lady and religious devotee, instead of an intense soul occupied with platonics. Her figure gains in intelligent dignity what it loses in cheap sensation, but there is no denying that even the most serious reader feels that he has missed a story. When all has been considered that Mr. Symonds thinks worthy of consideration in the artist's relations to Vittoria his isolation appears only more complete instead of less so.

In all these episodes Michelangelo's character is shown to be that of a "peculiar and not altogether healthy nervous temperament" rather than that current during his own life, refuted by his biographers, Condivi and Vasari, but prevalent still to a greater or less extent, of a man of "passionate violence of temper (terribilità), expressing itself in hasty acts and words; extreme suspiciousness and irritability; solitary habits, amounting to misanthropy or churlishness; eccentricity and melancholy bordering on madness; personal timidity and avarice; a want of generosity in imparting knowledge, and an undue partiality for handsome persons of his own sex." For the reader of special interests in art and literature it is also gratifying to have genius saved from an ex post facto insane asylum without too much publicity; but, indeed, the book is full of interesting matter. The relation of Michelangelo's work as an architect to other manifestations of his genius is carefully worked out. St. Peter's and San Lorenzo place Michelangelo among architects in much the same way that the Sistine paintings place him among painters. The extraordinary sonnets with which many critics have believed that he, like Shakspeare, unlocked his heart, Mr. Symonds thinks supply only a chart for a convolution or two of his artist's brain. Their inspiration is not a beloved woman, but ideal beauty, and show him, not so much a suffering man as an indomitable artist. And this is the conclusion of the whole matter according to Mr. Symonds. He says:

> Michelangelo, then, as Carlyle might have put it, is the Hero as artist. When we have admitted this all dregs and sediments of the analytical alembic sink to the bottom, leaving a clear crystalline elixir of the spirit. About the quality of his genius opinions may, will, and ought to differ. It is so pronounced, so peculiar, so repulsive to one man, so attractive to another, that, like his own dread statue of Lorenzo de Medici "it fascinates and is intolerable." There are few, I take it, who can feel at home with him in all the length and breadth and dark depths of the regions that he traversed. The world of thoughts and poems in which he lived habitually is too arid, like an extinct planet, tenanted by mighty elemental beings with little human left to them, but visionary Titan-shapes, too vast and void for common minds to dwell in pleasantly. The sweetness that emerges from his strength, the beauty which blooms rarely, strangely, in unhomely wise upon the awful crowd of his conceptions are only to be apprehended by some innate sympathy or by long incubation of the brooding intellect. It is probable therefore that the deathless artist through long centuries of glory will abide as solitary as the simple old man did in his poorhouse at Rome. But no one, not the dullest, not the weakest, not the laziest and lustfullest, not the most indifferent to ideas, or the most tolerant of platitudes and paradoxes, can pass him by without being arrested, quickened, stung, purged, stirred to uneasy self-examination by so strong a personality expressed in prophecies of art so pungent. "Life on the Circuit with Lincoln," by Henry C. Whitney.

"Life on the Circuit with Lincoln" is a modest title for a book which deals also with Lincoln's genealogy, his religious beliefs, his married life, his earlier love affair with Ann Rutledge, the emancipation proclamation, and which is, in short, a disconnected life of Mr. Lincoln from the cradle to the grave. The author's acquaintance with Lincoln began in 1854 at the time of the admission of the former to the bar. They practiced law in the same circuit until 1861 and belonged to the same political party. Mr. Whitney worked zealously to further Mr. Lincoln's political fortunes and was made a paymaster in the army soon after the President's inauguration. He was intimate with Mr. Lincoln after a fashion—not, indeed, as near to him as Herndon and one or two others—but sufficiently intimate to be intrusted with small political secrets. Mr. Lincoln unbosomed himself fully to no one at any time.

There is very little which is new in Mr. Whitney's large book. Most of the facts in it are found in the works of earlier writers. The moralizing, which is not always of the highest order, is Mr. Whitney's own. Had the book dealt solely with Lincoln's "Life on the Circuit" it would have been a small one. While the author was thrown into close relations with Mr. Lincoln, being sometimes employed on the same side and sometimes retained against him, he seems to be unable to add anything of consequence to what has already been said about Lincoln as a lawyer. The truth is that Lincoln did not make as much of an impression on those who knew him prior to 1860 as is sometimes supposed. Few had any thought until he was almost at the threshold of the Presidency that a great future awaited Lincoln. No one played Boswell to his Johnson, for no one imagined that his utterances would prove a source of interest to posterity.

Mr. Whitney was at the Bloomington convention of 1856. According to him, when Lawrence County was called for delegates Uncle Jesse Dubois, who had come from that county, failed to respond. He had looked in and seen some Abolitionists in the convention and was doubtful about the advisability of training with such fellows. Subsequently he plucked up courage, took his seat, and was nominated for State Auditor. After Mr. Lincoln had finished the speech which he made at the meeting Dubois said to Whitney: "That is the greatest speech ever made in Illinois. It puts Lincoln on the track for the Presidency." That evening Mr. Whitney repeated this remark to Lincoln, and he believes that it was then that the latter first thought of the Presidency. At any rate, the idea came to him, thinks Mr. Whitney, about a month later when Lincoln was one of the persons voted for for Vice-President at the convention which nominated Fremont. Mr. Whitney says he handed Mr. Lincoln the paper containing the account of the balloting, so that at whichever time Mr. Lincoln first thought of himself as a Presidential possibility "I was the John the Baptist who was the forerunner of the great news."

In spite of its occasional shortcomings Mr. Whitney's book is, like most of those which relate to Mr. Lincoln, an interesting one. The subject will attract, though the style may not always do so. The book has a number of fairly good illustrations, some of them representing scenes near New Salem. (Boston: Estes & Lauriat.)

Literary Notes.

Count Leo Tolstoi is writing a book on Japan, its people, and its religions.

The gross value of Tennyson's personal estate is about $286,000. The poet also died "seized of" some valuable realty.

"The Good Wine at the Feast's End," a sermon by the late Bishop Brooks, will shortly be published by E. P. Dutton & Co.

The last volume of that useful work, Chambers' Encyclopædia, will be published this month by the J. B. Lippincott company.

Belford's Magazine for the current month contains a charming little poem—"In Thomson's Woods" is its name—from the pen of Mr. Forrest Crissey of Geneva, Ill.

"Plato and Platonism," a new volume from the pen of Mr. Walter Pater, author of "Marius the Epicurean," is announced for publication by Macmillan & Co.

The quarterly number of the Exposition Graphic just issued affords a clear idea of the wonderful progress which the World's Fair buildings have made. Some of the illustrations are excellent.

When Darwin was a boy his father once told him: "You care for nothing but shooting, dogs, and ratcatching, and you will be a disgrace to yourself and your family." Bad boys take warning.

A noteworthy paper by Mr. William Morton Payne in the new number of the Dial has for its subject "Bygmester Solness," the latest drama of Henrik Ibsen. The drama has only just been published and has not yet been translated from the Danish. Mr. Payne's article, however, contains several extracts from the play, translated by the reviewer himself. Mr. Payne thinks that, "taken altogether, the play is a curiously interesting piece of work, although we are often perplexed to discern the author's purpose." That remark, by the way, may be applied to nearly all the dramatic writings of Ibsen; but on a second or third reading the difficulties frequently disappear. Ibsen is without doubt one of the most notable and significant figures in the literature of our century. The cheap sneers at Ibsen which many writers indulge in merely serve to betray the carelessness, prejudice, or incompetence of the would-be critic. Mr. Payne's timely and scholarly review is a feather in Chicago's cap.

The Quarry-Owners and the Canal.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In your editorial of Feb. 1 relating to the opposition to surrender temporarily to Drainage Trustees that portion of the canal between Bridgeport and Summit you say: "It is promoted by some quarrymen of the Joliet district and by the obstructives of the valley towns, who are opposed to all progress in the matter of the drainage channel unless it secures for them a large bonus." What aims the obstructives of the valley towns have in view I know not. I know what some of the quarry-owners expect, and it is this: that the Canal Commissioners will use their best endeavors to have the Drainage Trustees guarantee as follows: To so construct their drainage channel at the "Sag," the point where the deflection of said channel will occur, that the present canal will always receive enough water (without the aid of pumps) to maintain its present usefulness.

I think this is but a fair proposition, considering the great interests at stake. This stone industry represents several millions of dollars. It pays annually from $50,000 to $100,000 for tolls; in fact, supports the canal, which, by the way, is also the connecting link between the Mississippi River and the lakes. You destroy this union at once so far as navigation is concerned by permitting the Board of Drainage Trustees to use it to the "Sag" and then construct the orifice of their ditch at that point so that it would wipe out the usefulness of the canal for all time by practically leaving it dry. THE TRIBUNE, no doubt, will see the injustice done the quarry-owners in assuming that they are imbued with any desire to impede this much-desired and needed drainage improvement. There is no bonus wanted. It is simply a matter of practical business and fair play.

F. Marion Crawford's New Novel,

DON ORSINO:

A Sequel to "Saracinesca" and "Sant' Ilario."

CLOTH EXTRA, ONE DOLLAR.

The three Novels comprising the "SARACINESCA SERIES" may now be had in uniform binding in box; price, $3.00.

SARACINESCA. SANT' ILARIO. DON ORSINO.

"HIS GREATEST ACHIEVEMENT IS THE GROUP OF THREE NOVELS ON MODERN ITALY. THE THREE BOOKS PRESENT A WONDERFULLY VIVID PICTURE OF ITALIAN SOCIAL LIFE. THE SARACINESCA FAMILY IS A TYPE OF THE OLD FEUDAL NOBILITY, ADMIRABLE IN ITS BREEDING, CONSERVATIVE IN ITS IDEALS, AND ESPECIALLY FINE IN ITS FAMILY AFFECTION AND PRIDE. . . .

"THE PLOT OF THE STORY (DON ORSINO) IS ONE OF THE VERY BEST THAT THE AUTHOR HAS CONSTRUCTED. THE MYSTERY OF MARIA CONSUELO'S BIRTH AND HER RELATION TO SPICCA IS MOST INGENIOUS—CONTINUALLY SUGGESTING A FALSE TRAIL TO THE READER AND IN THE END SURPRISING AND SATISFYING HIM WITH ITS ADEQUATENESS.

*"WHEN YOU COMBINE ALL THESE THINGS WITH A WONDERFUL BEAUTY OF DICTION AND FACILITY IN EXPRESSION, YOU HAVE THAT VERY DIFFICULT ACHIEVEMENT—*A THOROUGHLY GOOD MODERN ROMANCE."—Life.

"In this volume Rev. H. N. Hutchinson throws some new light on the reptiles which used to populate the waste places of the earth before the flood. He also has a good deal to say in regard to ancient monsters. . . . Take it altogether, 'Extinct Monsters' proves extremely interesting reading."—New York Sun.

From Dusk to Dawn.

By Katharine P. Woods, author of "Metzerott, Shoemaker." 12mo. Cloth, $1.25.

"Rarely, indeed, does an author attain to such wide prominence in so short a time as did Katharine Pearson Woods on the appearance of her somewhat socialistic novel called 'Metzerott, Shoemaker.' That story, however, with all its absorbing power, gave only the faintest evidence of the real strength that has hitherto remained latent, but which is now so wonderfully developed in her latest story, 'From Dusk to Dawn.'"—Baltimore American.

"A thoughtful, acute, observant novel, designed to illustrate the nature and effects of hypnotic influences. The whole treatment is stimulative of thought in comparatively new channels."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

"Furnishes the reader with plenty of attractions in the way of humor and ingenuity, but it is also a story with a purpose."—Hartford Post.

The Naturalist on the River Amazons.

By Henry Walter Bates, F. R. S., late Assistant Secretary of the Royal Geographical Society. With a Memoir of the Author by Edward Clodd. With Map and numerous Illustrations. 8vo. Cloth, $5.00.

In company with Alfred Russel Wallace the author, in 1848, began an exploration of the Amazons region for the collection of objects of natural history. This volume records the adventures of an eleven-years' sojourn, during which specimens of nearly fifteen thousand species were obtained; and includes descriptions of habits of animals, sketches of Brazilians and Indian life, and various aspects of nature under the equator.

Rousseau's Emile;

Or, TREATISE ON EDUCATION. Abridged, translated, and annotated by WILLIAM H. PAYN, Ph. D., LL. D., Chancellor of the University of Nashville, and President of the Peabody Normal College. The twentieth volume in the International Educational Series, 12mo. Cloth, $1.50.

Rousseau's "Emile" may be regarded as the source of social, political, and educational ideas that advocate a return to nature. It is the most radical work of the kind ever written, and not only gave the primary impulse to Pestalozzi and Basedow, but set on fire all Europe, and probably did more than any other book to bring about the French Revolution. No book is more helpful than this to provoke original thought in regard to the grounds of educational theories.

Sound and Music.

By the Rev. J. A. Zahm, C. S. C., Professor of Physics in the University of Notre Dame. With 195 Illustrations. $3.50.

"I was much pleased, as you know, with the work when I read it in MS., but its worth has impressed me more in its present garb. To my mind it is by far the most accurate and complete of books on modern acoustics and on the acoustic bases of harmony. I feel sure that a work so full of information, given in such pleasing style, must have a success comporting with its merits and the conscientious work expended on it."—PROF. ALFRED M. MAYER of Stevens Institute of Technology, in a Letter to the Author.

"It is an extraordinary book by one of our foremost workers in science. . . . The volume is one which on a cursory glance appears like a popular work on the subject, but a more intimate acquaintance with its contents reveals the fact that it is a thoroughly scientific treatise, one which will give to the student a practical and theoretical knowledge of the subject. . . . In no single volume can one find the same amount of valuable information as is to be found in Prof. Zahm's new book."—Scientific American.

References for Literary Workers.

With Introductions to Topics and Questions for Debate. By Henry Matson. Crown 8vo, $3.00.

"Writers who have spent hours in public libraries seeking for just the book needed to complete their knowledge of a certain subject, or who have waded disconsolately through volumes in pursuit of a single much-needed bit of information, will be glad to welcome this work. A more complete reference book it would be hard to find. . . . With such a volume at hand, preparatory reading loses half its terrors. The comprehensiveness of the scope of such a work is vast and its value tremendous."—The Boston Times.

France in the Nineteenth Century, 1830-1890.

By Elizabeth W. Latimer. Handsomely Illustrated with 22 Portraits of Celebrated Characters. Crown 8vo, $2.50.

"Current events give emphasis to the history of France in the Nineteenth Century. . . . Throughout it is intensely readable, it affords trustworthy and vivid pictures of momentous events, and it depicts the personality of the men and women who have been the chief actors in modern French history with singular force and effectiveness."—The Beacon, Boston.

"As a whole the book is a rather unusual comingling of history and biography, combining the liveliness and personal flavor of the latter with the breadth of view of the former."—Commercial Advertiser, New York.

A History of Modern Philosophy.

(From the Renaissance to the Present.) By B. C. Burt, A. M., Sometime Docent in the History of Philosophy at Clark University. 2 vols. $4.00.

"It is a thoughtful book for students and thinking men. The general characteristics of our philosophy from the time of its awakening from the 'dogmatic slumber' of the Middle Ages, are first noted in a few brief paragraphs, following which comes an exhaustive consideration of the ancient doctrines which were then revived. This is admirably done and gives at once a standing to the work, the care and conscientiousness of the author being everywhere apparent."—The Boston Times.

"The accidental necessity of examining with more or less care a number of current systems of philosophy has made it convenient to compare Mr. Burt's synoptical abstracts with original works. The test resulted very creditably for his book. . . . Wherever the test was applied his method was found commendably accurate."—New York Tribune.

The Last Voyages of the Admiral of the Ocean Sea.

As Related by Himself and His Companions. By Charles Paul Mac Kie, author of "With the Admiral of the Ocean Sea." Crown 8vo, $1.75.

This is one of the most graphic accounts ever written of the later voyages of the discoverer of America. Mr. Mac Kie writes with the confidence of an authority and the warmth of a champion, but with the impartiality of a judge. The service which he has here done, by sweeping away the swarm of detractions which have of late obscured the fair fame of the great Admiral, deserves to be recognized even above the sterling merits of his book.

Our Cycling Tour in England.

By Reuben G. Thwaites, author of "Historic Waterways," etc. Illustrated, 12mo, $1.50.

"It is a most alluring book of adventures; and for sketches of out of the way corners in the less visited counties of England it is unsurpassed. It is refreshing after so much Chester and Stratford-on-Avon as the tourists and their victims are treated to, to hear of Winterborne Abbas and Winterborne Steepleton and Longbredy Hill. The very nomenclature is fascinating. . . . It is a hard book to leave, and we advise everybody to spend an hour or two in Dorset, Somerset, and Devon with Reuben Gold Thwaites."—MARY P. FRAUD IS ALLEGED.

EUGENE GLASS COMPANY MAKES CHARGES AGAINST THREE MEN.

F. A. Hodson, W. R. Fleming, and D. W. Nickerson Are Said to Have Taken Possession of the Concern's Factory on a Foreclosure of an Alleged Fraudulent Mortgage—Aid Is Asked of the Circuit Court—Fleming Prays for an Accounting and a Receiver.

Charges of fraud and an attempt to break up a business are made in a bill filed in the Circuit Court against F. A. Hodson, W. R. Fleming, and D. W. Nickerson. The complainant is the Eugene Glass company, No. 1305 Wabash avenue. Late Thursday night, according to the bill, the defendants forcibly took possession of the factory under a foreclosure of a fraudulent chattel mortgage.

Fleming, who is a member of the company and its President, is said to have executed the mortgage in favor of himself and recorded it, and then sold it to Hodson. The company denies owing Fleming anything, but states that the latter has appropriated funds of the company to his own use, and drawn company checks to pay his private debts. Several alleged fraudulent transactions are cited by which he is said to have raised money. In pursuance of an alleged scheme to break up the company Fleming is charged with having filed a bill for a receiver for the company last December. The court appointed a receiver, but removed him as soon as it was made to appear that the appointment was obtained by fraud. The court is asked to restrain the foreclosure of the socalled bogus mortgage and to enjoin Fleming from doing illegal acts.

Fleming in a bill filed in the Superior Court yesterday asks again that a receiver be appointed for the company and for an accounting.

Mandamus Asked Against a Justice.

Justice J. F. Wilcox is involved in legal difficulties. Yesterday Berta Leavitt filed in the Circuit Court a petition for a mandamus against the Justice. She states that she had two cases before his Honor and petitioned him for a change of venue on the usual ground of prejudice. Wilcox refused the request, it is claimed, on the ground that the nearest Justice, who is Olaf Severson, would not take a case sent from his court. The petition was presented to Judge Dunne, who made it returnable in five days. The court stated that it was the first time he had ever known a mandamus to be requested where a change of venue had been denied.

Court Notes.

Judge Stein yesterday entered an order allowing the administrator to sell the saloon of Joseph Camilia, No. 56 West Madison street. Camilia is the man who was shot by his wife. The latter was arrested for the alleged crime and is now confined in the County Jail awaiting her trial.

Mrs. Laura Baker filed an amended bill for divorce in the Circuit Court yesterday. Soon after her original bill was filed the defendant, Benjamin M. Baker, filed a cross bill involving his wife's attorney, Maj. Southworth. This led to the arrest for alleged conspiracy of H. R. Wellman, J. R. Clark, J. W. Millington, and others. They were charged with conspiracy to bring this charge against Mrs. Baker. In her amended bill she sets forth these alleged circumstances.

Several days ago Receiver Gilbert sold the equities in the Clyde property of the Frederickson estates to Franklin Head for $1,025. Yesterday the sale was objected to by Bessie Huetson, who holds a judgment against the estate. Her attorney told Judge Ewing that the price was too low. His client would give her judgment and pay court costs and attorney's fees for the equity, which would be $2,000 more than given by Head. The other side objected to this because of other judgments, which, it was claimed, had priority to the Huetson judgment. The court set Friday next for the hearing of the arguments.

CAUSES A COOLNESS.

PURCHASE OF HORSES SETS COMMISSIONERS BY THE EARS.

Friction in the Public Service Committee Over Appointments—Six Men at the Insane Asylum Discharged for Drunkenness—Amendment Drafted at the Request of Mayor Washburne Providing for an Increase of the Tax Levy for Street Cleaning Purposes.

A coolness now exists between certain of the Democratic County Commissioners. The coolness has evidently been growing for some time, but it first came to public notice at yesterday's meeting of the Public Service committee. It all came up about the purchase of three horses to run the county ambulances. Commissioner Allen, a Republican member, was the innocent cause. At Wednesday's meeting of the committee a requisition for the horses was passed. At yesterday's meeting Commissioner Allen said he had voted for the passage of the requisition under a misapprehension of the state of affairs, and he wished the action of the committee reconsidered until the matter could be more fully investigated. Commissioner Allen was sitting next to Commissioner Emerich. Commissioner Coyle sat right across the table.

"It is easy enough to see who is at the bottom of your motion," said Commissioner Coyle. "Emerich has threatened to do anything he can to defeat anything Warden Ernst wants."

"That's not true," said Commissioner Emerich.

"It is true. You sent Warden Ernst a man for a weigher who could neither read nor write, and the Warden would not appoint him. You told him then you would get even with him."

"Mr. Chairman, I want the attention of this board," shouted Commissioner Emerich. "Mr. Coyle has impugned my motives and I demand the opportunity of making an explanation. I did send a man to take a position at the County Hospital and the Warden would not put him to work. He said he was appointed Warden and he proposed to be Warden."

"If I were Warden I would be Warden, too," interrupted Chairman Root, shaking his gavel in the air. "If I didn't want a man a Commissioner sent out to me I would not take him, and if I wanted to discharge him I'd do it. Look at that disgraceful scrape at the Insane Asylum last night. Dr. Brown did just right to discharge the whole lot of them, no matter whose appointees they were."

"So far as those horses are concerned I want to say that I don't think they are needed," said Commissioner Emerich. "I am here in the interests of the taxpayers, and I intend to see that those interests are protected."

"The horses are needed," exclaimed Commissioner O'Connell. "This everlasting cry of economy in the interest of the taxpayers is made just that one Commissioner may get his name into the newspapers."

Commissioner Emerich made no reply to this stab, which was plainly directed at him. Commissioner Aldrich said that he was not endeavoring to defeat the purchase of the horses, but only to look further into the matter. The motion to reconsider was then passed and the storm subsided.

Just before the meeting Supt. Brown of the institutions at Dunning told the Commissioners of the discharge of six men from the institutions for intoxication last night. "No man who drinks can work at those institutions while I am at the head," said he. "If I can't make a model institution out there I can resign, and I will step out if I can't run things for the good of the institutions."

The following doctors were named to comprise the allopathic staff of the County Hospital:

Surgical Staff—E. W. Lee, J. Frank Lydston, O. J. Price, Elmer E. Babcock, J. Frank, Rudolph Menn, A. J. Bouffleur, W. A. D. Montgomery, J. B. Murphy, Albert E. Hoadley, Christian Fenger, E. R. Murdock.

Medical Staff—James B. Herrick, Francis R. Sherwood, E. Bowes, H. A. Stout, W. Copeland, F. Hosecher, Ira F. Marshall, George Lintzel, J. J. Quirk, C. E. Greenfield, H. L. Church, Dr. Ballard, Carl Sandburg, C. F. Perkins, Dr. Volini.

Gynæcologists—Fred Formanek, Leonard St. John, Clarence E. Earle, Ferdinand Henrotin, Durlow Lewis.

The following homeopathic staff was chosen by unanimous consent:

Physicians—M. B. Blank, F. F. Roberts.

Surgeons—F. H. Pratt, W. F. Knall, Howard R. Chislette, C. M. Beebe.

Gynæcologists—J. W. Streeter, William G. Willard.

Nose, Throat, and Skin Diseases—William S. White.

The selection of the eclectic staff was deferred until next Friday. The clerk was instructed to notify the opposing eclectic factions that they must settle among themselves on a basis of representation on the staff.

CAN DO MUCH FOR VIADUCTS.

Juries May Help the Public a Great Deal, Says Attorney Gilbert.

As a result of a fight, which covers several years, the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad company will ask Judge Tuley this morning to restrain the city from prosecuting the condemnation proceedings for the opening of Ninetieth and Ninety-first streets. A verdict has just been rendered by a jury in Judge Baker's court, which was based on a similar proceeding on the part of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, to enjoin the city from prosecuting condemnation proceedings for the opening of Sixtieth street, from State to Wentworth avenue. The Rock Island claimed $150,000 damages, but the jury awarded but $1. Assistant City Attorney C. C. Gilbert says this verdict is in harmony with the principles enunciated by the Supreme Court, which favor the granting only nominal damages to railroads for right of way over their tracks, and that if juries will only allow their verdicts to harmonize with these principles the railroads will be compelled eventually to build viaducts and give the public the greater protection.

FOR AN INCREASED TAX LEVY.

Amendment Drafted to Provide Extra Money for Street Cleaning Purposes.

Mayor Washburne is working with the Council Finance committee to increase the tax levy. Yesterday he requested Corporation Counsel Du Puy to draft a legislative amendment providing for the desired increase. The measure will be sent to Springfield today and will probably be introduced in the Legislature early next week. The amended bill recites the original measure and concludes with an additional clause allowing 3 per cent of assessed valuation to be levied this year, specifying that the increased levy shall be used for police and street cleaning purposes. Another amendment was drafted by Mr. Du Puy yesterday at Mayor Washburne's suggestion. It confers on the Council power to license intelligence offices. It will be introduced into the Legislature next week.

Truant Officers Expect to Retire.

If Gov. Altgeld signs the bill repealing the Edwards compulsory education law there will be a vacant office room in the City Hall. A. E. Frankland, for three years Superintendent of the Compulsory Education Bureau, was preparing to retire from his office. The Superintendent receives a salary of $2,200 a year and is allowed a clerk. The executive work of the department is performed by twelve truant officers, each of whom receives $75 per month.

Will Have to Furnish Bonds.

When Mayor Washburne rearranged the duties of officers of the Public Works Department the matter of requiring bonds was overlooked. Employés who had not been compelled to furnish security under the old system were promoted to positions in which they handle considerable money, but no bonds were demanded, as required by the ordinance. Commissioner of Public Works Kuhns sent out an order yesterday which, he says, will remedy the defect. Mr. Kuhns sent out another order, calling on employés to settle with their creditors.

Municipal Notes.

Reports from the cribs yesterday said that ice cakes were piled high around the breakwaters but there were no apparent danger that the ports would become clogged.

Deputy Controller Healy yesterday refused to countersign two bills for the salaries of extra men employed at the County Hospital to be paid out of the supply fund. This is in accordance with a resolution passed by the County Board.

INSURANCE NEWS.

Ever since the burning of the Harvey World's Fair Hotel at Harvey, Ill., last January structures of that kind have not borne a first-class reputation among the underwriters. Many agents absolutely refuse to write them at anything like reasonable rates, and a still larger number have instructions from their companies not to write this kind of property at all. The result is that insurance upon the numerous buildings going up in the vicinity of the Fair for the accommodation of visitors is exceedingly hard to find. The objections to these hotels and apartment houses are many and are by no means due to the Harvey fire alone or any intrinsic defect of construction, or lack of fire protection. Many of the hotels are built of iron and stone, and several have the most approved apparatus for preventing a fire. The position of the underwriters in refusing to write this class of risks is outlined by the following statement of a prominent underwriter yesterday: "We are afraid of these hotels because they are speculations, and experience has taught that such property is unprofitable to the insurance companies. As long as these buildings pay their owners they will take good care that no fire occurs, but let the business become unprofitable neglect follows and with that a loss. Another thing: these buildings will be unoccupied as soon as the Fair is over, and the increased moral hazard of a vacant building is a well recognized factor in our business. We might insure the buildings until this dangerous period arrives and then cancel, to be sure, but most agents prefer to reject any risks that are likely to necessitate such measures in order to protect their interests. Besides, to cancel the policies after six months or so casts an unpleasant suspicion upon the property-owners, and we would rather avoid that." So difficult is it to obtain insurance upon these World's Fair hotels that the rate in several cases has been as high as 6 and 7 per cent.

A resolution was introduced in the Senate at Springfield Thursday to amend the Constitution as regards the taxing of corporations and giving the Assembly increased powers. The resolution proposes that the State Assembly shall provide the revenue needed by levying a general tax on the value of all property possessed by the individual or the corporation. Special taxes may be levied also upon individuals or corporations owning or using franchises or privileges. A tax may be levied on the gross earnings of a company doing business in the State and besides an annual license tax for the right to carry on a business as a corporation within the State. The measure excites little interest among the underwriters, though it may affect their interests considerably. They claim to be indifferent to the acts of the State Legislature, holding that any additional burdens to those existing for the insurance companies can be met by retirement from the State. The lessening of companies and lines due to the big losses of the last few years, it is claimed, has already made insurance difficult to obtain in sufficiently large amounts by the larger commercial houses. These interests when threatened with the withdrawal of the companies will prevent, it is thought, the ill-advised legislation of the State Legislature.

There is much complaint among local underwriters of the credit system that exists among agents, brokers, and the assured. "It has become almost a rule with some underwriters here," said a prominent insurance manager yesterday, "to give sixty and ninety days' time for the payment of premiums. It, in effect, amounts to a rebate to the policyholder, and in a great measure is responsible for the demoralization that exists among the agents. My agents complain that while other companies allow this credit they cannot compete for business without an equal privilege. A good example of the extent to which this crediting premiums is carried was reported to me this morning. An agent only collects the premiums of the previous year when he secures the renewal of the policy for the ensuing year. This practice of giving credit has grown especially bad in Chicago. At St. Louis it is customary to settle all accounts in the first five days of each month. Personally I would prefer to give a discount of 5 per cent on the amount of the premium than to allow a credit of two or three months. The practice, to the extent to which it is now carried by some, affords a good substitute for rate cutting."

How critical the situation at Milwaukee is considered by the general managers may be learned from the fact that the semi-annual meeting of the Western Insurance Union is to be held nearly a month earlier on that account. The Western Union is the organization that controls all union companies in the Western middle States. Of it the compacts and local commissions are but branches. The usual date of the semi-annual meeting has been the first Wednesday in March. By vote of the managers taken by bulletin last Wednesday, it was decided to hold the meeting in Louisville, Ky., Feb. 15. A lively session is expected, for the managers themselves are by no means in accord on the subject of establishing an inspector and compact management in Milwaukee. Other questions of interest to the companies will come up, but none of so much importance as the Milwaukee difficulty.

The Chicago general managers are more interested in the suit brought at Springfield to investigate the expenditures of the insurance department under ex-Auditor Pavey than appears at first sight. They would be glad to have a general ventilation of the ways and means of the State's Insurance Department on general principles, if not in the particular instance of Mr. Pavey. The taxation of the insurance interests by the State has long been a sore grievance to the underwriters. They feel that many of the fees and taxes levied upon them are extortionary and unjust. The fee for examining the companies' annual statements and the charge for advertising it they feel especially to be an imposition. Then there is the tax of $2 for each agent of the company. This is levied per capita, and one agency of three members would have to pay $6, though the business done might be no more than that of a single agent.

Late advices from Milwaukee state that so far but one local agency has yielded to the companies in the matter of reporting business through Compact Inspector Brant. Even this single exception to the general rebellion is denied by the local agents themselves. The Milwaukee agents regard this fight as between their organization and the general managers. To give in, they assert, would be detrimental to the interests of themselves and of their patrons. They are disposed to fight the matter out to the end, and many say that rather than accede to compact domination they will give up their agencies and go into some other business.

A canvass of the representative portion of the underwriters along La Salle street shows that four-fifths of the agents give credit for their premiums. Some claim to allow policy-holders no more than thirty days at most. Some give credit only to a few of their oldest and most reliable customers. The greater number give credit invariably for thirty days. They extend this to sixty days if requested and will even allow the account to stand for ninety days rather than press the matter. Those who do business strictly for cash are few and far between and they concede that to carry on this policy costs them many a customer.

W. H. Crolius, Vice-President of the American of New York, and E. S. Walker, Chicago general manager of the company, started together last night on a business trip to the South. They will visit the company's agencies in Texas and other States, and expect to be absent a week or more.

The committee of underwriters to settle the Donohue & Henneberry loss by the gas explosions last month reports that there is to be no claims on the insurance companies. The entire damage, which was chiefly glass, is estimated at $5,000, and this will be paid for by the natural gas company.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 3.—A quantity of wool, which it is expected after being cleansed will be worth $200,000, has been taken from the ruins of Hecht Bros.' building, which was the center of the recent Federal street fire. The salvage will inure to the benefit of the insurance companies.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Auditor Gore today canceled the certificate authorizing the Missouri, Kansas, and Texas Insurance company of Kansas City, a fidelity company, to do business in this State, because it had failed to file its annual statement as required by law.

DELIGHTS IN SKATING

WHAT THE WINTER GIRL FINDS HER CHIEF PLEASURE IN.

She Skims Like a Bird Over Ice-Bound Lakes and Rivers—The Sport Is One of the Inalienable Rights of Woman—She Has Exercised It Ever Since She Used to Strap Long Bones to Her Feet Ages Before Skates Were Invented—Skaters of Various Nations.

The girl who is alive to her opportunities takes advantage of the "severest winter known for years," and skates. It doesn't make much difference whether she has mastered the difficult art of standing up on two narrow rods of steel or not, for she is just as fascinating in the helpless, clinging rôle of learner as she is in the independent, daring one of the accomplished skater—perhaps even more; but that is one of the things which no one save her escort knows.

DUTCH GIRL.

Skating has been one of the rights of women ever since they used to strap long bones to their feet and push themselves over the ice with a pointed stick, and particularly has it been the inalienable privilege of a Dutch housewife.

Skating in Holland, however, is not of a highly ornate order. This is because a prudent woman is not disposed to attempt the evolution of spirals and other figures when she has a basket of fragile eggs upon her arm. But the Holland girl goes in for speed, in proof of which statement there is a story that once upon a time two neighborly souls had a difference over the question of their respective skating abilities. Even the Dutch temper sometimes gets stirred, and the argument finally waxed exceeding warm—far warmer, in fact, than the weather, which was clutching all the canals in a grip of ice. The two dames continued the dispute until a race was arranged. They were to skate thirty miles, and to the one covering the distance in the shorter time a prize was promised of the finest pair of skates in Amsterdam.

GERMAN GIRL.

The match came off with great éclat and a large attendance. The winning time was two hours, and if any girl in America can do better let her show her record. Is it not quite likely that the familiar phrase, "It beats the Dutch," originated in this little episode?

Now, as has been said, the Dutch women skate because it is the quickest means of locomotion between their kitchens and the market. The Scandinavian women skate because it is the most rapid way of paying calls, and the Russian women rarely skate at all. The rivers in Russia flow so swiftly that they seldom freeze, and even in the cities most of the skating is done by the English and Germans.

CANADIAN GIRL.

NORWEGIAN GIRL.

When a Russian woman does skate, however, she can discount every other nationality in the beauty of her costume. She is not afraid of brilliant color effects, and she and her furs are inseparable.

In England skating is an art, not an industry. The English girl is as addicted to open air exercise as her American cousin is to ice-cream. She skates conscientiously, if not always with marvelous grace, and with her sisters may be seen by the thousand on the Serpentine and in Regent's Park.

The Canadian girl improves each shining hour of ice, but she often has to have her skating area dug out of the snow, as have the New-Yorkers this winter. A Canadian girl is a bold and fearless skater. She is not so stiff as an English girl nor so luxurious as a Russian. She wraps up in the warmest of woollen suits and pulls a festive toboggan cap over her ears. There is a streak of French in her blood, which makes her don bright colors and which puts verve and dash into her style.

RUSSIAN GIRL.

And the American girl? That she can skate one need only make an afternoon visit to any of Chicago's parks to determine. She is leisurely, because she is skating for pure enjoyment, not for any iron-bound purpose. She is graceful because she doesn't know how to be awkward. She is pretty because the brisk exercise and biting wind make her cheeks glow with color; because her hair blows about her face in bewildering but altogether pleasing confusion, and because her eyes sparkle with pure delight. She dresses well, of course. It is a part of her creed, and she does not omit it when she goes a-skating. The dresses worn this year at the parks are not bright, but are of good length and well-fitting, which, after all, are the two most necessary points in a skater's costume. It would add an agreeable color if bright red were more frequently worn. As it is the tout ensemble lacks brilliancy and life. Except for an occasional child's frock of scarlet, the ice seems really, as people so often say, "black" with people. There is a great deal of fur used on the gowns, however, and that is always most becoming.

AMERICAN GIRL.

One of the most attractive girls who has graced the ice this winter wore a long blue ulster, with two long capes trimmed with Russian sable. Her hat was of blue velvet, turned up in the back, and with a pink silk rose standing up between a great Alsatian bow of the velvet.

No better models for skating dresses could be adopted, however, than those made for Princess Marie of Roumania as a part of her trousseau. One was of zibeline diagonal cloth in two tones of brown. The skirt, stiffened with horsehair, was trimmed in 1830 style with three bands of mink and two of velvet. The full bodice had an Empire yoke, pointed back and front, and bordered with fur. A Récamier jacket was to be worn with this costume. It had a velvet cape embroidered in gold and brown and edged with mink. There was a muff to match and a toque. The other skating costume was of dark violet colored cloth. The skirt was of velvet, and the Empire bodice, embroidered in silk, was trimmed with velvet.

What Her Real Name Was.

A woman writer who has just finished her first attempt at authorship, which met with a remarkable success, was encountered Wednesday at a famous club dinner by a gorgeously dressed woman. The latter extended her hand and kissed her, exclaiming in a heroic and sentimental style: "I am so glad, dearest darling, to welcome you to our ranks."

The peculiar appearance of the woman rather amused the authoress, and she replied: "Thank you, but may I venture to ask who you are and what work bears your name?"

"Certainly, my dear. Have you ever heard of Jane Austin, the New England authoress? Well, I am not she. But have you ever heard of Jean Ingelow, the poetess?"

"Yes," was the reply, "but surely you are not she."

"No, I am not she. But have you ever heard of Elizabeth Phelps Ward?"

"My! Yes, indeed, and admired her works greatly. But——"

Before she could finish the erratic individual made a large bow and replied: "Well, I am Mrs. Austin Phelps Ingelow, and I have a book out on everything that women do, and I am said to combine the best literary style of Jane Austin, Jean Ingelow, and Elizabeth Phelps Ward."

The young authoress, when she could break away from her victim, ordered a cab and drove through the quiet lanes which border Bloomingdale Asylum for a few pleasant, peaceful moments of reflection.—New York Herald.

Dante Rossetti's Love Story.

When Gabriel Dante Rossetti was a boy he was deeply in love with a young girl; and having a poet's gift he sang a poet's love in numerous sonnets and verses to her. She died young, and by her wish the manuscripts of these poems were placed in a casket and laid under her head so that even in the last sleep they should be as they always had been, kept beneath her pillow. Years passed by and Rossetti's fame grew until every line of his composition became precious, and some of those who prized his writing most asked him for copies of the songs that had been buried. He had kept no copies, or they had been lost. At all events he could furnish none, and when they asked him to rewrite the verses he declared that he was utterly unable to do so. At last his friends importuned him for permission to have the original manuscripts exhumed. He consented after some hesitation, and, all the necessary preliminaries having been complied with, the grave which had been sealed for many years was opened in the presence of a wondering few. Then a strange thing was found. The casket containing the poems had proven to be of perishable material and its cover had crumbled away. The long tresses of the girl had grown after death, and had twined and intertwined among the leaves of the poet's paper, coiling around the written words of love in a loving embrace long after death had sealed the lips and dimmed the eyes that had made response to that love.

Chaperonage at Oxford.

A serious drawback to the cause of higher education for women in the English universities is reported from Oxford. The cost of "chaperonage" has risen. The older women, who are considered indispensable escorts to the girl students who attend examinations and lectures, are demanding and receiving higher pay than ever before. In many cases the students cannot afford to meet this increased expense, and a daring reformer has suggested that chaperons be dispensed with. While this has horrified the conservatives it has pleased the independent young women, who are beginning to realize that there is no lurking peril in the streets of Oxford.

A Gone Case.

She—"Am I the first woman you ever loved?"

He—"I think you are the first woman I ever truly loved. I have been attracted more or less by other women, but in each instance, before I fell in love with you, there could be found some rational excuse for it."—Texas Siftings.

TO KEEP THE LOVER.

HOW WIVES CAN MAINTAIN THEIR INFLUENCE OVER HUSBANDS.

Octave Thanet Says That Interest, Tact and Magnanimity Are the Three Great Essentials—She Also Recommends a Thorough Knowledge of Housewifely Arts—Sense of Humor Is Often a More Enduring Charm than Beauty—Friendship as a Resting Place for Love.

Since the world began women have influenced men. Yet it is as easy to overrate the influence of the sex as to underrate it, as the girl who marries a man to reform him generally discovers. It is a vitally important question that women have pondered with tears and prayers: How shall a wife keep her influence over the man who has won her?

Every bride knows her power; every wife comes to know her weakness, says Octave Thanet in the Ladies' Home Journal. A good proportion of the heartbreak of early married life is due to the ferment of this knowledge. The poor child whose lover gave up his cigars and his club with such angelic meekness finds that her husband can smoke like a chimney, and leaves her alone nights in order to spend the evening with his men friends. She imagines that he cares less for her than he did, which is a mistake in most cases. Seven out of ten men love their wives better than their sweethearts. It is simply that her presence is not the absorbing excitement that it was when love was new. The chances are that the wife is become a dozen times more necessary to the man than ever the sweetheart could have been. He would feel her death far more keenly, but he does not need to adjure his heart to "sit still" whenever his fancy summons her image. In short, she is become the bread of existence in place of the elixir. Now, most of us who have sense would prefer to be bread rather than elixir; but there is no question that more fuss is made over the elixir. The heart of woman turns with a homesick yearning to the delicate courtesy, the tenderness, the thousand endearments of that enchanted time when her husband was her lover. How keep him her lover?

Friendship Aids Love.

There is only one half-way house where love, on his swift progress from intoxication to indifference, may be arrested and so happily entertained that he will rest contented until death come to summon him; that resting place for love is friendship.

You remember Chateaubriand's dreary description of a lover's letters—so dreary because so real? "Lo! one morning, something almost imperceptible steals on the beauty of this passion, like the first wrinkle on the front of an adored woman." I will not go on with the bitter sentences, you know how they end: "'I love you' is merely an expression of habit, a necessary form, the 'I have the honor to be' of the love letter. . . . The post day, no longer anticipated, is rather dreaded; writing has become a fatigue. . . . What has happened? Is it a new attachment that begins when an old one ends? No; it is love dying in advance of the object beloved. We are forced to own that the sentiments of man are subjected to the effects of a hidden process; the fever of time that creates lassitude also dissipates illusion, undermines our passions, withers our love, and changes our hearts even as it changes our locks and our years. There is but one exception to this human infirmity. Sometimes in a strong soul there occurs a love firm enough to transform itself into an impassioned friendship. . . . Then neutralizing the weakness of nature it acquires the immortality of a principle!"

Chateaubriand, whose absorbing friendship for one woman lasted all his life, may be called a competent witness. He was over 70 years old when he wrote to Mme. Recamier as complete a sentiment as ever a lover of 20 penned: "All other things are old stories; you are all I want to see."

Interest, Tact, and Magnanimity.

But how shall a woman make her husband her friend?

There is one indispensable quality of a happy friendship that many women neglect—interest. Assume that the wife has her husband's respect; assume, further, that she makes him comfortable—a matter of vast importance—all the same, the poor fellow when home may be bored to death.

Were she as wise a woman as she often is good she would look about her to discover among her friends what women most successfully hold their own against the outside tempters of their husbands. She would throw her theories into the waste basket, and make a fresh set of facts seen by her own eyes. I think she would discover—this, at least, is what one humble observer has discovered—that unless a woman is interesting to a man she cannot permanently hold him.

But a wise woman, again, has another quality, quite as necessary in friendship as interest: the quality that some one has called the oil of the machinery of life—tact. Such a woman is aware that "absence makes the heart grow fonder," and that her husband will love her and value her all the more for occasional losses of her society. "Let him go to his club, now and then," said the wife of the most devoted husband I know; "he always hears something amusing, and he likes to tell it to me as much as I like to hear!" When we have said everything, is not tact nine parts sympathy and one part shrewdness? A woman who has a sensitive sympathy is not likely to blunder over her husband's weak points any more than a shrewd woman is likely to be blind to them.

In the successful friends of their husbands this same humble-minded observer has sometimes discovered a third valuable quality, formerly not considered a property of the feminine mind—that is, magnanimity, by which the aforesaid observer understands a large-minded and tranquil habit of viewing things and a generosity that is no respecter of persons. The larger life of the women of today has fostered this quality. A modern woman, for instance, has a keener notion of honor than her equally virtuous grandmother. She has no less principle, but much fewer prejudices. In a word, she has more self-control about her moralities. And to borrow the painter's phrase, she knows how to appreciate values.

Value of Housewifely Arts.

Besides these essential qualities the observer, from experience, has learned to value a few of a lighter cast. A sense of humor in a woman is more enduring than beauty, and when it is kindly, as charming as grace. It is also the observer's firm belief that it is the duty of every woman contemplating marriage to learn how to cook. She has, in the observer's opinion, no right to marry unless she either has the money to hire a skilled housekeeper or understands free-hand cooking herself. By free-hand cooking is meant cooking without a recipe book in one hand.

The observer earnestly advises all wives who desire to influence their husbands for good to give those husbands daintily cooked and daintily served meals and to let them show their friends how well their wives cater for them. They will be grateful. There are many things for which a man is not grateful; but the man that is allowed to bring his friends home to dinner without warning or with only a word over a telephone, who can have a quiet card party or supper at reasonable intervals, and does not appreciate his mercies, would be hooted out of court by all the decent of his sex.

Toronto Working Girls Organize.

The Toronto working girls have organized a labor union for mutual protection and just rights. "What we want is justice," the young woman leader of the movement announced from the platform with gentle but earnest words. "Girls should work shorter hours, the same as men. They should be paid the same prices for the same work. It is wicked that fragile girls must work from daylight to dark for starvation wages. We must organize and fight our own battles. No one will do it for us. It doesn't do any good for one girl to complain to her employer. It would be a different thing if the whole factory went. We must act in concert." All of which is a strong little speech for a girl who has spent her life winding twine balls to make on the spur of the moment.

Call Their Club "Souls."

A new woman's club of London is called "Souls," and Miss Margaret Tennant is its moving spirit. An organ of the club that is in the near future will naturally be called "Aspirations," since these are what "Souls" presumably have. A wicked little story is going the rounds about these "Souls." Eligibility to enter their charmed circle rests upon a capacity to write verses after Swinburne. A woman who wanted to be a "Soul," but realized that her poetry was not Swinburnian, copied some of the poet's earlier and less-known poems and sent them in, intending later to confess the deception. But the committee rejected them on the ground that her verses were "too poor a travesty."

MODJESKA'S EARLY LIFE IN POLAND.

How the Great Actress Won Success There and in America.

Helcia Benda was born in Cracow, Austrian Poland. The aspirations of her childhood were for the stage, but her early efforts met with such discouragement that she abandoned all hope of ever attaining recognition. While very young she was married in the willynilly fashion of that time and people to a man named Modrzjewska, the name which we have shortened to Modjeska, says John W. O'Keefe in Donahoe's Magazine. He recognized her talent, and organized a company of strolling players, putting her at its head. Two of her brothers and one sister were members. The parts that Helcia or Helena was called on to play were great in number and difficulty, but she was happy, because at last she was following the life of her choice. The company made no profit, for the unhappy Poles, fighting for their country, were in no humor for plays. She had an offer to play German tragedy in Austria, but she could not bear to leave her country in its crisis. So strong was her patriotism at the time that she was called the Polish Joan of Arc.

Returning to Cracow she secured an engagement at the theater there, and at once her genius began to make itself known. In a few months her fame had spread over all Poland. Alexandre Dumas heard of her and asked her to come to Paris to play in his "Camille," but the notoriously corrupt stage life of the Paris of that period appalled her and she refused to go.

In 1866, while she was playing in Posen, her husband being dead, she met, loved, and married Charles Bozenta Chiapowski. On the day of her marriage she began an engagement at the Imperial Theater in Warsaw. Her triumph was the greatest ever known, and thenceforth she was accepted as the foremost representative of Polish dramatic art.

It was purely by chance that America ever saw her. Her doctor had advised a sea voyage for her health, and it was decided that the family should visit the Centennial. They did so, and in 1877 went to California, where Bozenta wished to found a Polish Catholic community. The effort failed, despite Mme. Modjeska's hard work, she cooking, scrubbing, milking cows, and making butter; and, Bozenta's money being gone, they said: "What are we to do?" But one resource remained—Helena's acting. But she could not speak English! O, well! she must learn. And she did. Six months from the day of her resolution she played "Adrienne Lecouvreur" in San Francisco—and triumphed. An energetic impresario saw her, brought her East, and her position was assured.

TO WEAR WITH EVENING DRESSES.

A New Collar That Has Been Made Popular by English Dressmakers.

The "Anne of Austria" collar, which has suddenly sprung into popularity, can be made in a variety of materials, but is here represented in white satin, with an applique of beaded net in a bold design, with a small pattern worked in the satin to fill up the spaces. It can be worn with an evening gown or as a finish to a plain, close-fitting one.

THE AUSTRIA COLLAR.

FORMING AN ANTI-CRINOLINE LEAGUE.

"John Strange Winter" Suggests a Pledge for Abstainers.

New York Commercial-Advertiser: The well-known author, "John Strange Winter," has written an open letter, in which she says:

There is very little doubt that the unsightly and dangerous crinoline is rapidly coming into fashion, in spite of the horror with which women of all classes regard it. It is hard enough that women should not have the making of fashions and the power to say what they will wear, but it is a well-known fact that these things are ordered by a small clique of men. It is, however, within the power of all women to determine what they will not wear, and for the furtherance of that object I am forming a league, which will, if it is made sufficiently public entirely put down the adoption of the crinoline. Without a single exception every woman to whom I have spoken on the subject is strongly in favor of the movement I suggest.

May I ask you to give space in your columns for this letter, by which means I feel sure thousands of sensible women will be led to join "The No Crinoline League"? Membership will involve no expense or trouble beyond that of sending me a letter or postal card—the latter preferred—bearing the writer's name and address and the following promise: "I hereby pledge myself to do all in my power to prevent the wearing of crinolines." The cards or letters should be addressed to "John Strange Winter," Spring House, Merton, S. W., England. I propose to publish a list of the names and addresses.

The Kind of Woman to Know.

The woman with a loving heart is sure to look upon the bright side of life, and by her example induce others to do so. She sees a good reason for all the unwelcome events which others call bad luck. She believes in silver linings, and likes to point them out to others. A week of rain or fog, an avalanche of unexpected guests, a dishonest servant, an unbecoming bonnet, or any other of the thousand minor inflictions of everyday life have no power to disturb the deep calm of her soul. The love light is still in her eyes, whether the days be dark or bright. It is she who conquers the grim old uncle and the dyspeptic aunt. The crossest baby reaches out its arms to her, and is comforted. Old people and strangers always ask the way of her in the crowded street. She has a good word to say for the man or woman who is under the world's ban of reproach. Gossip pains her, and she never voluntarily listens to it. Her gentle heart helps her to see the reason for every poor sinner's misstep, and condones every fault. She might not serve with acceptance on the judge's bench, but she is a very agreeable person to know. —Harper's Bazar.

The Brightening Influence of Women.

A gentleman who recently went far into the Maine woods to look after his lands on coming to a lumberman's camp thirty miles from nowhere was struck with astonishment and held up his team involuntarily at the edge of the opening. The cause was the strains of a parlor organ, played in an artistic manner, which came from the camp. His surprise was not lessened on meeting at the camp door the organist and cook, a handsome young lady as neat and tidy as a new pin, who looked after the house for her father and his crew. She had taken her organ into the woods to "beguile the drowsy hours" and make things more homelike. As might be expected the gentleman found that camp "way ahead" of those not enlivened by woman's smile and cheery presence, and he thought he never knew before how much music there is in an organ. It's the new order of things in camp life in the Maine woods.—New York Evening World.

Why One Woman Wears a Diamond Ring.

An Englishwoman living near St. John's Wood is proudly wearing an exquisite diamond ring, which she received Christmas from Sarah Bernhardt. It was presented in recognition of a single very brief meeting, and of a service from which many women would have shrunk. When the actress was staying at St. John's Wood last summer her pet snake (used in her representation of "Cleopatra") made its escape and started from Hempstead Heath. The Englishwoman met the truant, noticed that it wore a gold chain and a jeweled ring, captured it, and promptly brought it back to its mistress, who was plunged in grief over her supposed loss. The Christmas gift was the sequel.

To Hold Bread and Salt.

A beautiful dish has been provided by the burghers of Bucharest to hold the bread and salt that will be presented to the Princess Marie when she makes her entrance as the future Queen of the city. The dish is of gold, set with emeralds, the symbol of hope. In the center a golden tulip, jeweled, holds the symbol of hospitality. Interlaced corn leaves and laurel form the dish, which bears the coats of arms of the States over which she will rule, and a welcome in Roumanian letters to the English Princess.

OUT-OF-DOOR ATTIRE.

PICTURESQUE COATS AND HATS FOR LITTLE GIRLS' WEAR.

White, Gray, and Cream Colored Cloths Are Most Popular for These Small Garments—They Are Generally Long and Are Finished with Capes Like the Wraps of Their Elder Sisters—Leggins, Made Either of Cloth or Leather, Are Worn by Girls as Well as by Boys.

While small girls' indoor attire grows more picturesque day by day the garments which they wear on the street are by no means neglected, either by dressmakers or fond mammas. All that rich and dainty materials arranged in carefully-considered designs can do to make little folks attractive is done. And in all the world there is not, perhaps, a prettier sight than one of these tots in her "great coat" and big hat ready for her morning walk.

READY FOR THE ICE.

A rosy-cheeked little lassie, with big brown eyes, stood on the edge of the pond in Lincoln Park the other day ready to try her first pair of skates. Her coat was of gray box cloth, made with double capes, the edges of which were pinked. Her hat was a "Tam O'Shanter," made of the cloth and caught up at the side with a smart bow of ribbon and a bunch of eagle quills. A pair of gray suede leggins, like those that small boys wear, save in color, were buttoned over her chubby legs, completely protecting them from the bitter wind.

A quaint coat for a little woman who is just leaving babyhood behind is of yellowish lambswool cloth, made with a deep cape and finished with double plaits in the back. Cape and belt and sleeves are trimmed with a narrow edge of beaver, which is continued from the neck to the bottom of the skirt in front. A little Dutch bonnet is worn with this coat, made of cloth and edged with beaver. The leggins which complete the costume and help to enable its wearer to laugh at winter are of cloth, fitting well to the leg and buttoned on the outside.

Suitable for a child of 4 is a pelisse in cream Bengaline. The skirt is trimmed with a full flounce of Venetian guipure lace, which also appears on the crossed, fichu-like arrangement that is used in the place of capes to make the garment picturesque. The sleeves are full and finished at the wrist with turned-over cuffs of lace. Ribbons tie in the folds of cloth at the neck and waist. The bonnet which frames in the face of the wearer of such a cloak should be of the same materials, made with a high, full crown and finished with a full ribbon ruche.

FOR A SHARP MORNING.

As pretty a wrap as a little girl can wear is of cream Bengaline, finished with a pelerine of fine Angora fur. The garment, which is fairly long, is fastened with cut steel buttons. The sleeves are full and edged with Angora. A big hat of cream Bengaline made with a square crown and a broad brim edged with Angora forms an important part of the attire.

WAITING FOR HER DOG.

Doilies of Gold Wire.

Instead of a doily under plates very delicate mats of gold wire are to be had for use. They protect polished tables from the heat of a warm plate and are a desirable novelty to such as are always eager for something different and new.

Has a Button Mania.

A Belton, Mo., woman, who has a penchant for buttons, has employed her leisure time during the last 27 years in collecting them, and she has now 3,000 specimens, no two alike.

HERE WERE GIFTS WORTH RECEIVING.

Presents Given to Princess Marie of Edinburg on the Occasion of Her Marriage.

The wedding presents given to Princess Marie of Edinburg on the occasion of her marriage to Crown Prince Ferdinand of Roumania were gifts worth getting. The pendant presented by her Majesty the Queen has an estimated value of £5,000, or $25,000. FROM MEMBERS OF THE ROYAL HOUSEHOLD.

The Duke of Edinburg's gift was a necklace composed of clusters of fine turquoises surrounded by diamonds, an open work tiara mounted with turquoises and diamonds, and earrings to match.

The writing set presented by the officers of the Plymouth garrison consisted of a large stationery case, blotter, inkstand, pen, tray, match stand, and table bell, formed of richly-worked repoussé silver and morocco leather. Each article was ornamented with Princess Marie's monogram, surmounted by a royal crown, and they were inclosed in a royal red case, bearing a silver plate with an inscription.

The ladies and gentlemen of the household at Clarence House selected a lovely silver coffee and tea set of Georgian design. The Sultan of Johore gave a magnificent silver gilt tea and coffee service, kettle and tray, with china cups and saucers, etc. Lord Rosebery's gifts were two antique punch bowls in a handsome morocco case, made by the same firm whose own present to the Princess was a lovely gold mirror clock in an antique design of the Louis XIV. period.

FROM LORD ROSEBERY.

HAD PHILOSOPHY ON HER SIDE.

How a Child Touched Bottom in a Matter of Orthography.

"Spell toes," said the mother, who was teaching her little daughter, 7 years old, to spell.

"T-o-z-e," answered the child.

"No, dear, that's not right. T-o-e-s spells toes."

"But it sounds like t-o-z-e."

"I know it, but you cannot go by the sound."

Then, in order to enforce this proposition the mother called on her daughter to spell froze.

"F-r-o-e-s," said the child.

"No, you're wrong again. This time we do use the z and spell the word f-r-o-z-e."

"Huh!" grunted the child.

"Now, spell rose," said the mother.

The child hesitated. Finally she said: "I don't know whether to say, r-o-z-e or r-o-e-s, and really I don't know that either way would be right."

"Spell it r-o-s-e," said the mother, "though there is another word pronounced just like it that's spelled r-o-e-s. That word is the name of the spawn of fishes."

The poor little child looked very miserable.

"Just one more word," said the mother. "Tell me how you spell blows."

"Well," said the child, who had had quite enough nonsense, as she viewed it, from her mother, and had suddenly made up her mind to pay back in kind, "I spell it three ways. I spell it b-l-o-s-e for breakfast, b-l-o-e-s for dinner, and b-l-o-z-e for supper."

"I spell it b-l-o-w-s all the time," said the mother.

The child said nothing for a minute or two. Then, looking up, she solemnly remarked:

"I think, mamma, that the English language was made for persons very, very well educated."—New York Times.

Civil Marriage in Hungary.

The Roman Catholic priesthood in Hungary are making a vigorous fight against the proposed institution of compulsory civil marriage, and are making special efforts to enlist the peasant women, whose influence is very potent upon the ballot-box upon their side. The correspondent of a London paper says: "The married peasant women are being told by the clerical agitators who are visiting the villages in all parts of the kingdom that after the introduction of civil marriage the church ceremony by which they were married to their husband will be invalidated; that they will accordingly have to renew the contract before the civil authorities; and that their husbands will then be at liberty to refuse to renew the marriage tie with them, and will doubtless avail themselves of the opportunity of choosing younger and prettier partners in place of their old wives, who will, of course, be turned out of doors. These stories are of course miserable fabrications, but they work none the less effectively on the ignorant but impressionable female population of the rural districts. Indeed it is reported that among the women in not a few lonely hamlets and villages, which are never reached by the newspapers refuting the falsehoods, these baseless tales have produced terror and consternation."

Safe Place for the Baby.

Should there happen to be a baby in the family, and yet at the same time an unpleasant shrinkage in the family bank account, so that a nurse girl is regarded as an impossibility, don't be discouraged. Get an old-fashioned clothes basket made of twisted willow, line it with thickly wadded, quilted, or tufted silk, just as you prefer. Then put the basket on the floor, and this time, instead of filling it with clothes, just gently drop in the baby. The basket is peculiarly adapted to the needs of a baby who is just learning to stand alone. Its chief merit consists in its safety, for when the baby is once inside it cannot possibly be harmed, and may stand up or sit down according to its own sweet youthful will. The basket from which this idea is taken was lined with a faint shade of pink wadded silk, the outside and handles being silvered. A rattle tied to the basket and a rag doll were its sole decorations, and these were quite sufficient, according to the baby's idea. With one of these baskets in the nursery the baby may be safely left alone for a short time and be amused as well.

A Woman's Bright Idea.

It has remained for a woman to invent and patent glass doors for ovens. The wonder is that the idea has not long ago been thought of by some woman who cooks. All cooking instructors lay the greatest stress on the care to be observed opening an oven door to watch the progress of cakes or muffins. Maria Parloa making sponge cake touches the knob with the most delicate care and lightness, dreading even to jar the cake within, and peeks through the smallest crack that will afford the necessary glance. What a relief to walk boldly up to the oven and through these transparent doors which the genius of a Michigan woman has discovered study at leisure the progress of rising cake dough or crisping fowl.

How She Walked.

A school teacher in one of the primary schools in Concord tells me the following: Some days ago she was endeavoring to make clear to her young pupils' mind the meaning of the word "slowly." She walked across the room in the manner the word indicates.

"Now, children, tell me how I walked."

One little fellow who sat near the front of the room almost paralyzed her by blurting out:

"Bow-legged."—Boston Globe.

Too Thirsty to Talk.

"I notice that your husband has never much to say in the morning when he has been out late at night," said the wife's mother.

"No," was the reply of the wife, "he's mum then, extra dry."—New York Press.

Good Scheme.

To guard against poisoning a law has been passed in Germany that all drugs intended for internal use must be put in round bottles, and those which are only used externally must be placed in hexagonal bottles.

High-Priced Canaries.

Five hundred pounds was paid for a couple of canaries in London recently. This is said to be a not unusual price for fine birds of the kind.

All about Cinderella tomorrow.

VERSES OF THE DAY.

A Little Verse of Riley's.

Just a little verse of Riley's,
Full of quaintest baby lore;
On a wrapping sheet she found it,
And she conned it o'er and o'er.

In an empty room she read it;
As she read it, wept and smiled—
She who never was a mother
Felt within her arms the child.

Just a little verse of Riley's,
Rich in dearest baby thought,
To a lonely, unloved woman
Deepest joy—and sorrow—brought.

Common Things.

Give me, dear Lord, thy magic common things,
Which all can see, which all may share—
Sunlight and dewdrops, grass and stars and sea—
Nothing unique or new and nothing rare.

Just daisies, knapweed, wind among the thorns;
Some clouds to cross the blue old sky above;
Rain, winter fires, a useful hand, a heart,
The common glory of a woman's love.

Then, when my feet no longer tread old paths
(Keep them from fouling sweet things anywhere),
Write one old epitaph in grace-lit words:
"Such things look fairer that he sojourned here."
—The Spectator.

Waiting.

Serene I fold my hands and wait,
Nor care for wind, or tide, or sea;
I rave no more 'gainst time or fate,
For lo! my own shall come to me.

I stay my haste, I make delays,
For what avails this eager pace?
I stand amid the eternal ways,
And what is mine shall know my face.

Asleep, awake, by night or day,
The friends I seek are seeking me;
No wind can drive my bark astray,
Nor change the tide of destiny.

What matter if I stand alone?
I wait with joy the coming years;
My heart shall reap where it has sown,
And garner up its fruit of tears.

The stars come nightly to the sky,
The tidal wave unto the sea;
Nor time, nor space, nor deep, nor high,
Can keep my own away from me.
—Burroughs.

Reaping.

How is it I forget the good
You brought me in the past,
And dwell upon the tireless grief
You wrought me at the last?

How is it I forget how kind
You were for years and years,
And only think how at the last
You gave me shame and tears?

How is it I forget the fault
Was mine—my very own,
And murmur in my sleepless grief
That it was yours alone?

This is my punishment. Love's rose
Has fallen by the way;
But on its thorn, that still remains,
My heart bleeds night and day.
—Ella Higginson in the New Peterson.

The Shipman's Tale.

Listen, my masters. I speak naught but truth.
From dawn to dawn they drifted on and on,
Not knowing whither or to what dark end.
Now the north froze them, now the hot south scorched.
Some called to God, and found great comfort so;
Some gnashed their teeth with curses, and some laughed
An empty laughter seeing that they lived,
So sweet was breath between their foolish lips.
Day after day the same relentless sun,
Night after night the same unpitying stars.
At intervals fierce lightnings tore the clouds,
Showing vast hollow spaces, and the sleet
Hissed, and the torrents of the sky were loosed.
From time to time a hand relaxed its grip,
And some pale wretch slid down into the dark
With stifled moan, and transient horror seized
The rest who waited, knowing what must be.
At every turn strange shapes reached up and clutched
The whirling wreck, held on awhile, and then
Slipt back into that blackness whence they came.
Ah, hapless folk, to be so tost and torn,
So racked by hunger, fever, fire, and wave,
And swept at last into the nameless void—
Frail girls, strong men, and mothers with their babes!

And were none saved?

My masters, not a soul!

O, shipman, woful, woful is thy tale!
Our hearts are heavy and our eyes are dimmed.
What ship is this that suffered such ill fate?
What ship, my masters? Know ye not?—the World.

The Witching Hour.

Snow for hours had blown and drifted,
And the rack went scudding by;
Spectrally the branches lifted
Naked arms against the sky.
What cared we though time was flitting,
What cared we though winds made moan,
In the witching twilight sitting
All alone?

She within a rocker cozy,
I upon a hassock low,
Watching o'er her face the rosy
Cupid dimples come and go;
For the lover firelight heightened
Every blush with ardor bold,
And her locks of brown were brightened
Into gold.

Like the fabulous "Jack Horner"
Of the merry nursery page,
Gleeful from a dusky corner
Grinned an idol gray with age;
And methought his dark lips muttered,
What I longed to there avow;
"Tell her," were the words he uttered,
"Tell her now!"

Then there fell a silence sweeter
Than when air is stirred with song,
Than when strains in mellow meter
Swing with rhythmic sweep along.
In her eyes a look beguiling
Bade me not to break the spell;
Something told me in her smiling
All was well.

Slowly grew the firelight dimmer
Till the angles of the room,
Lighted by no ruddy glimmer,
Melted in the shrouding gloom;
And not e'en the ancient idol
Saw love's apotheosis
Or the presage of a bridal
In a kiss.

The Saint and the Sinner.

Heart-worn and weary the woman sat
Her baby sleeping across her knee,
And the work her fingers were toiling at Seemed a pitiful task for such as she,
Mending shoes for the little feet
That pattered over the cabin floor,
While the bells of the Sabbath day rang sweet,
And the neighbors passed by the open door.

The children played and the baby slept,
And the busy needle went and came,
When, lo, on the threshold stone there stept
A priestly figure, and named her name:
"What shrift is this for the Sabbath day,
When bells are calling, and far and near
The people gather to praise and pray,
Woman, why are you toiling here?"

Like one in a dream she answered low:
"Father, my days are work-days all;
I know not Sabbath. I dare not go
Where the beautiful bells ring out and call,
For who would look to the meat and drink
And tend the children and keep the place?
I pray in silence, and try to think
For God's love can listen, and give me grace."

The years passed on, and with fast and prayer
The good priest climbed to the gate of rest,
And a tired woman stood waiting there,
Her work-worn hands to her bosom pressed;
"O, saint thrice blessed, mount thou on high,"
He heard the welcoming angels say,
When meekly, gently, she passed him by,
Who had mended shoes on the Sabbath day.

Crinoline.

Rumor whispers, so we glean
From the papers, there have been
Thoughts of bringing on the scene
This mad, monstrous, metal screen,
Hiding woman's graceful mien.
Better Jewish gabardine
Than, thus swelled out, satin's sheen!

Vilest garment ever seen!
Form unknown in things terrene!
Even monsters pliocene
Were not so ill-shaped, I ween.
Women wearing this machine,
Were they fat or were they lean—
Small as Wordsworth's celandine,
Large as sail that's called lateen,
Simply swept the pavement clean;
Hapless man was crushed between
Flat as any tinned sardine.

Thing to rouse a Bishop's spleen,
Make a Canon or a Dean
Speak in language not serene.
We must all be very green,
And our senses not too keen,
If we can't say what we mean,
Write in paper, magazine,
Send petitions to the Queen,
Get the House to intervene.
Paris fashion's transmarine—
Let us stop by quarantine
Catastrophic Crinoline!
